INTRODUCTION

Nouvelle progression pour l'actionnariat salarié en Europe l'année dernière. La remontée s'accélère pour le nombre d'actionnaires salariés, avec 7,2 millions de personnes dans les grandes entreprises (Graphique 1A). Si l'on y ajoute un million d'actionnaires salariés dans les PME, le nombre total atteint 8.2 millions.

Ensemble ils détenaient 350 milliards d'Euro en mai 2019 (Graph 4 page 14), en hausse à 400 milliards d'Euro début 2020. Les actifs détenus représentent 50.000€ par personne en 2019, et 27.000€ si l'on exclut les dirigeants exécutifs comparés à 13.000€ en 2009, +113% alors que les bourses européennes ont progressé de +58% sur la même période, - une bonne illustration des bénéficiaires de l'actionnariat salarié pour les travailleurs européens.

Le développement de l'actionnariat salarié dans les grandes entreprises européennes a continué en 2019. Elle sont toujours plus nombreuses à se doter de plans d'actionnariat salarié (Table 1). En 2019, 94% des grandes entreprises avaient un actionnariat salarié, 89% organisaient des plans de toutes sortes, tandis que 52% avaient des plans pour tous et 62% des plans de stock options (Graphique 1B). Enfin, 31% de toutes les grandes entreprises européennes ont lancé de nouveaux plans au cours de l'année, une proportion qui a tendance à augmenter d'année en année (Graphique 9, page 22).

Cependant des perturbations sont venues affecter récemment deux ratios significatifs de l'actionnariat salarié. Elles apparaissent déjà il y a un an, elles sont beaucoup plus marquées à présent. Elles sont dues à des causes très spécifiques. Ces perturbations touchent le taux de démocratisation de l'actionnariat salarié ainsi que la part relative détenue par les salariés dans la propriété des grandes entreprises européennes.

1. Le déclin du taux de démocratisation de l'actionnariat salarié en Europe a été dénoncé depuis une dizaine d'années (Graphique 7A page 17). De plus, un divorce était apparu entre le Royaume Uni et l'Europe continentale. Une chute sous les 20% était observée sur le continent, tandis qu'à l'inverse, le taux de démocratisation grimpait à plus de 25% en Grande Bretagne (Graphique 7B). Le rôle de politiques économiques divergentes était mis en cause: Le Royaume Uni avait fait le choix d'incitants plus volontaires pour promouvoir l'actionnariat des salariés, tandis que les hésitations prévalaient sur le continent.

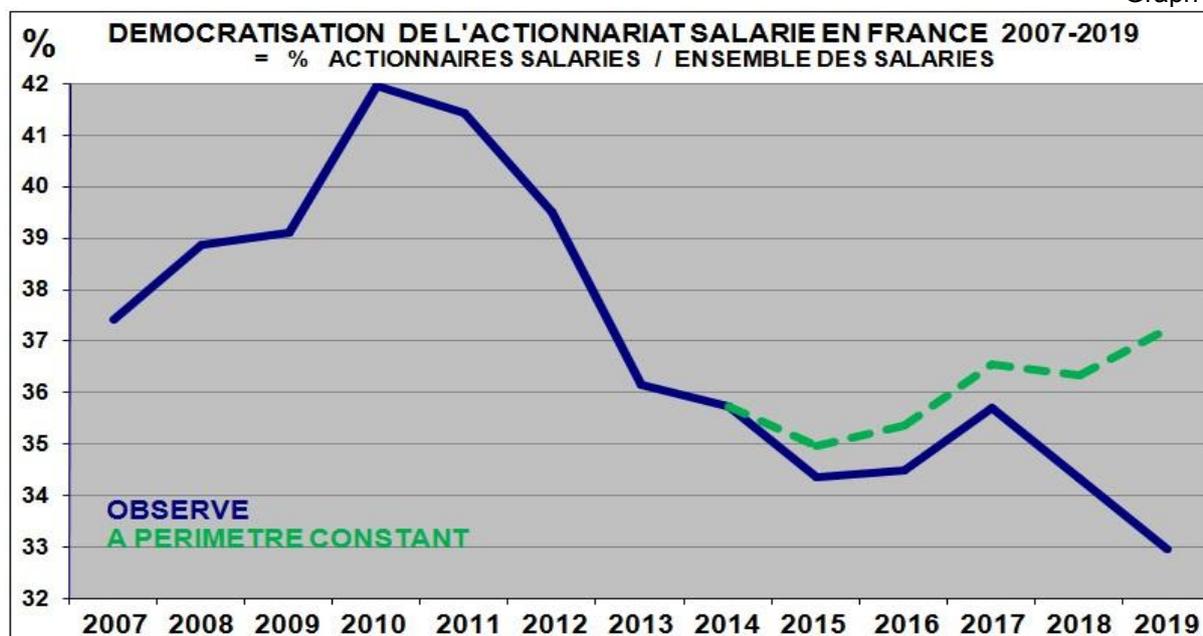

De façon inattendue, une nouvelle baisse du taux de démocratisation s'est produite récemment sur le continent, en particulier dans les grandes entreprises françaises. Cette accentuation résulte de la dynamique particulière de l'emploi dans les grandes entreprises cotées en France. En effet, le taux de croissance de l'emploi au cours des dix dernières années a été nettement plus important dans les entreprises cotées en France (+2.8% par an) qu'en Allemagne (+1.8%) et au Royaume Uni (+1.3%). Cette différences s'est fortement accentuée puisque sur les deux dernières années, la croissance a été de 10.3% en France contre 6% en Allemagne et 2.3% seulement outre-Manche (Graphique 7C).

Cette croissance des emplois est intervenue principalement hors d'Europe et l'extension des plans d'actionnariat salarié rencontre des freins qui ne permettent pas de suivre le même rythme, d'où la baisse apparente du taux de démocratisation de l'actionnariat salarié dans les grandes entreprises françaises.

L'impact de ce développement particulier apparaît lorsqu'on compare l'évolution du taux de démocratisation observé et à périmètre constant (Graphique 2). A périmètre constant, le taux de démocratisation est remonté de 35 à 37% en France au cours des années récentes. On y voit l'effet du retour à une politique plus volontaire de promotion de l'actionnariat salarié.

En conclusion, il devient plus crucial encore pour les grandes entreprises françaises de pouvoir étendre leurs dispositifs d'actionnariat salarié à leurs implantations hors frontières.

2. Pour la part détenue par les salariés dans les grandes entreprises européennes, la tendance est nettement à la hausse depuis notre premier Recensement en 2006.

Cependant, une légère baisse apparaissait déjà lors du Recensement précédent. Elle est encore plus marquée en 2019, la part des salariés revenant ainsi de 3.18% en 2017 à 2.85% en 2019 (Graphique 3 page 13). Ce changement résulte pour l'essentiel d'une chute soudaine des parts détenues par les dirigeants exécutifs (voir page 31).

- Gouvernance des entreprises et profit-sharing

En plus de toute l'information sur l'actionnariat salarié et les plans d'actionnariat, ce Recensement comporte des chapitres sur la gouvernance, le profit-sharing et la structure de propriété des entreprises européennes (notamment la représentation des salariés dans les conseils, une réalité aujourd'hui pour 44% des salariés des grandes entreprises), ainsi qu'une comparaison systématique entre les entreprises cotées et les entreprises non-cotées contrôlées par les salariés.

- Liste des cas remarquables de l'actionnariat salarié en Europe

La liste des 102 entreprises européennes les plus remarquables pour l'actionnariat salarié est publiée page 41.

- Les classements du TOP 100 Actionnariat Salarié Europe

Les tableaux du TOP 100 Actionnariat Salarié sont établis sur base de deux classements des 100 plus grandes entreprises européennes pour leur actionnariat salarié (page 46).

- Représentation des salariés dans les conseils

La représentation des salariés dans les conseils d'administration ou de surveillance est usuelle dans beaucoup de grandes entreprises européennes (page 85).

Les actionnaires salariés sont représentés dans les conseils dans 13% des grandes entreprises françaises (celles-ci représentent 34% en termes d'emplois). En France, la représentation des actionnaires salariés dans les conseils est donc plus typique des très grandes entreprises. Cependant, cette représentation est beaucoup moins fréquente dans les autres pays européens. Quant à la représentation des salariés dans les conseils, elle est de règle pour 44% des salariés dans les grandes entreprises européennes.

- Profit-sharing

Sauf en France (où la loi le rend obligatoire), le profit-sharing n'est pratiqué que par un très petit nombre d'entreprises, - 7% de toutes les entreprises cotées (page 102).

- Droits de vote de l'actionnariat salarié

Dans la plupart des pays européens, aucune discrimination n'est faite en faveur ou à l'encontre des droits de vote de l'actionnariat salarié. Par contre, des discriminations significatives sont à constater dans six pays (page 105).

- Les entreprises cotées et celles, non-cotées, contrôlées par les salariés

Il a parfois été affirmé que les entreprises non-cotées contrôlées par leurs salariés auraient mieux résisté à la crise financière que les entreprises cotées en bourse. La comparaison systématique des deux groupes donne une meilleure information à ce propos (page 108).

- La structure actionnariale des entreprises cotées européennes

Ce Recensement donne une information sur l'existence ou non d'un actionnaire de contrôle dans chaque entreprise cotée européenne significative. Huit catégories d'actionnaires de contrôle sont identifiées: dirigeant exécutif, investisseur financier privé, famille, fondation, investisseur industriel, fondateurs, état, salariés. Le développement de l'actionnariat salarié est fortement influencé par l'existence ou non d'un actionnaire de contrôle (Graphe 70 page 123).

- Base de données des entreprises européennes

Ce Recensement est basé sur une base de données complète de toutes les grandes entreprises cotées européennes (2.406 entreprises, soit 25% de toutes les entreprises cotées, mais 99% de la capitalisation totale et 96% en termes d'emploi, donnant donc une image quasi-exhaustive de l'ensemble des entreprises cotées) et de toutes les grandes entreprises non-cotées contrôlées majoritairement par leurs salariés (les 331 entreprises qui occupent 100 personnes et plus) (page 132).

ÉVOLUTION
DE L'ACTIONNARIAT SALARIÉ
EN EUROPE

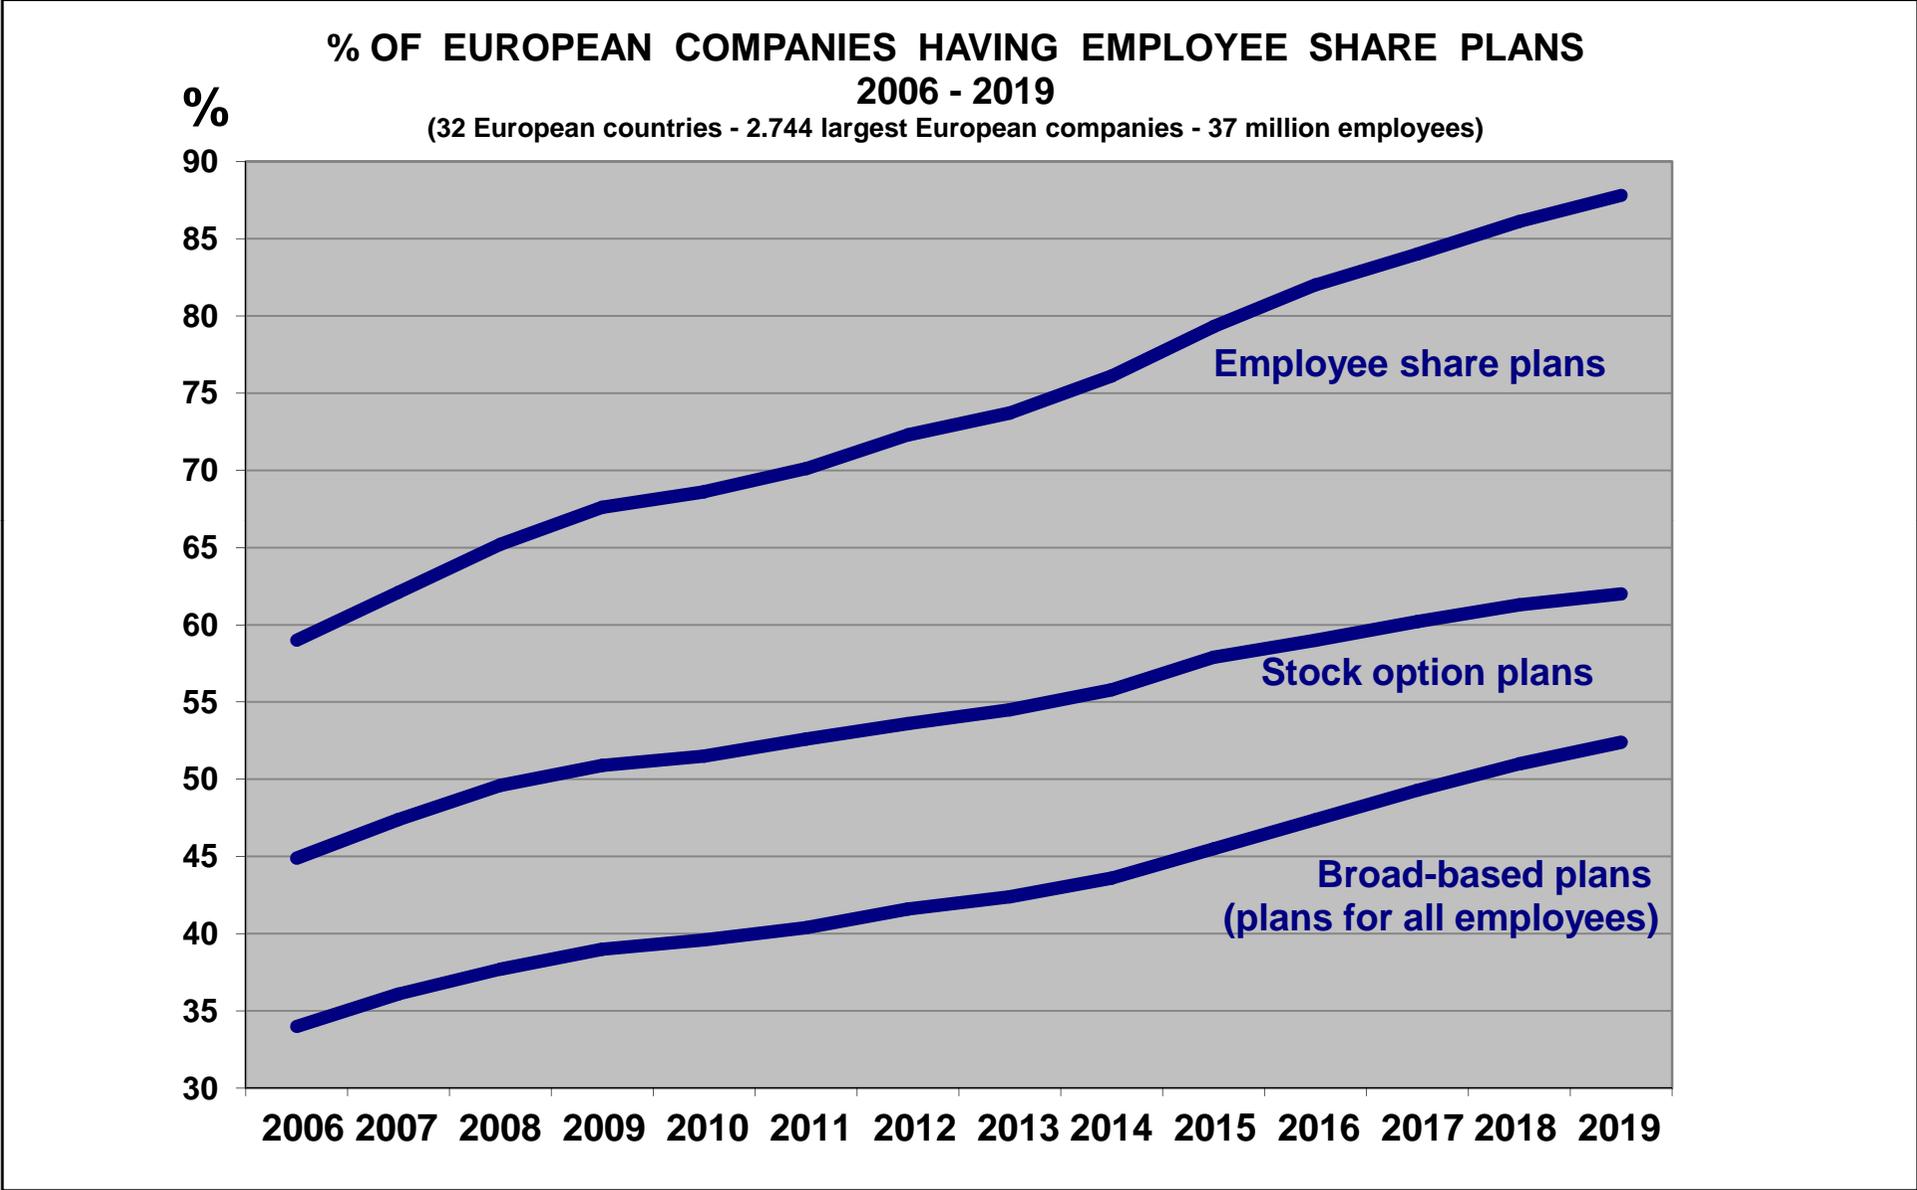

2006-2019

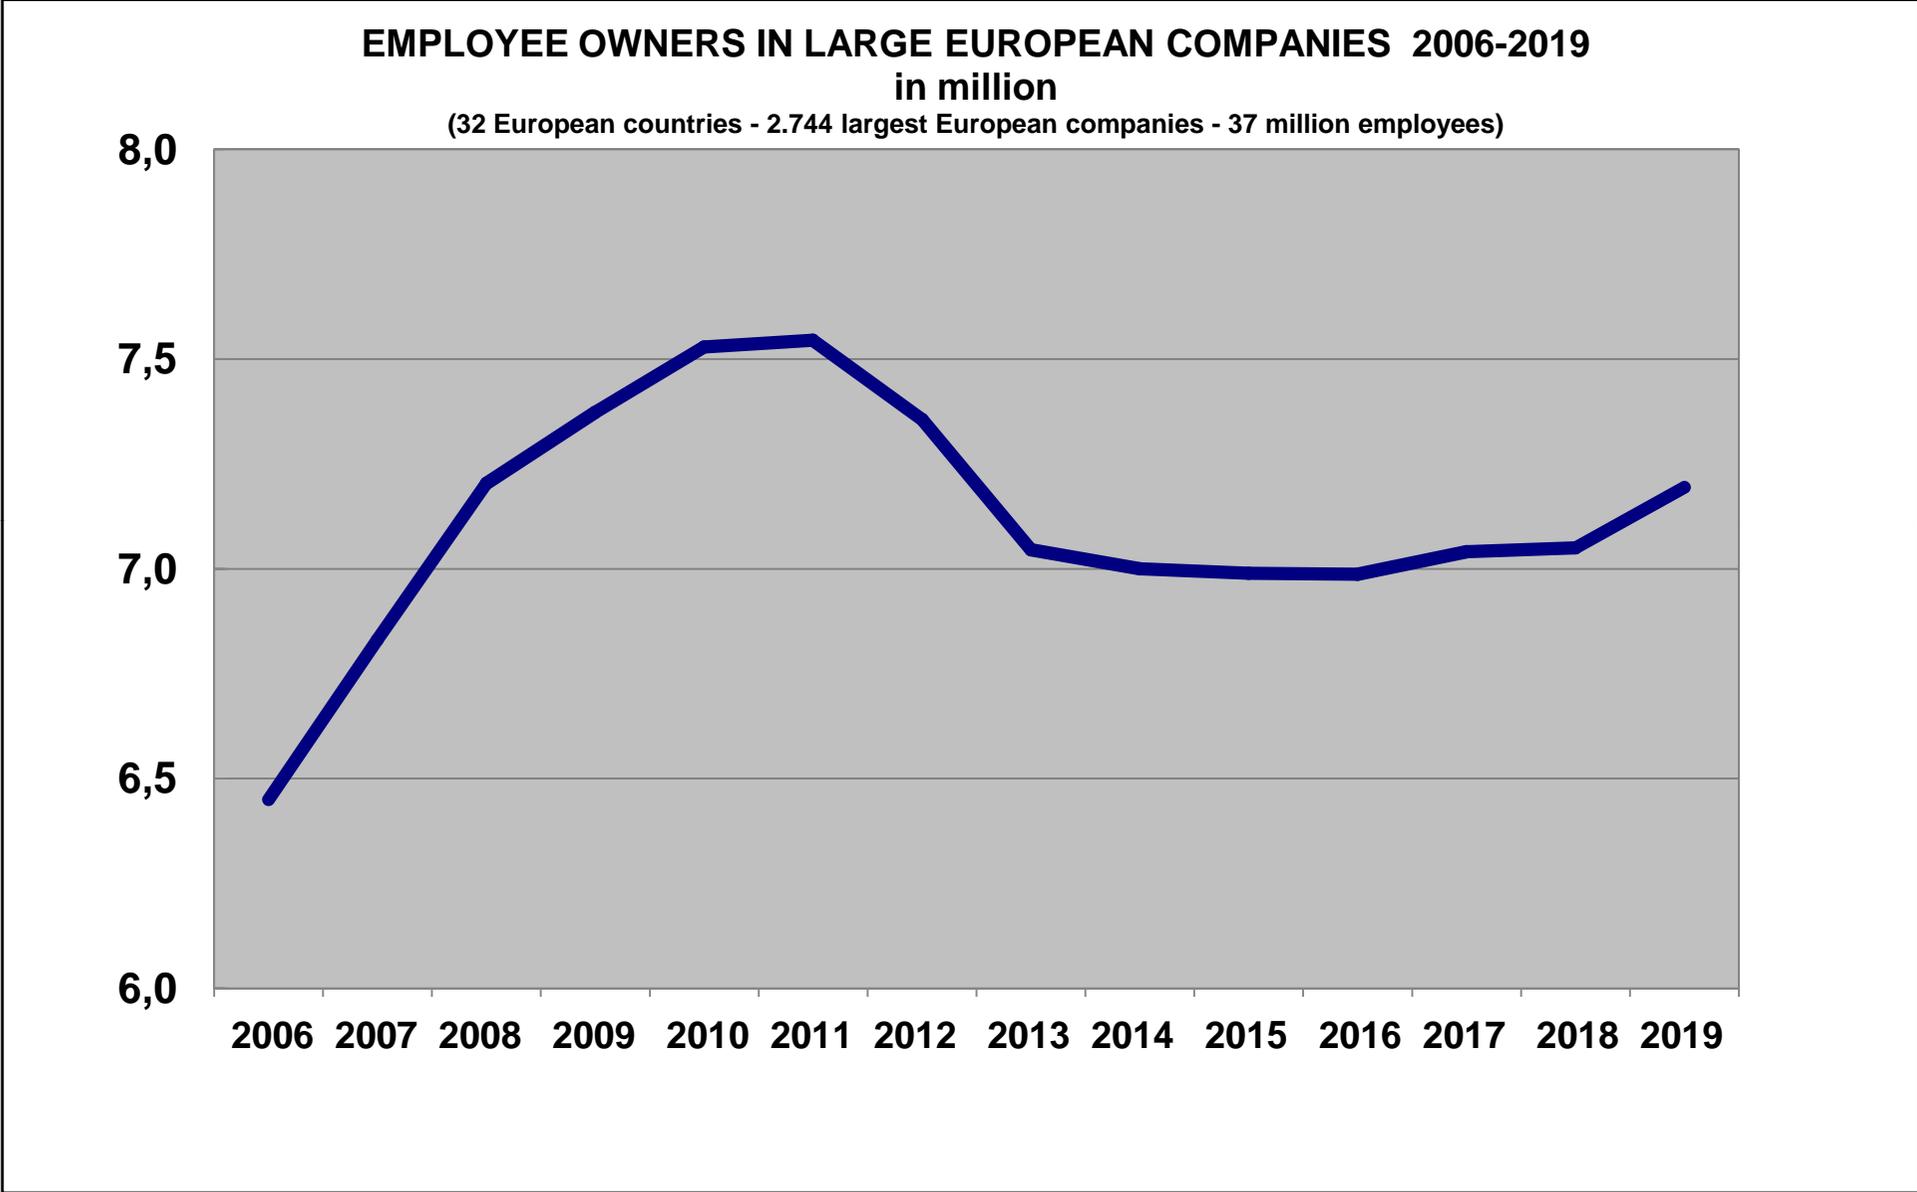

EVOLUTION DE L'ACTIONNARIAT SALARIE EN EUROPE

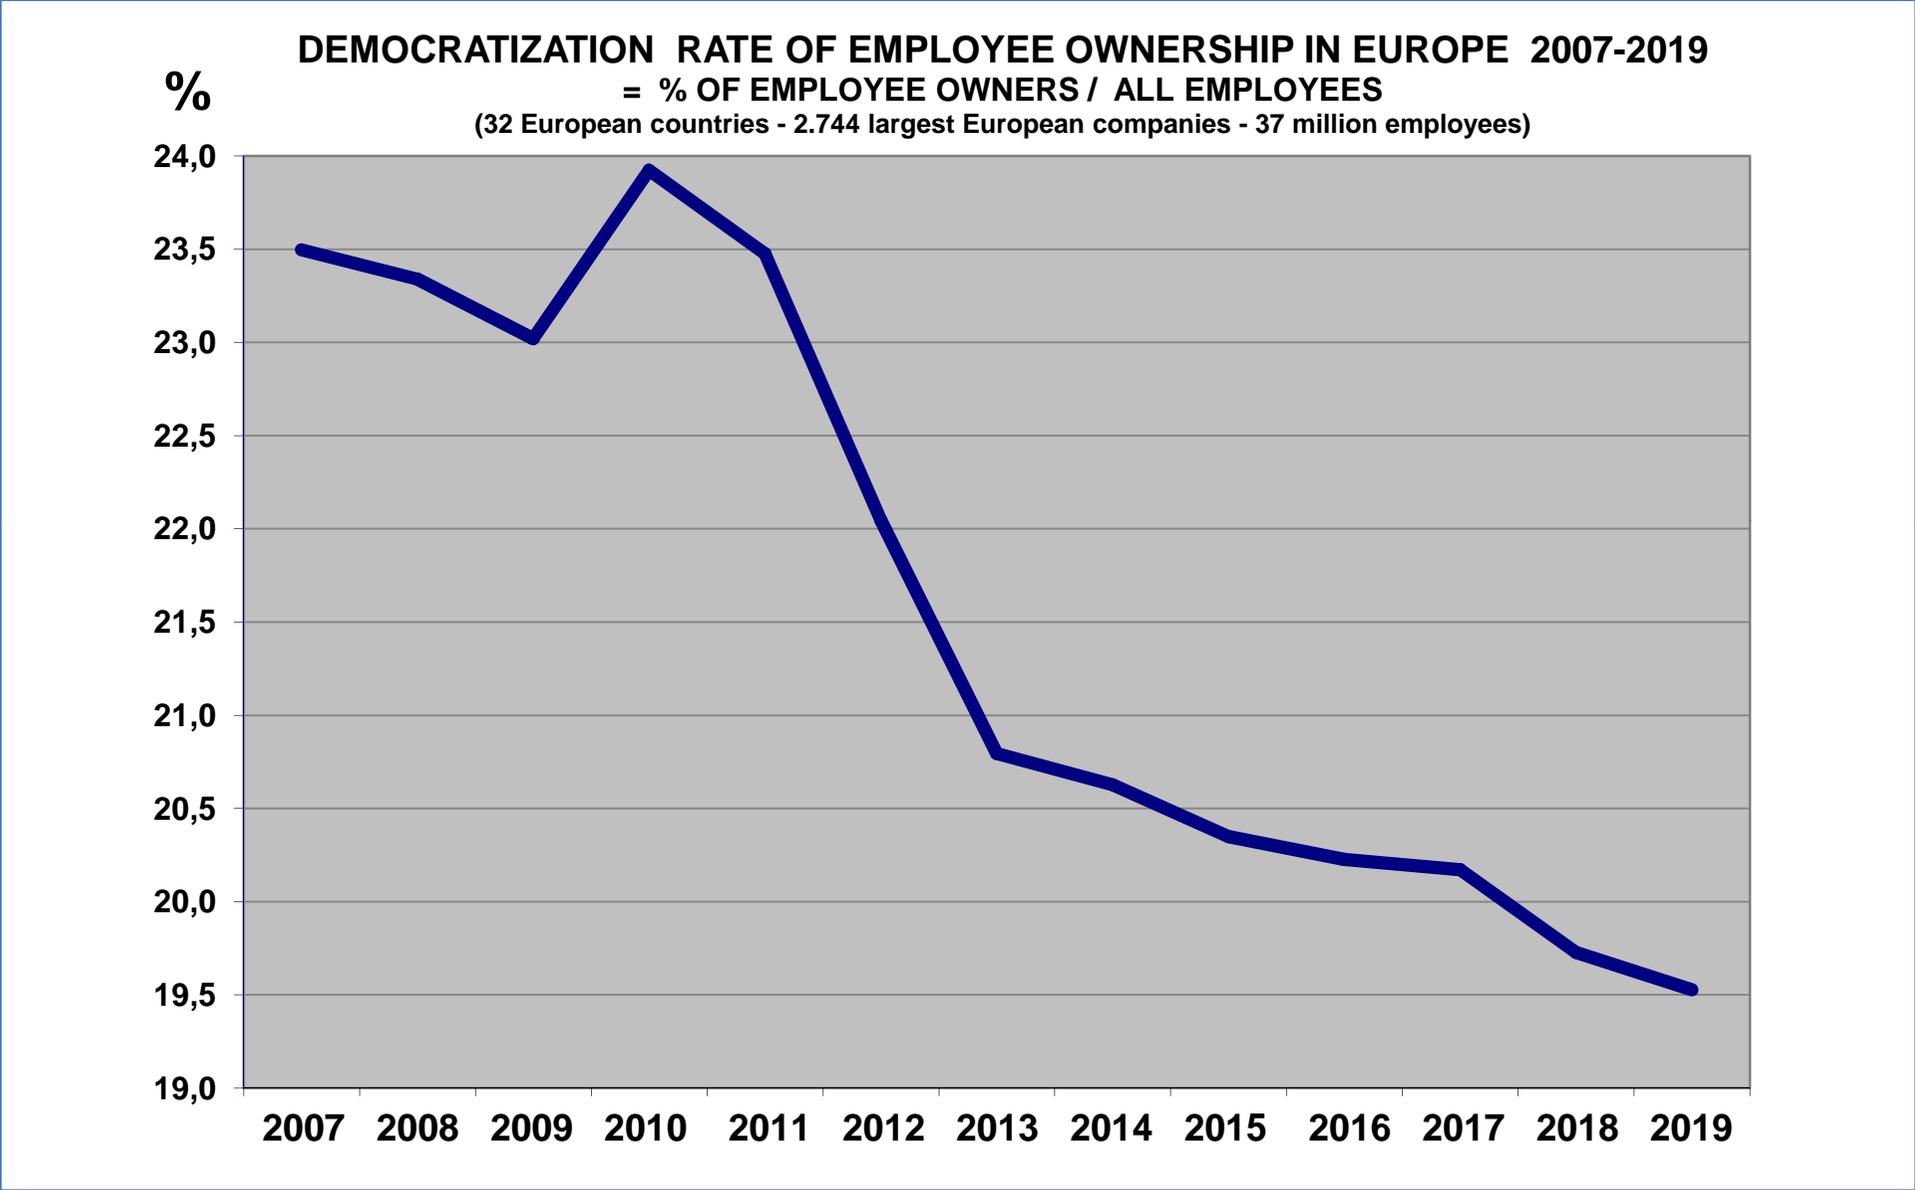

- Il est remarquable de voir que la part détenue par les salariés dans les grandes entreprises européennes a poursuivi sa croissance à travers la crise européenne, de 2,37% en 2006 à 2,85% en 2019 (Graphique 3), soit 350 milliards d'Euro en mai 2019 (Graphique 4) et une remontée à 400 milliards début 2020. Cependant, la part des salariés a chuté de 3,18% en 2017 à 2,85% en 2019. Ce retournement résulte pour l'essentiel d'une baisse soudaine des parts détenues par les dirigeants exécutifs (cf page 31).
- Les grandes entreprises européennes dotées de plans d'actionnariat salarié ont augmenté sans discontinuer en nombre et en pourcentage: 89% ont des plans d'actionnariat salarié en 2019, 62% ont des plans de stock options et 52% ont des plans pour tous les salariés contre 34% en 2006. Une accélération est observée depuis cinq ans pour les plans "pour tous", et une légère décélération pour les plans de stock options (Graphique 5).
- Le nombre d'actionnaires salariés a légèrement diminué de 2011 à 2014, avant de rebondir (Graphique 6).
- Cependant, le taux de démocratisation de l'actionnariat salarié (mesuré par la proportion d'actionnaires salariés parmi l'ensemble des salariés) a baissé sensiblement, de 24% en 2010 à 19,5% en 2019 et la chute s'est encore accélérée récemment (Graphique 7A).
- De plus, un divorce était apparu entre le Royaume Uni et l'Europe continentale. Une chute sous les 20% était observée sur le continent, tandis qu'à l'inverse, le taux de démocratisation grimpait à plus de 25% outre-Manche (Graphique 7B). Le rôle de politiques économiques divergentes était mis en cause: Le Royaume Uni avait fait le choix d'incitants plus volontaires pour l'actionnariat des salariés alors que les hésitations prévalaient sur le continent.
- De façon inattendue, une nouvelle baisse du taux de démocratisation s'est produite récemment sur le continent, en particulier dans les grandes entreprises françaises. Cette accentuation résulte de la dynamique particulière de l'emploi dans les grandes entreprises cotées en France. En effet, le taux de croissance de l'emploi au cours des dix dernières années a été nettement plus important dans les entreprises cotées en France (+2.8% par an) qu'en Allemagne (+1.8%) et au Royaume Uni (+1.3%). Cette différence s'est encore accentuée au cours des deux dernières années, avec une croissance de 10.3% en France contre 6% en Allemagne et 2.3% seulement outre-Manche (Graphique 7C).
- Cette croissance des emplois est intervenue principalement hors d'Europe et l'extension des plans d'actionnariat salarié rencontre des freins qui ne permettent pas de suivre le même rythme, d'où la baisse apparente du taux de démocratisation de l'actionnariat salarié dans les grandes entreprises françaises. L'impact de ce développement particulier apparaît lorsqu'on compare l'évolution du taux de démocratisation observé et à périmètre constant (Graphique 2). A périmètre constant, le taux de démocratisation est remonté de 35 à 37% en France au cours des années récentes. On y voit l'effet du retour à une politique plus volontaire de promotion de l'actionnariat salarié.
- La croissance de la part détenue par les salariés s'observe dans la plupart des grandes entreprises européennes. Ainsi le pourcentage de grandes entreprises où l'actionnariat salarié détient une part "significative" (une part de 1% ou plus) est passé de 46,5% en 2006 à 56,5% en 2019 (Graphique 8).
- La proportion de grandes entreprises qui ont lancé de nouveaux plans d'actionnariat salarié est en nette hausse avec 31% en 2019, soit un nouveau plan tous les 3 ans (Graphique 9).
- Les tableaux 2 à 14 résument les principales observations:
 - Sur l'actionnariat salarié en Europe de 2006 à 2019 (Tables 2-4).
 - Sur les grandes entreprises européennes: capitalisation et emplois (Tables 5-6).
 - Sur les plans d'actionnariat salarié (Tables 7-9).
 - Sur les parts détenues par les salariés de 2006 à 2019 et leur typologie (Tables 10-13).
 - Sur les entreprises cotées et non-cotées dans la base de données EFES (Table 14).

LES ACTIONNAIRES SALARIES

SALARIES ORDINAIRES ET DIRIGEANTS EXECUTIFS

Les salariés et les actionnaires salariés occupent tout un éventail de positions multiples dans des entreprises diverses, petites et grandes, jeunes ou anciennes. Pour l'actionnaire salarié, le point commun est de rassembler sous une même tête la fonction opérationnelle ou exécutive et la propriété. C'est ce qui en fait le succès.

A une extrémité de l'éventail, il y a la figure du créateur d'entreprise. Au départ il en est souvent le propriétaire unique et fréquemment un des premiers salariés. Lorsque l'entreprise grandit, le fondateur cède généralement une partie de ses parts à des investisseurs extérieurs. Cependant, il peut arriver que subsistent, même dans de grandes sociétés cotées, des dirigeants détenant une part importante de l'entreprise. C'est la figure du "dirigeant propriétaire".

A côté dans l'éventail, il y a la figure du dirigeant exécutif recruté pour la fonction. Depuis une quinzaine d'années, la pratique s'est généralisée au Royaume Uni d'imposer à ces dirigeants d'investir une, deux, parfois cinq années de salaires en actions de l'entreprise, sous forme de "shareholding guidelines". Cette pratique commence à se répandre aussi sur le continent.

Puis il y a les multiples formules visant à récompenser sous forme d'actions des individus ou des groupes de salariés sélectionnés, la plus connue étant celle des stock options.

A l'autre bout de l'éventail, il y a les plans d'actionnariat "pour tous", qui proposent généralement aux salariés d'acheter des parts de l'entreprise à moindre prix, ou sous conditions particulières comme dans la coopérative de salariés. Ces plans sont à base volontaire, le choix d'y participer ou non revenant au salarié. Enfin, il y a la distribution d'actions gratuites à tous les salariés, d'après des formules diverses et de plus en plus répandues, qui tendent à faire actionnaires tous les salariés de l'entreprise.

Dans une assez large mesure, les informations fournies dans les rapports annuels des sociétés cotées permettent d'identifier avec précision ces diverses pratiques.

- Le nombre d'actionnaires salariés dans chaque pays européen apparaît au Tableau 15, de 2007 à 2019, de même que les variations observées au cours de la période complète (de 2007 à 2019), et pour les années récentes (de 2011 à 2019).
- La capitalisation détenue par les salariés de 2006 à 2019 est publiée au Tableau 16 pour l'ensemble des salariés, et en moyenne pour chacun d'entre eux. Quant aux parts respectives des dirigeants exécutifs et des salariés ordinaires, elles sont détaillées au Tableau 17.
- La part moyenne détenue par chaque actionnaire salarié a augmenté de 122% entre 2009 et 2019 (de 21.900€ à 48.600€) lorsqu'on inclut les dirigeants exécutifs et les salariés ordinaires, et de 113% pour les seuls salariés ordinaires (de 12.700€ à 27.100€) (Graphique 10).
- Les parts détenues par les salariés ont crû un peu plus pour les dirigeants exécutifs que pour les salariés ordinaires de 2007 à 2017. Ceci est à mettre en relation avec les politiques négatives adoptées par plusieurs pays à la suite de la crise, avec leur impact négatif sur la démocratisation de l'actionnariat salarié (Graphique 11). Cependant, une chute soudaine de la part des dirigeants exécutifs est apparue récemment, de 1,49% à 1,26%. C'est dû principalement au fait que beaucoup d'entreprises où la figure du "dirigeant propriétaire" est encore prévalente ont enregistré de mauvaises performances et une forte chute de leur valeur boursière. Le déclin de la figure du "dirigeant-propriétaire" peut aussi être observé à plusieurs pages de ce Recensement, notamment au Graphique71 page 125.
- Enfin, le tableau détaillé des parts détenues par les dirigeants exécutifs et par les salariés ordinaires dans chaque pays européen révèle de très importantes inégalités individuelles (Table 18).

LES ENTREPRISES

LES ENTREPRISES EUROPEENNES

- Ce Recensement est basé sur la base de données EFES des grandes entreprises européennes. Pour le Recensement Economique en 2019, 2.744 entreprises ont été compilées (Table 19). Ces 2.744 entreprises comprennent:
 - Toutes les entreprises cotées dont la capitalisation boursière a atteint 200 millions d'Euro ou plus aux mois de mai des années 2006 à 2019. Le Recensement inclut ainsi toutes les entreprises cotées européennes de taille significative, sans exception.
 - Les entreprises non-cotées dont les salariés détiennent 50% ou plus, et qui emploient au moins 100 personnes. Pour une grande part, ces entreprises non-cotées détenues majoritairement par les salariés sont des coopératives de salariés.

En 2019, 2.406 entreprises cotées sont incluses dans le Recensement, ainsi que 338 entreprises non-cotées (parmi lesquelles les 168 plus grandes coopératives de salariés en Europe). En nombre, les 2.406 plus grandes entreprises cotées représentent 25% de toutes les sociétés cotées européennes en 2019 (en excluant la gestion d'actifs financiers, les fonds d'investissement et les fonds de placements immobiliers), mais elles comptent pour 99% de la capitalisation boursière totale et pour 96% en termes d'emploi. Ainsi la base de données EFES et ce Recensement donnent une image pratiquement exhaustive de l'actionnariat salarié et de la participation dans les entreprises cotées européennes.

- Liste des cas remarquables de l'actionnariat salarié en Europe

La liste des 102 entreprises européennes les plus remarquables pour l'actionnariat salarié est publiée page 41.

- Proportion d'entreprises cotées dotées de plans d'actionnariat salarié

Le remarquable développement des plans d'actionnariat salarié dans les grandes entreprises européennes de 1945 à 2019 apparaît aux Graphiques 12 et 13. Un développement spectaculaire, soudain et rapide a démarré au milieu des années 1980. Le même développement s'observe dans tous les pays européens, mais avec un décalage de 30 ans entre les pays de tête (Royaume Uni, France et pays nordiques) et ceux qui ferment la marche (Portugal et "nouveaux" Etats membres de l'Union européenne).

- Démocratisation croissante de l'actionnariat salarié

Il est remarquable d'observer que le taux de démocratisation de l'actionnariat salarié (mesuré par la proportion d'actionnaires salarié dans l'ensemble des salariés) augmente au fil du temps dans les grandes entreprises européennes, après le lancement de leur premier plan d'actionnariat, pour tendre vers 40% (Graphique 14). Cela signifie que la balance des risques et des avantages de l'actionnariat salarié est généralement appréciée positivement par les salariés. D'après l'expérience générale des actionnaires salariés européens, les bénéfices de l'actionnariat salarié surpassent les risques.

- Part détenue par les salariés dans chaque grande entreprise européenne

De 0 à 100%, on observe un éventail continu des parts détenues par les salariés dans les grandes entreprises européennes (Graphique 15). Aucun nombre magique n'apparaît ici.

- Les classements du TOP 100 Actionnariat Salarié Europe

Les tableaux du TOP 100 Actionnariat Salarié Europe sont établis sur base de deux classements des 100 plus grandes entreprises européennes pour leur actionnariat salarié (page 46).

LES PAYS

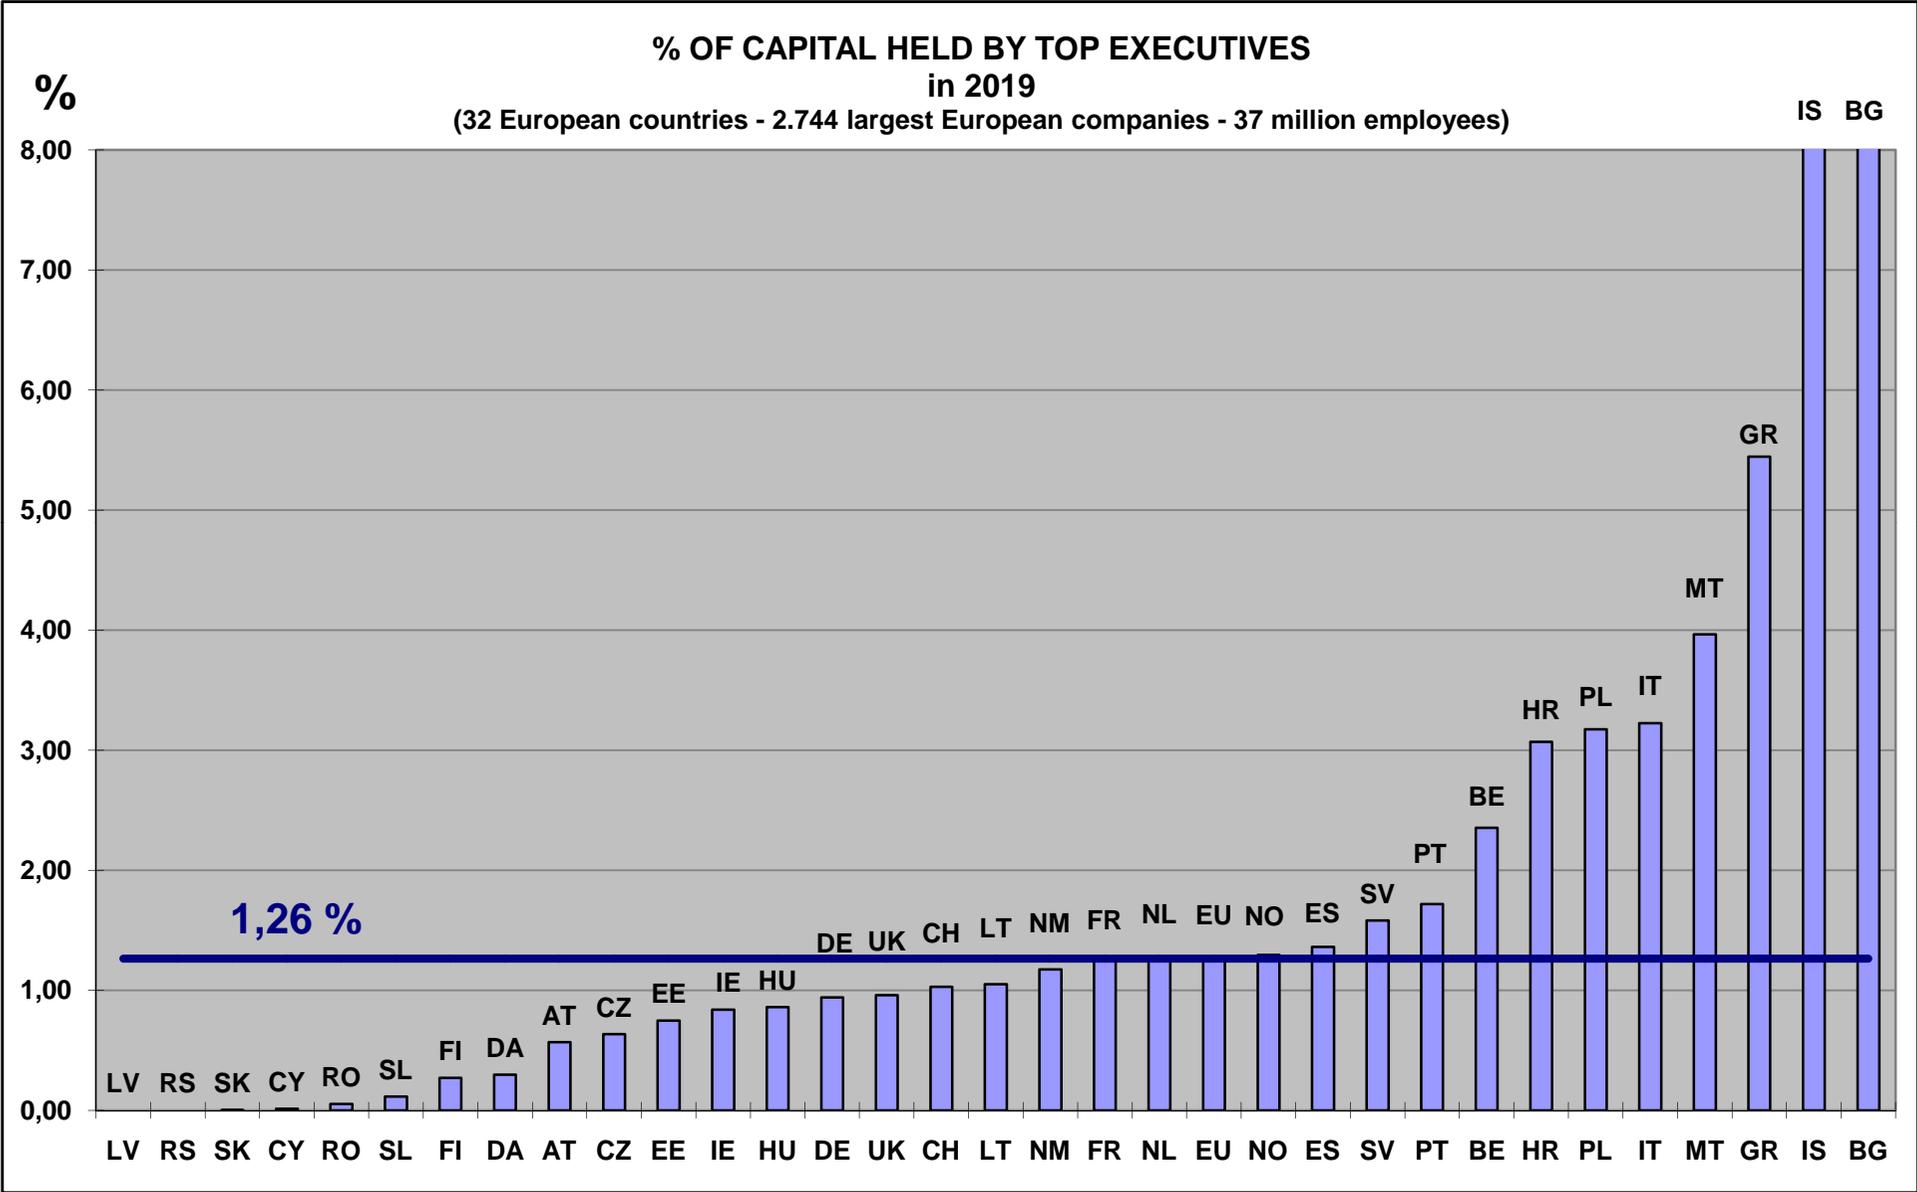

LES PAYS EUROPEENS

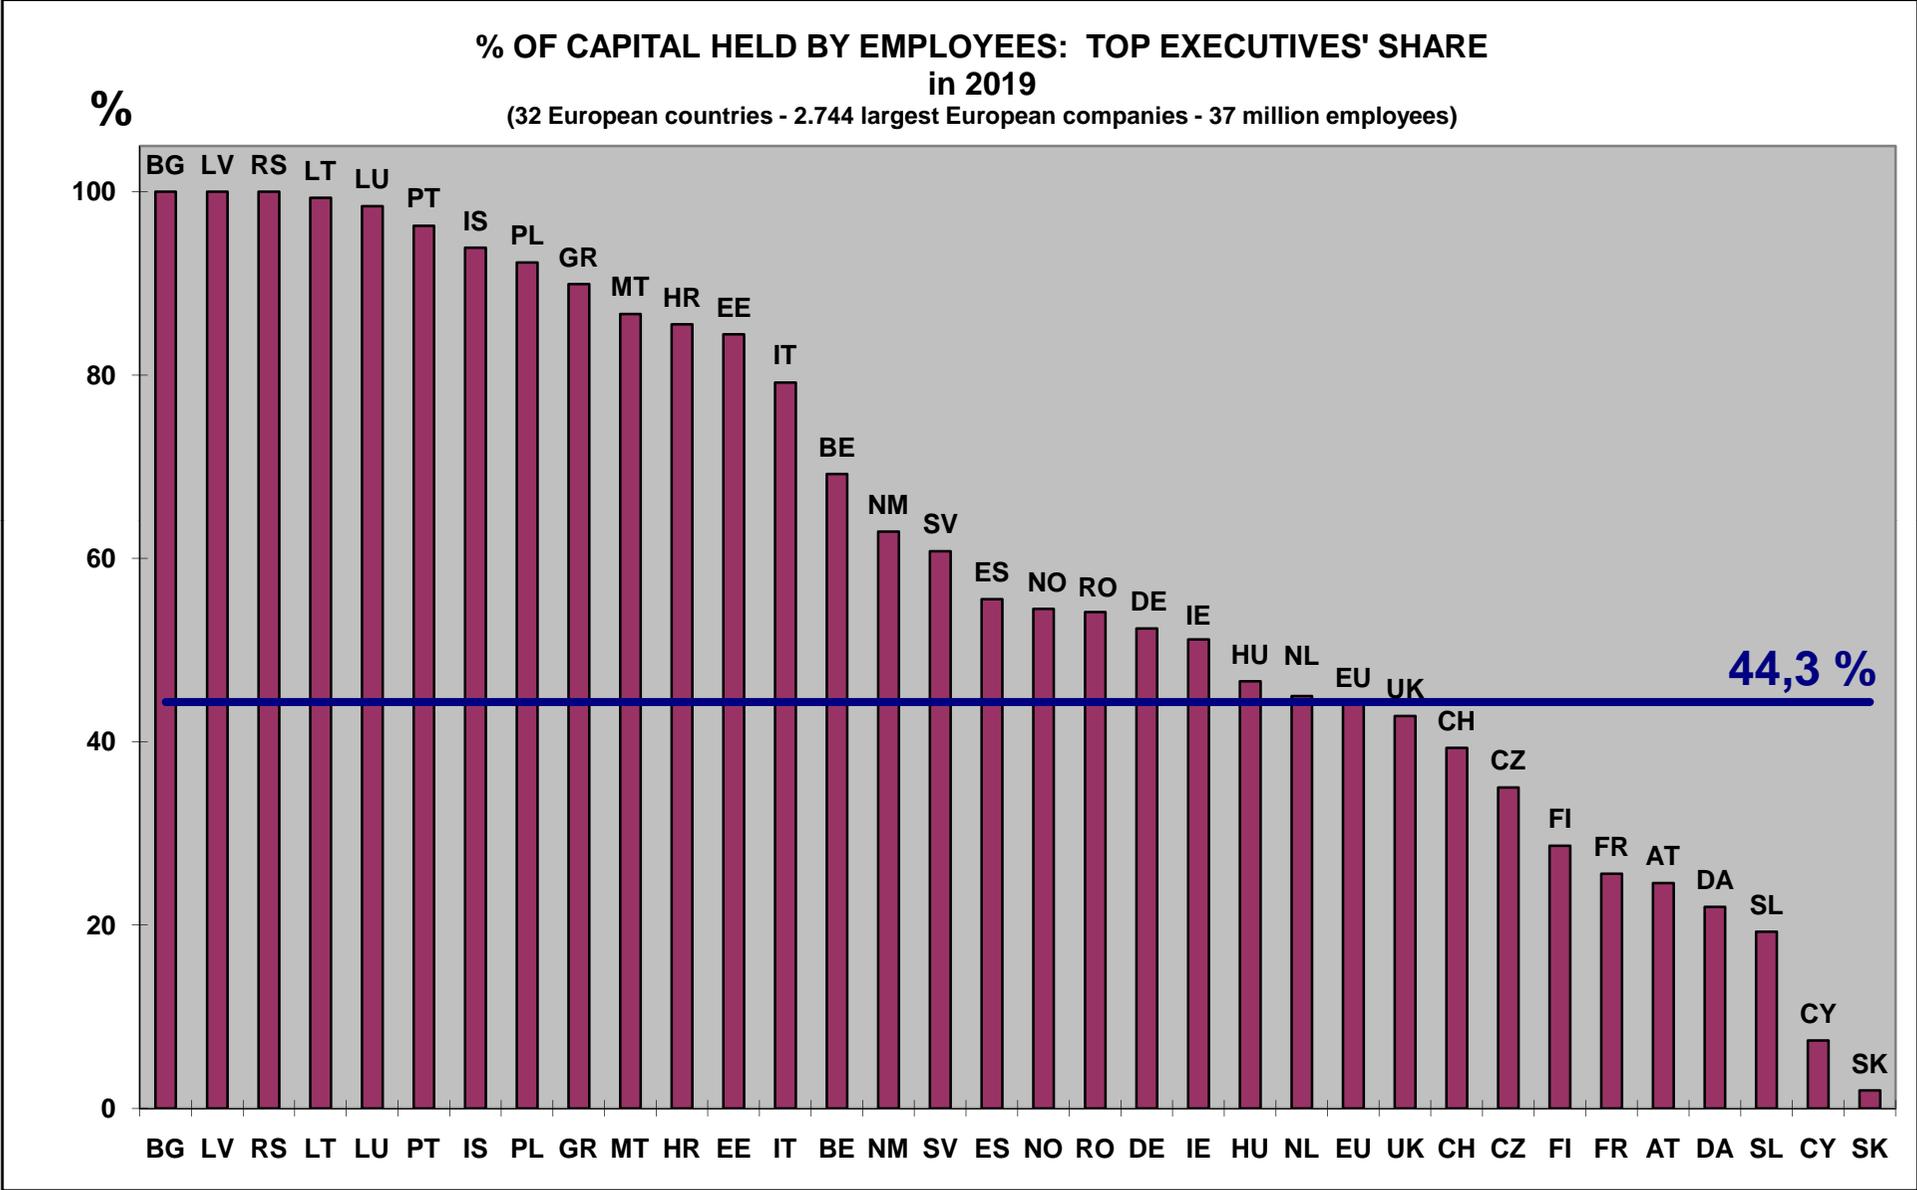

Pour la première fois, ce nouveau Recensement intègre aussi la Serbie aux côtés de 31 autres pays européens. Ce chapitre permet de comparer les pays européens entre eux, pour toutes les principales caractéristiques de l'actionnariat salarié. De manière générale, l'actionnariat salarié apparaît plus développé et démocratisé en France, au Royaume Uni et dans les pays nordiques, comparés à l'Europe centrale et orientale et aux pays méridionaux.

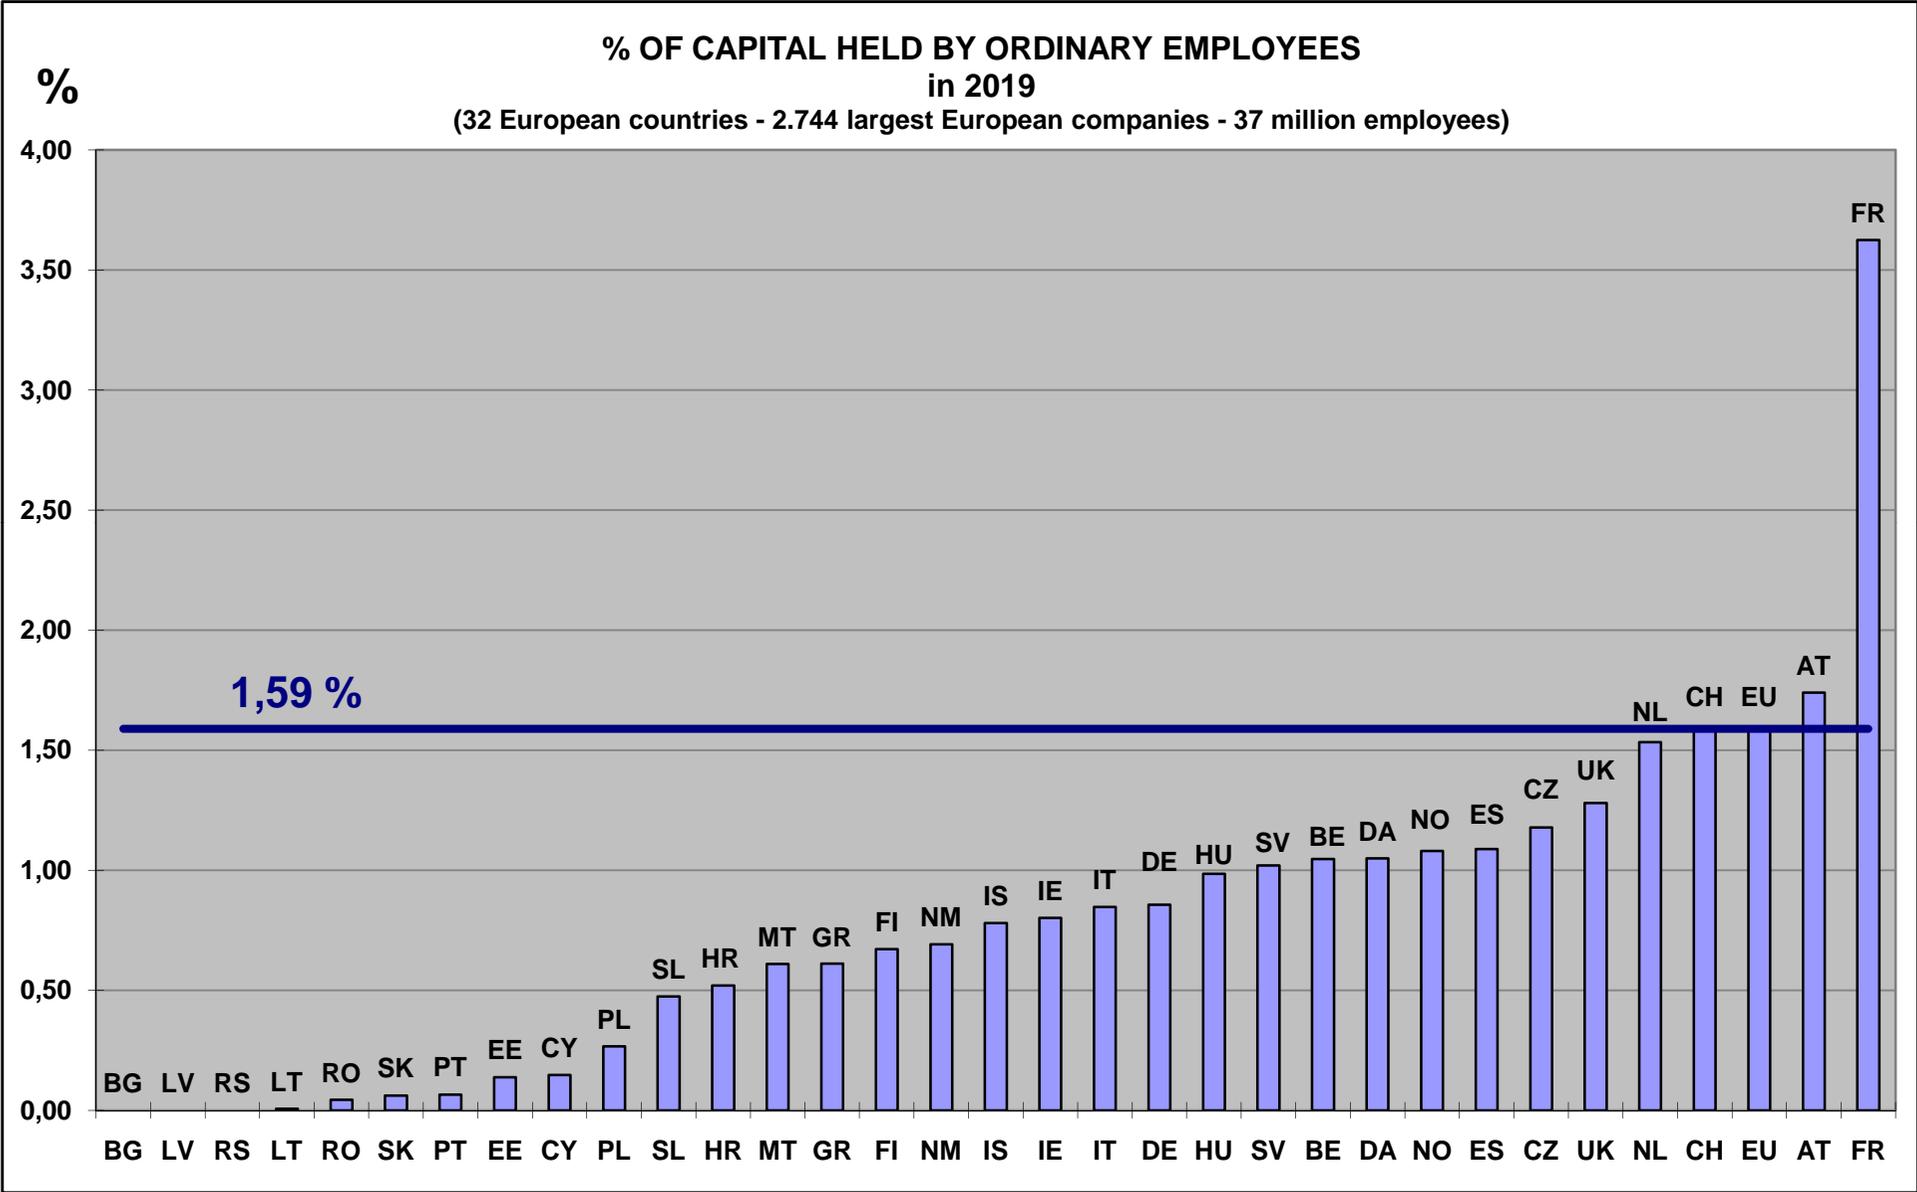

- Première comparaison, la part détenue par les salariés dans les grandes entreprises européennes est à 2,85% pour la moyenne européenne en 2019 (Graphique 16). Celle-ci se répartit de façon variable entre dirigeants exécutifs et salariés ordinaires, comme on le voit au Graphique 17. Les Graphiques 18-22 détaillent les parts relatives des dirigeants exécutifs et des salariés ordinaires dans chaque pays européen. Les parts relatives des dirigeants sont plus importantes dans les pays d'Europe centre/orientale et du sud, tandis que les salariés ordinaires sont mieux représentés en France, au Royaume Uni et dans les pays nordiques.
- Le Graphique 23 montre que 94% des grandes entreprises européennes ont un actionnariat salarié. Seuls quelques pays se situent fort en-dessous de la moyenne (tous ceux-ci comptant au nombre des "nouveaux" Etats membre de l'Union européenne).
- De même pour les 88% de grandes entreprises européennes qui ont des plans d'actionnariat salarié: seuls quelques pays se situent fort en-dessous de la moyenne (Graphique 24).
- Pour les plans d'actionnariat salarié "pour tous", on voit au Graphique 25 le large éventail qui différencie les pays européens. 52% des grandes entreprises européennes ont des plans "pour tous", alors qu'on est à moins de 30% dans les pays d'Europe centre/orientale et du sud, et à plus de 50% en France, au Royaume Uni et dans les pays nordiques.
- Fortes différences aussi pour la proportion de grandes entreprises qui ont lancé de nouveaux plans d'actionnariat salarié en 2019 (Graphique 26), ainsi que pour la part des grandes entreprises qui ont des plans de stock options (Graphique 27).
- Les différences sont plus marquées encore pour le taux de démocratisation de l'actionnariat salarié (mesuré par la proportion d'actionnaires salariés dans l'ensemble des salariés), avec 20% en moyenne mais 0% pour la Lettonie et 33% en France (Graphique 29).
- L'actionnariat salarié "significatif" (avec une détention de 1% ou plus) apparaît aux Graphiques 30-31 pour l'ensemble des grandes entreprises et pour les seules entreprises cotées, tandis que l'actionnariat salarié "stratégique" (détention: 6% et plus) apparaît aux Graphiques 32-34. Ici encore, le même contraste apparaît entre France, Royaume Uni et pays nordiques, par comparaison avec les pays d'Europe centre/orientale et du sud.
- Pour la proportion des grandes entreprises qui publient la part détenue par les actionnaires salariés, la France se situe fort au-dessus de tous les autres pays (Graphique 35).
- Pour le nombre d'actionnaires salariés, la France et la Grande Bretagne se détachent fortement des autres pays, tandis que l'Allemagne fait figure de nain en comparaison (Graphique 37).
- La croissance ou la décroissance du nombre d'actionnaires salariés dans chaque pays européen est observée pour la période de 2007 à 2019 (Graphique 38), et pour la période récente de 2011 à 2019 (Graphique 39).
- Enfin, la capitalisation totale détenue par les salariés dans chaque pays européen en 2019 apparaît au Graphique 40, tandis que l'avoir moyen détenu par chaque actionnaire salarié dans les différents pays est renseigné au Graphique 41.

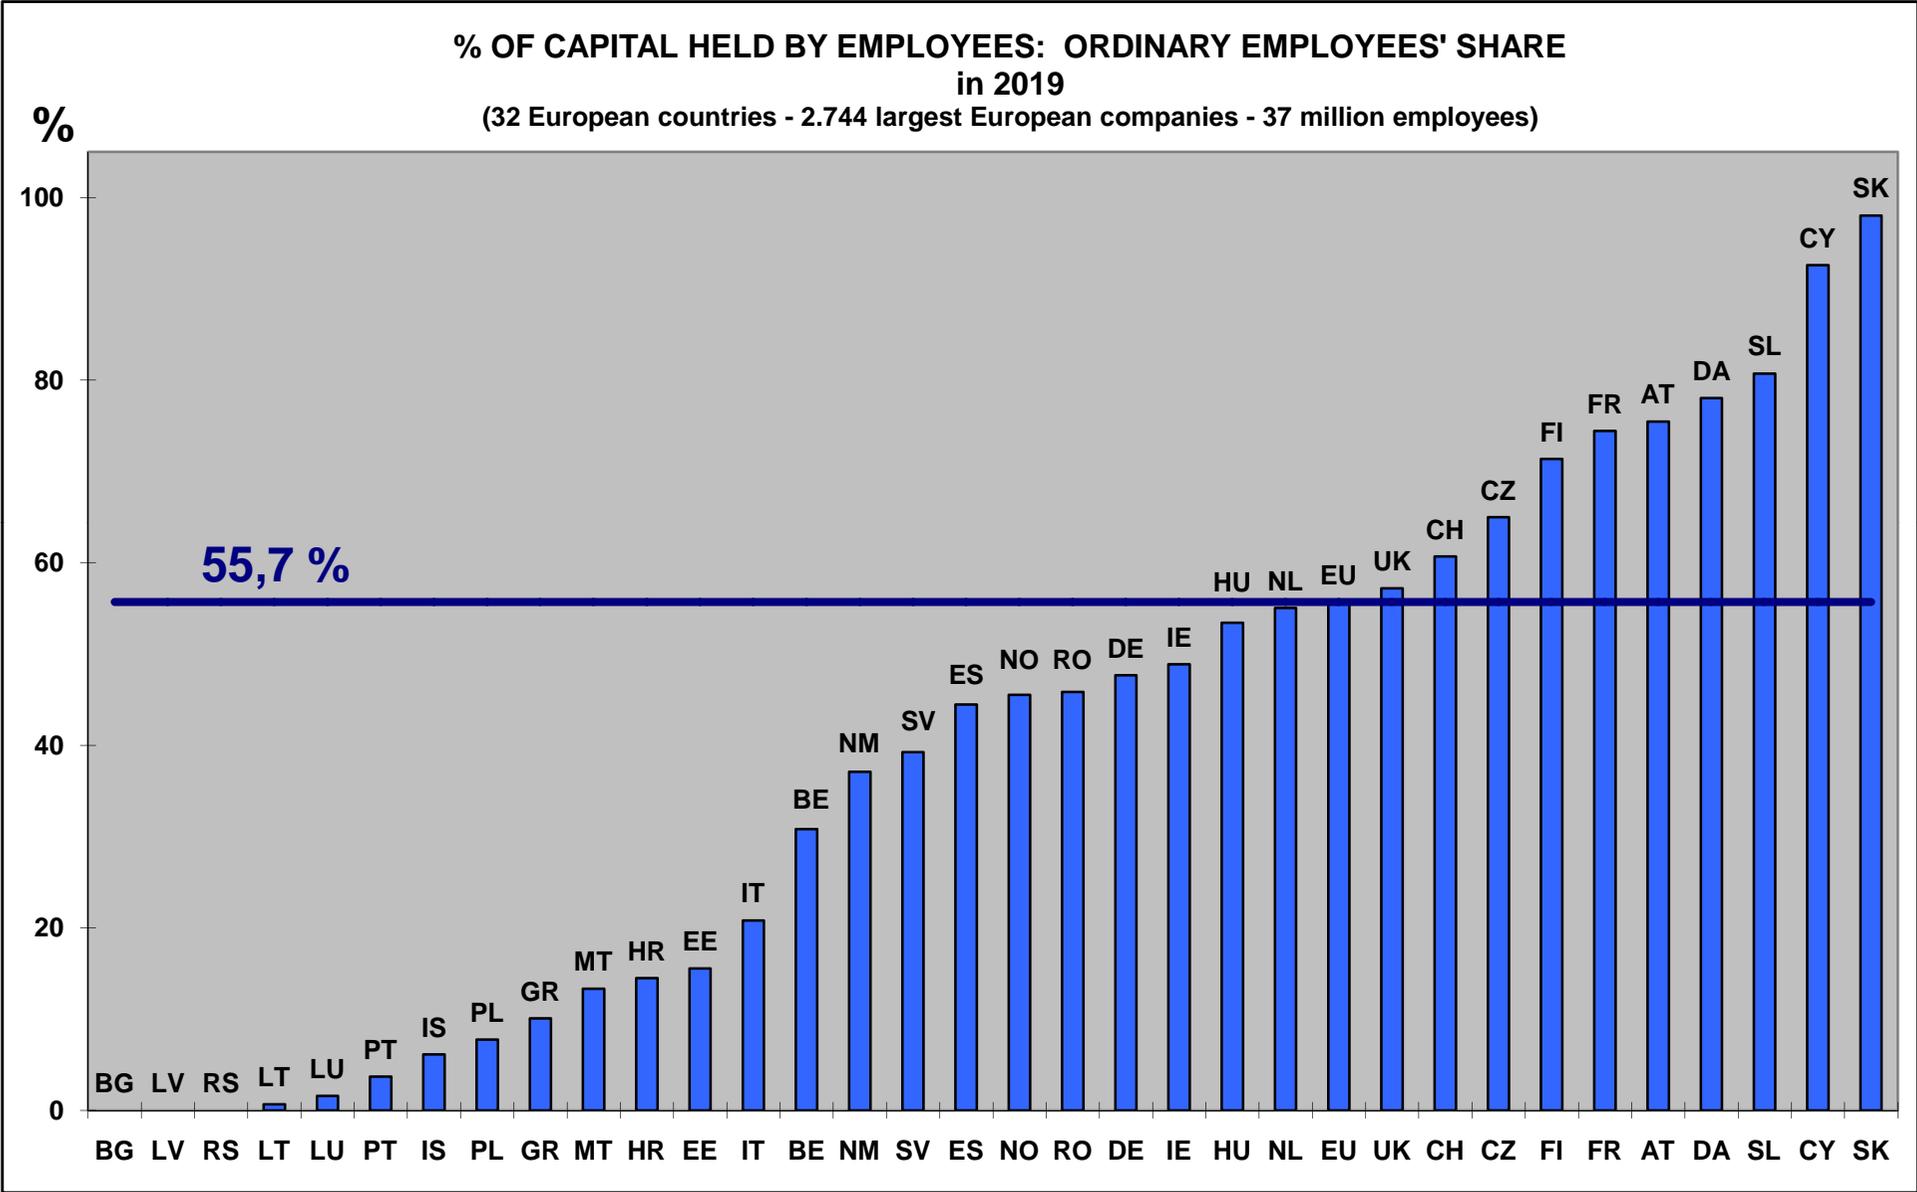

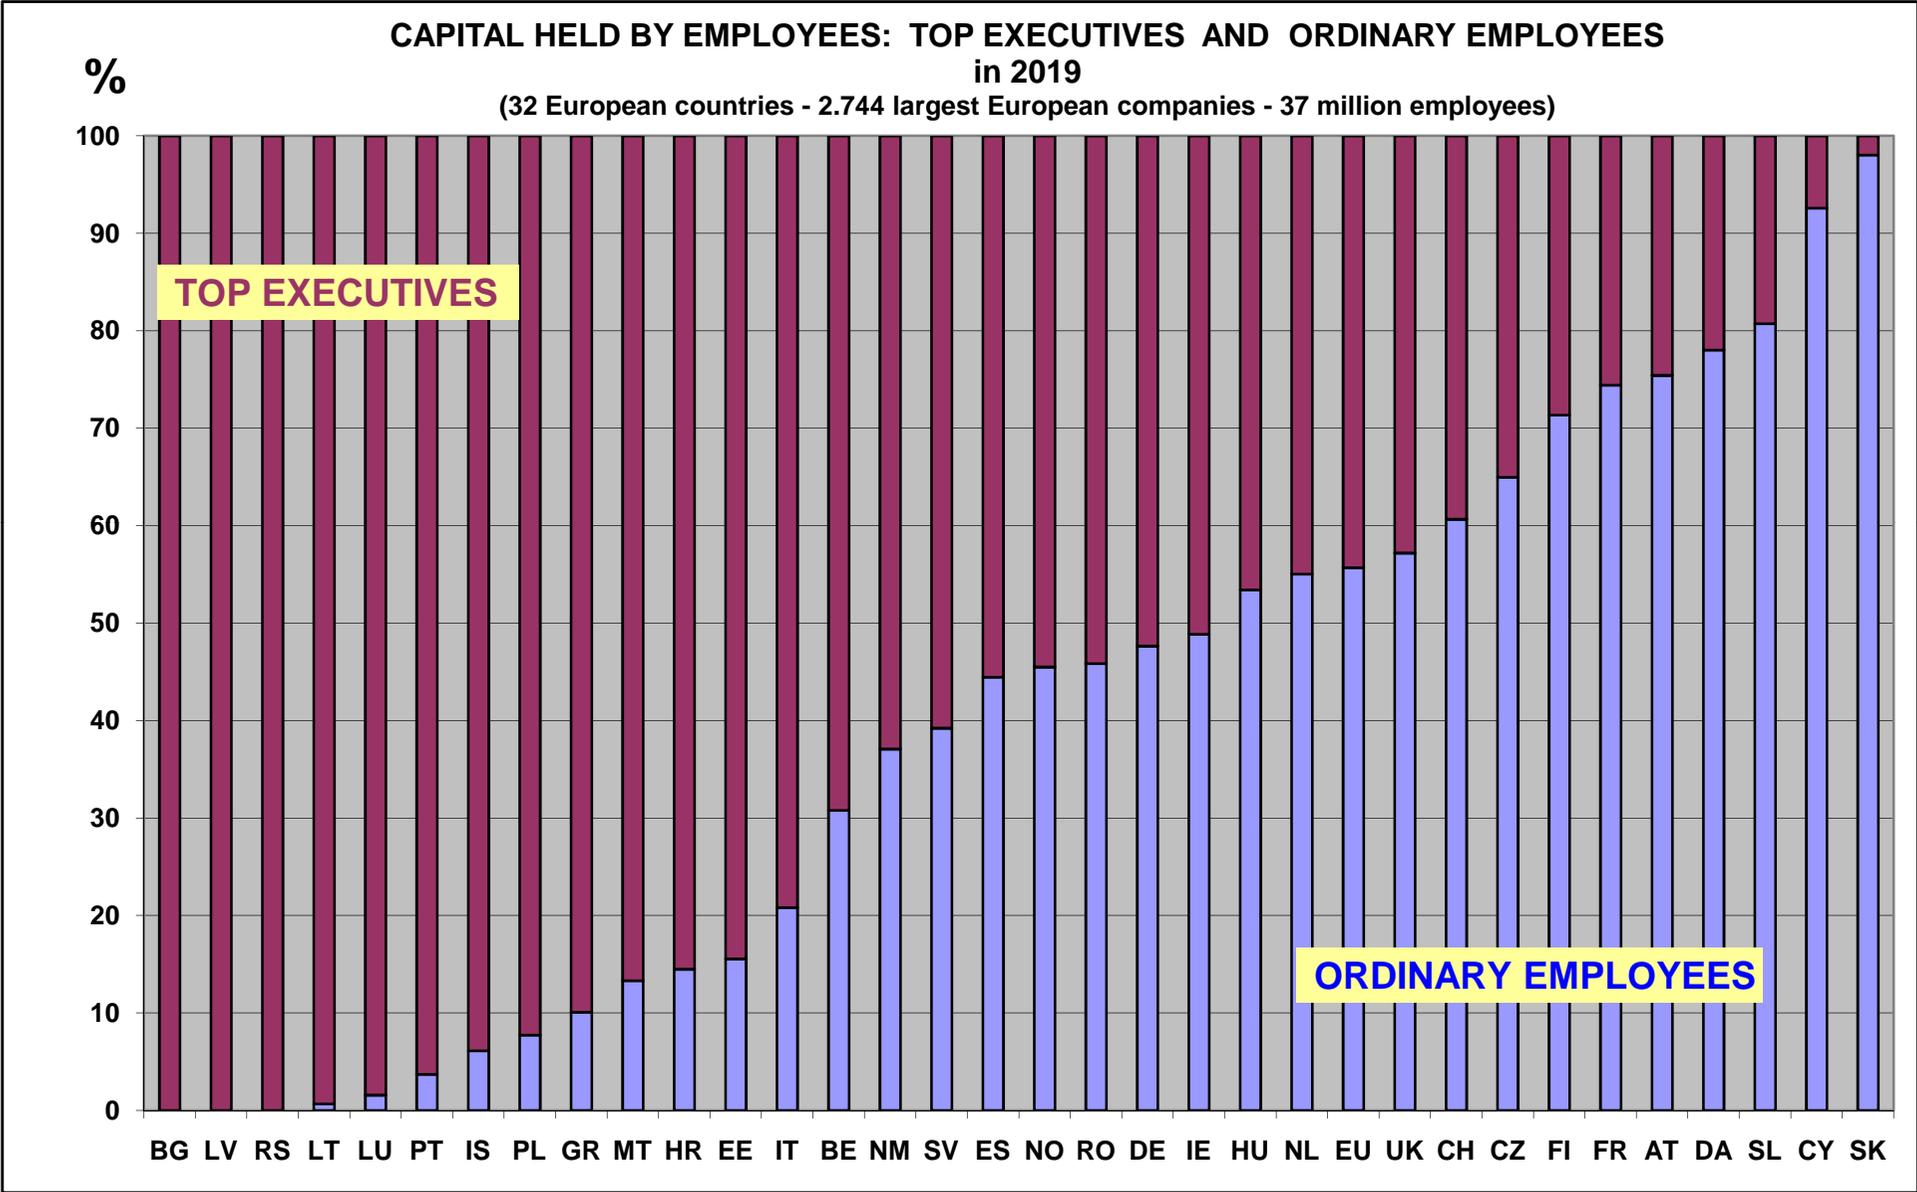

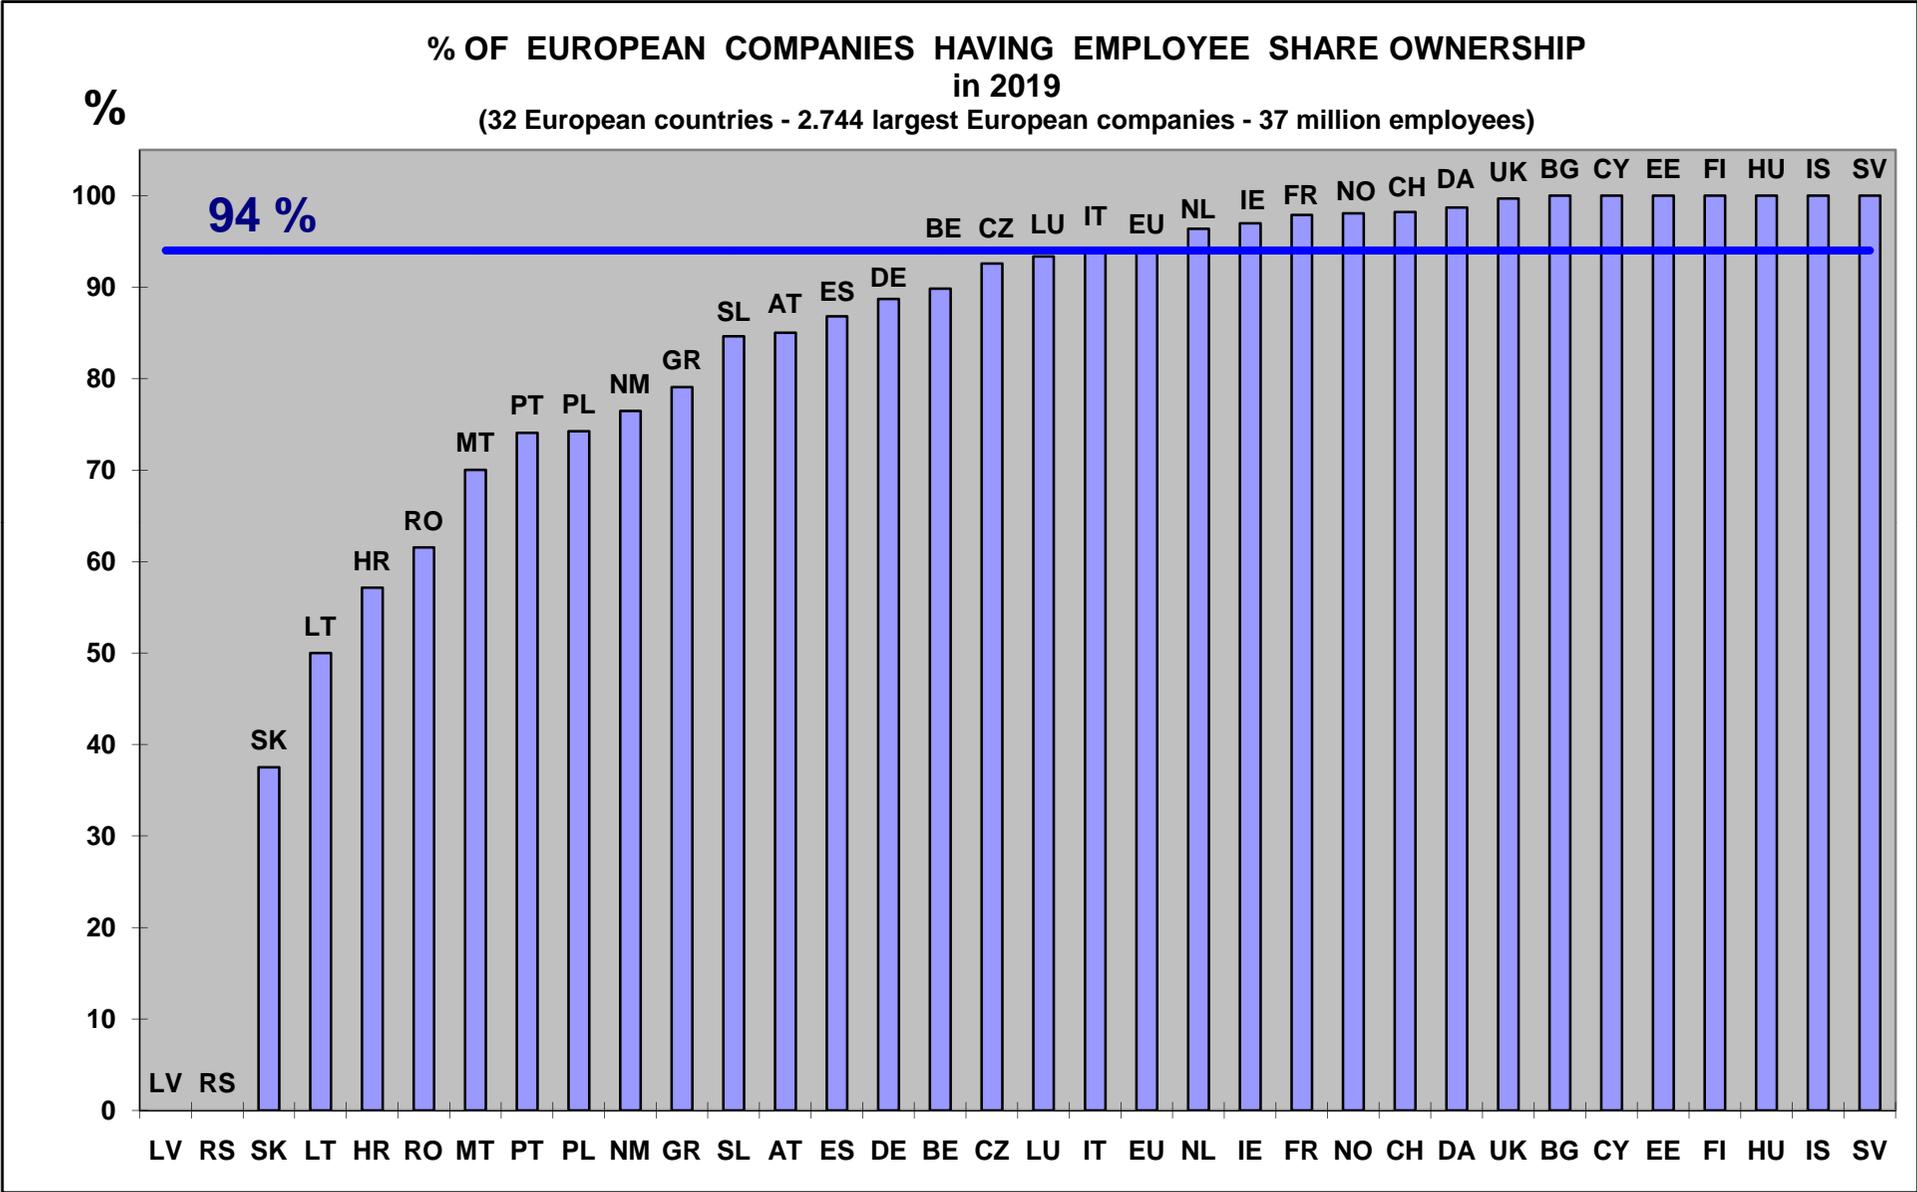

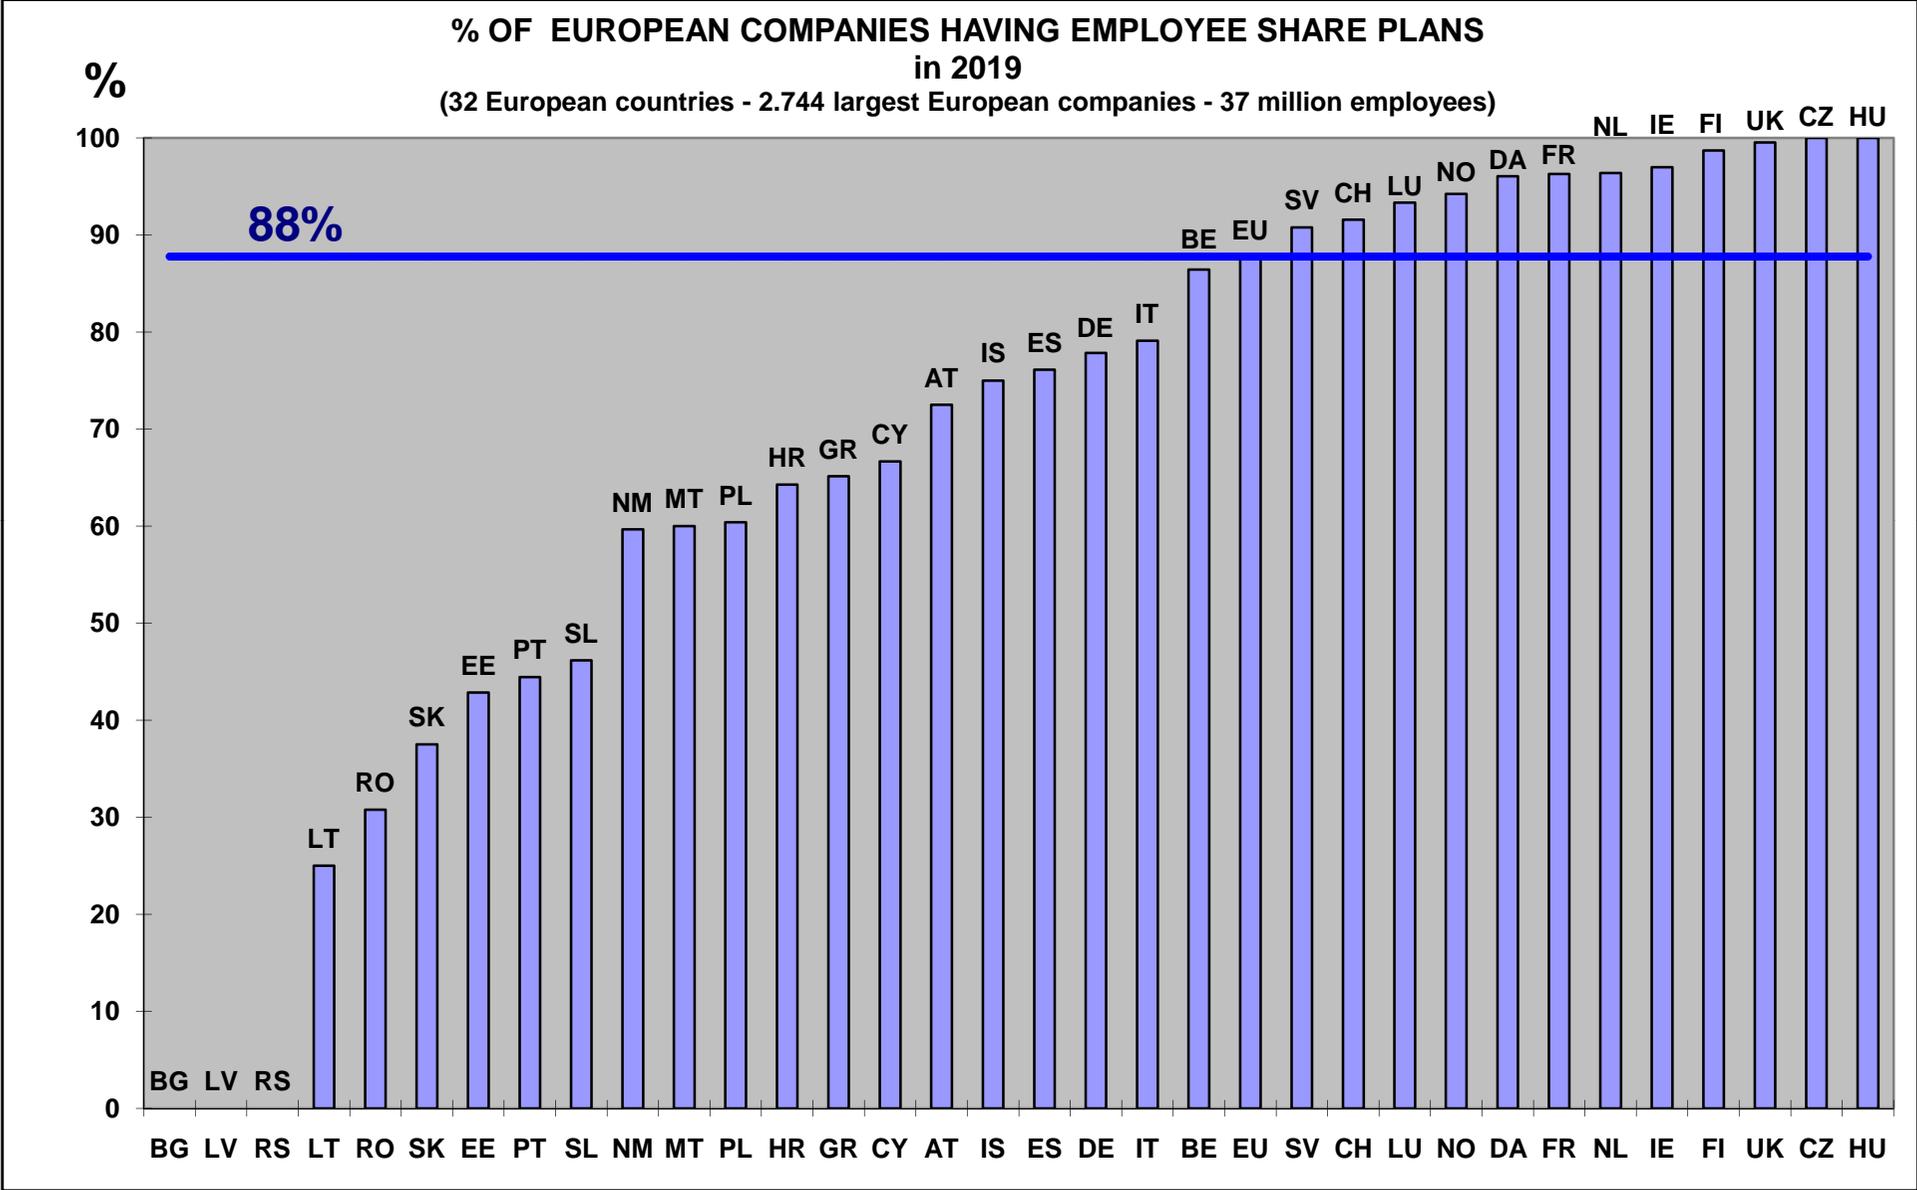

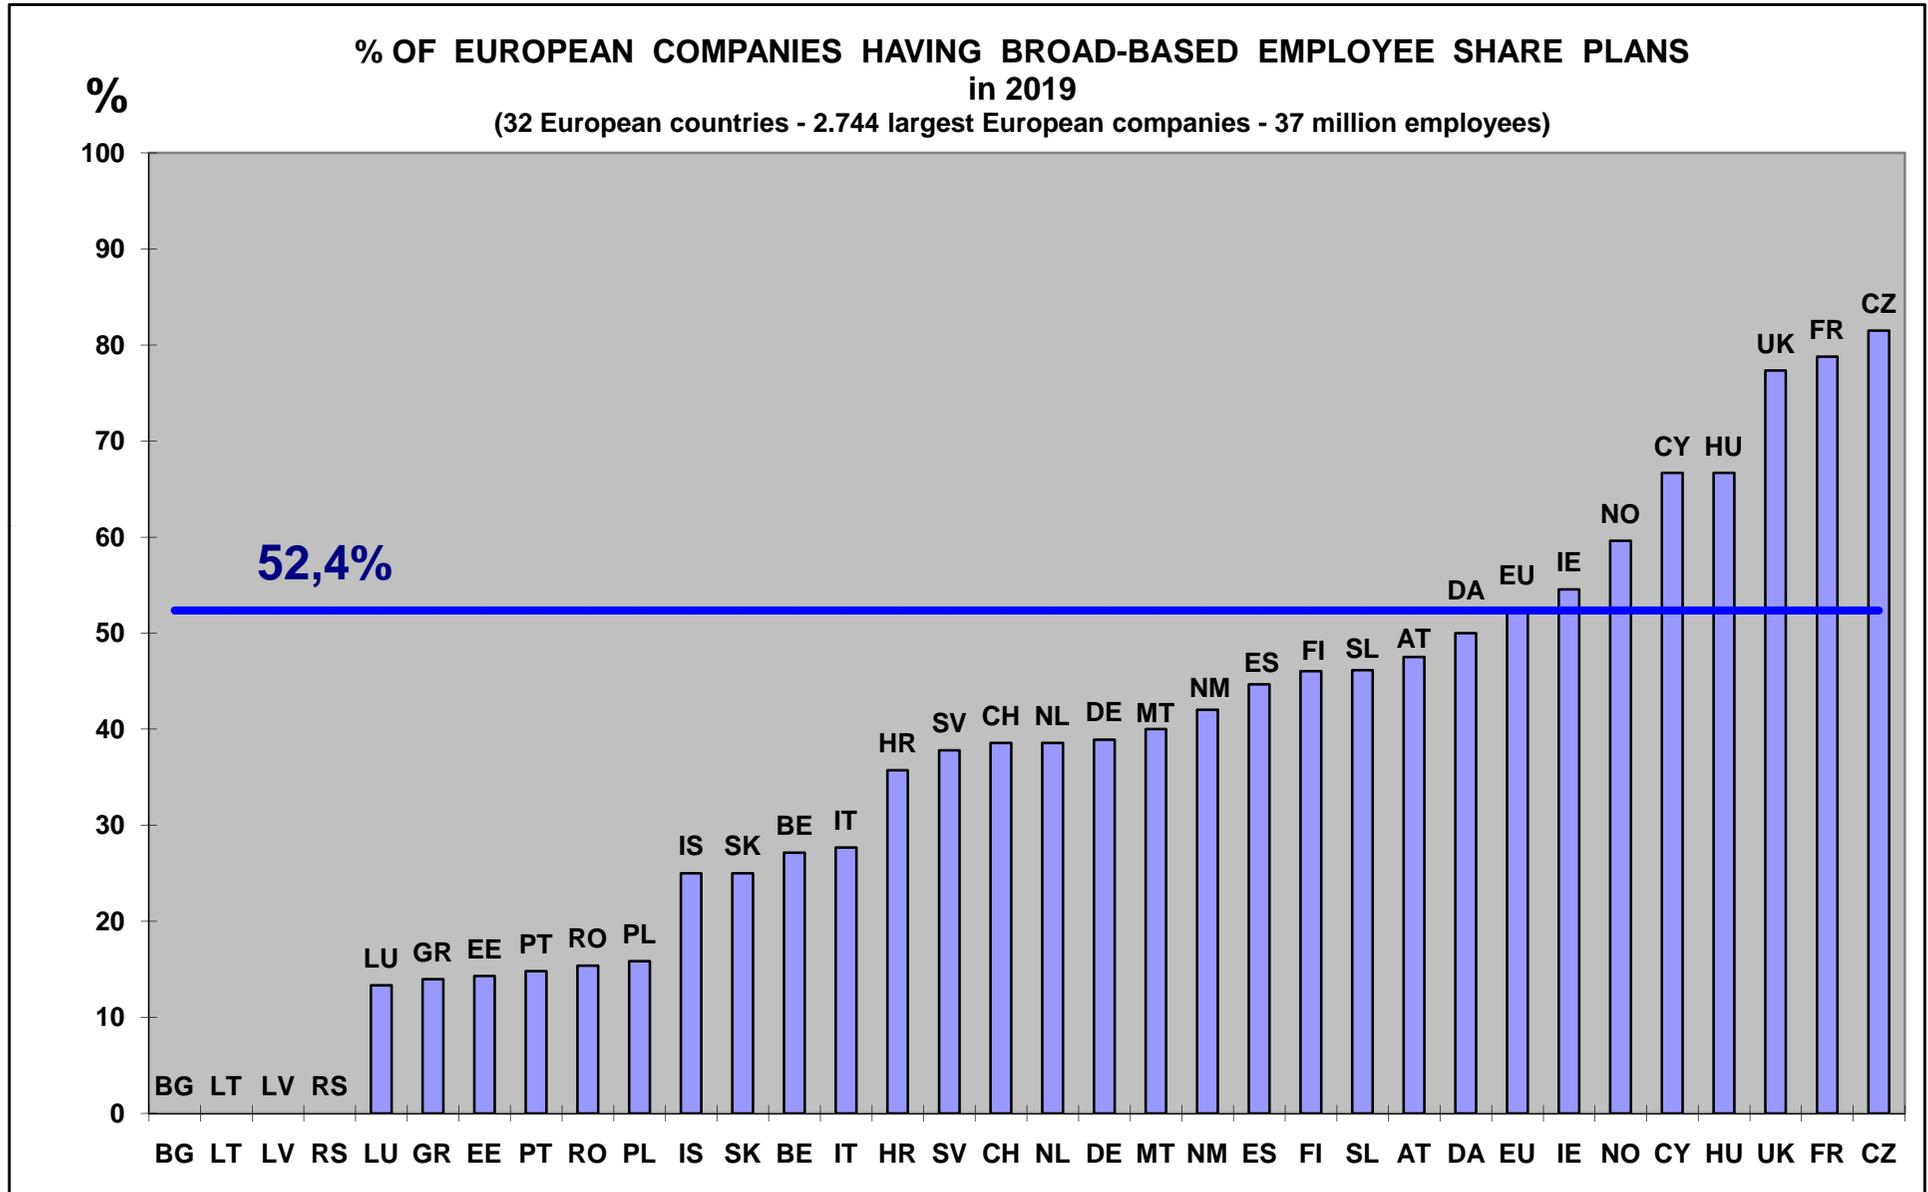

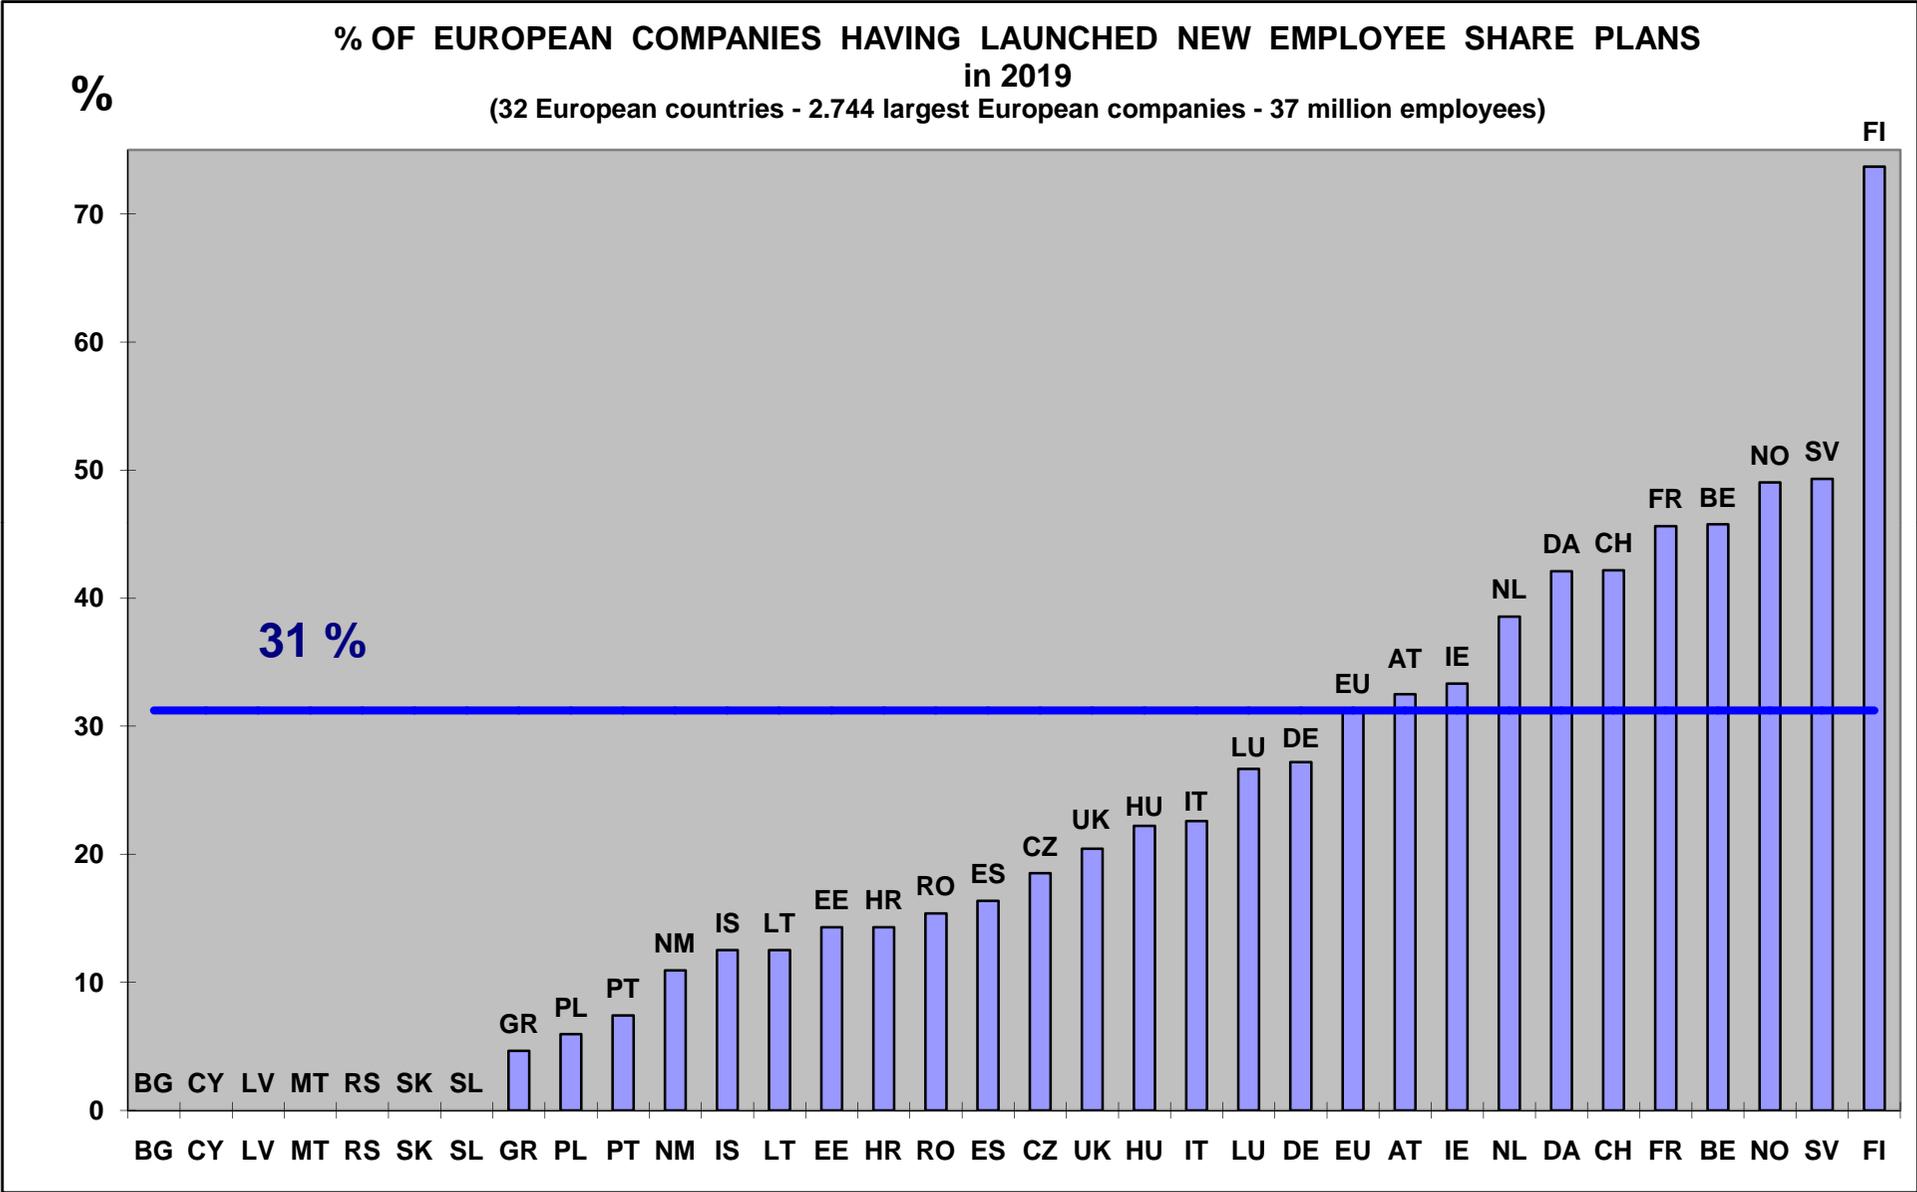

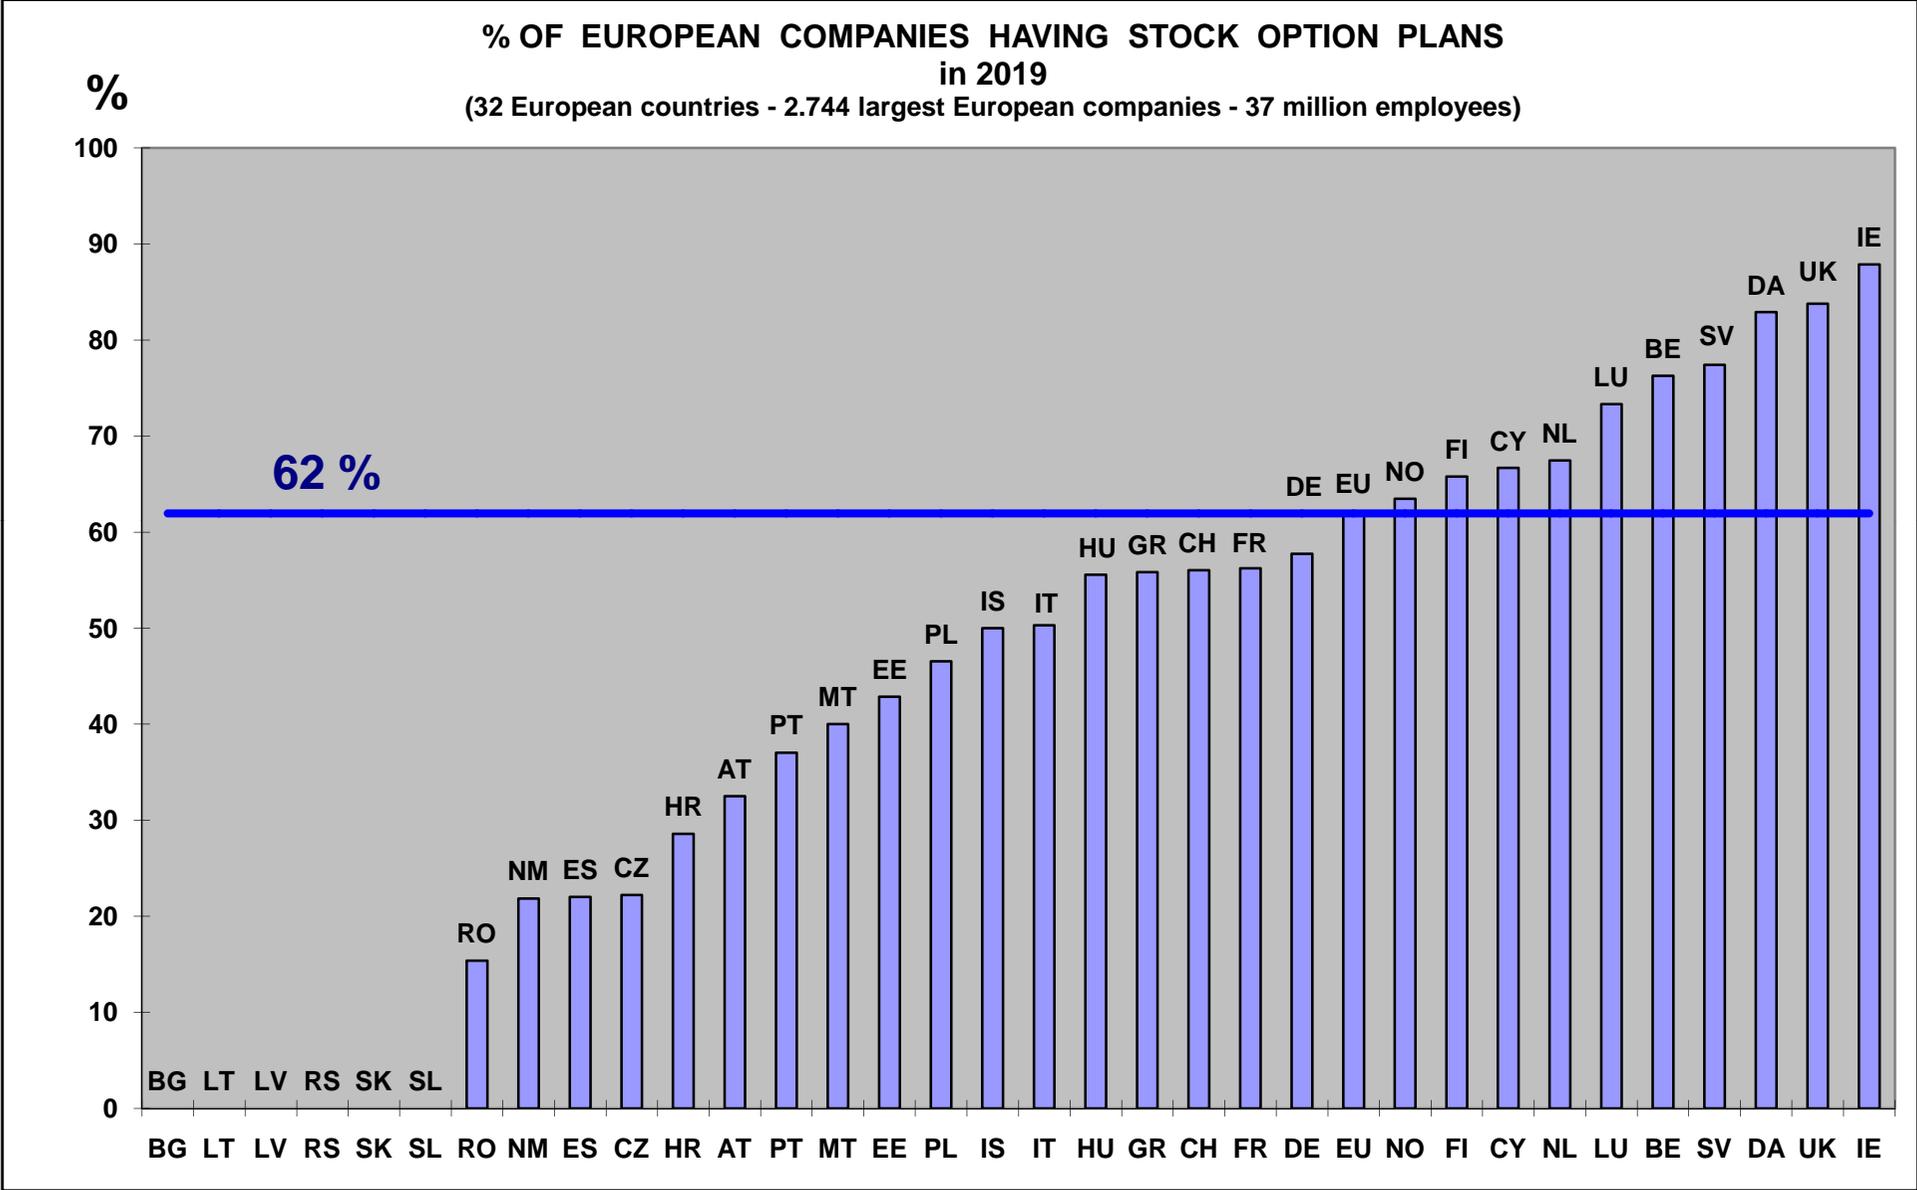

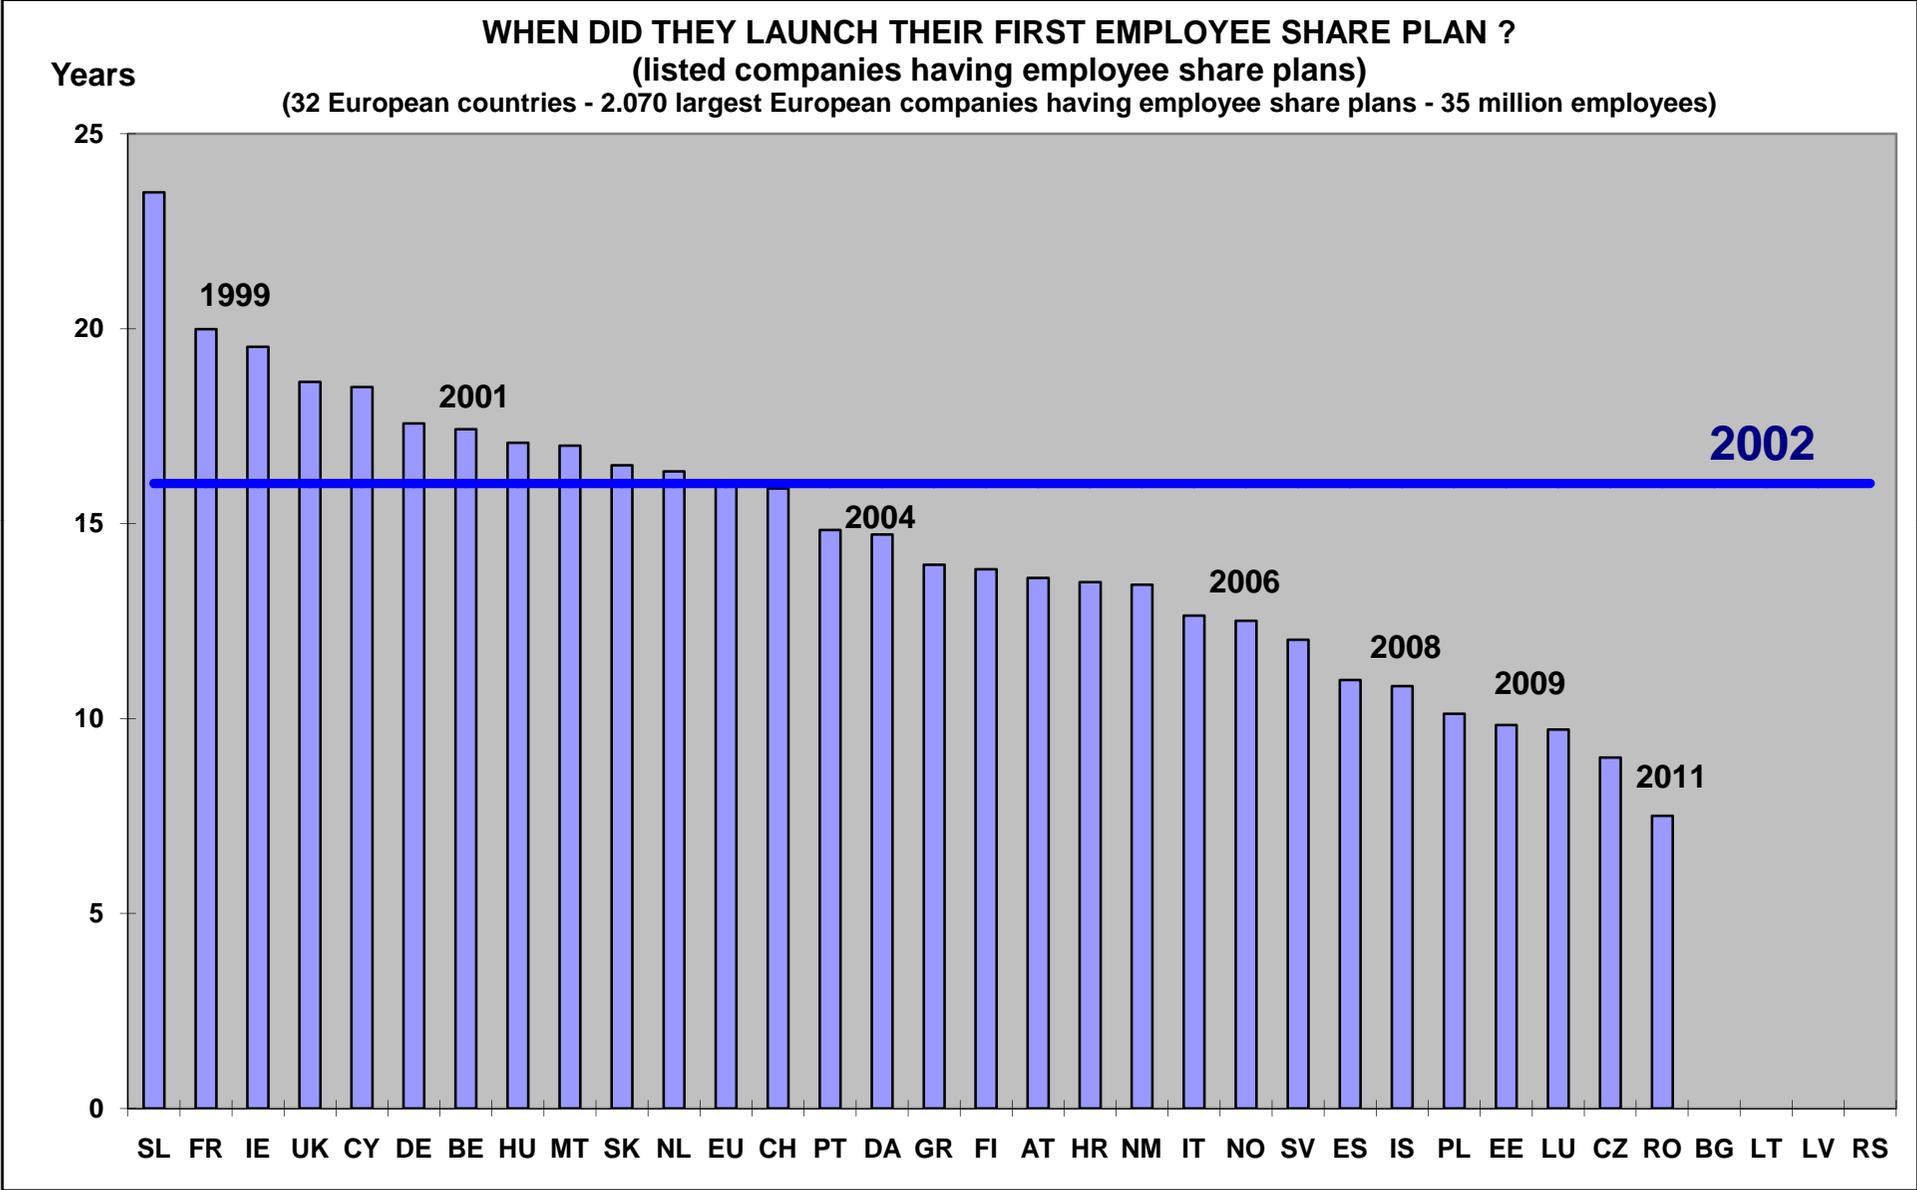

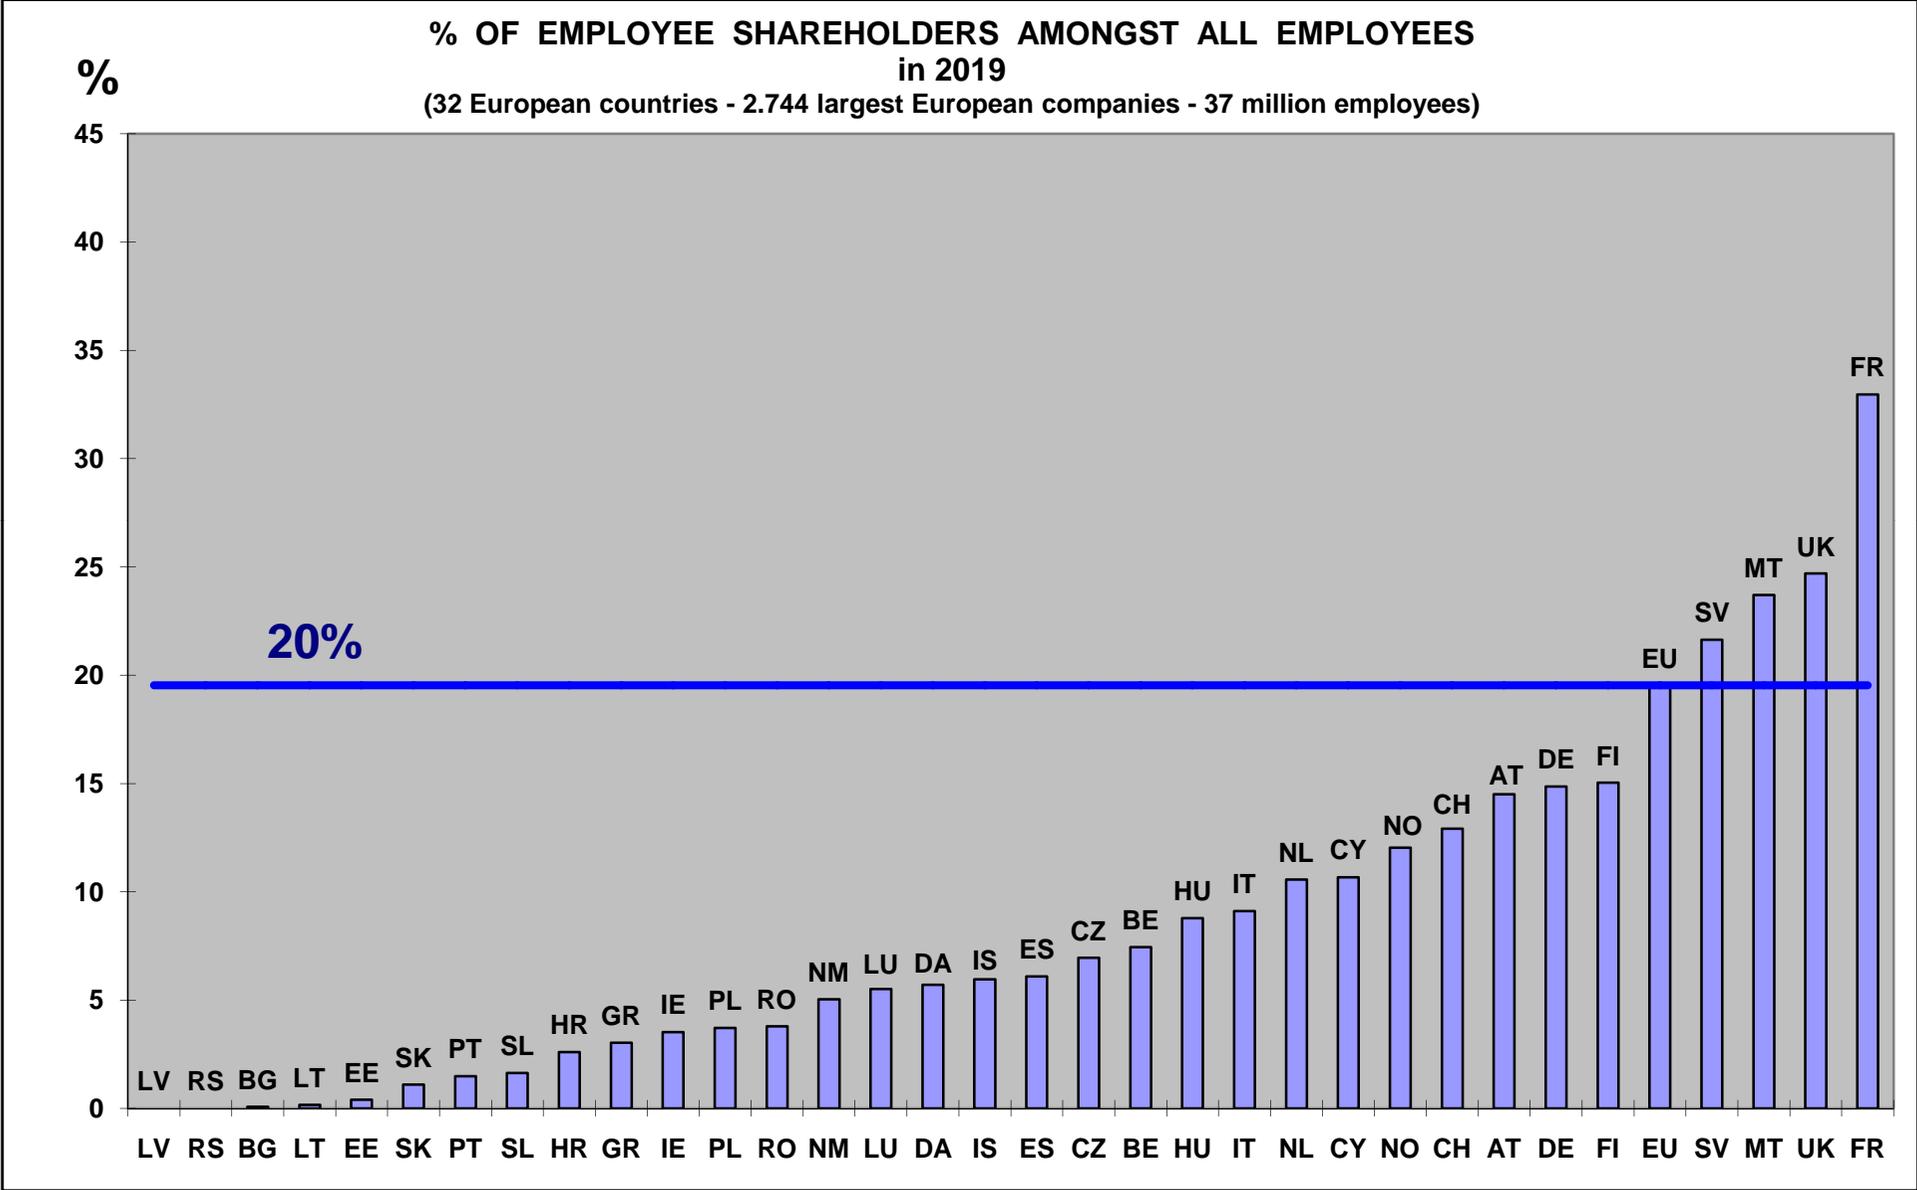

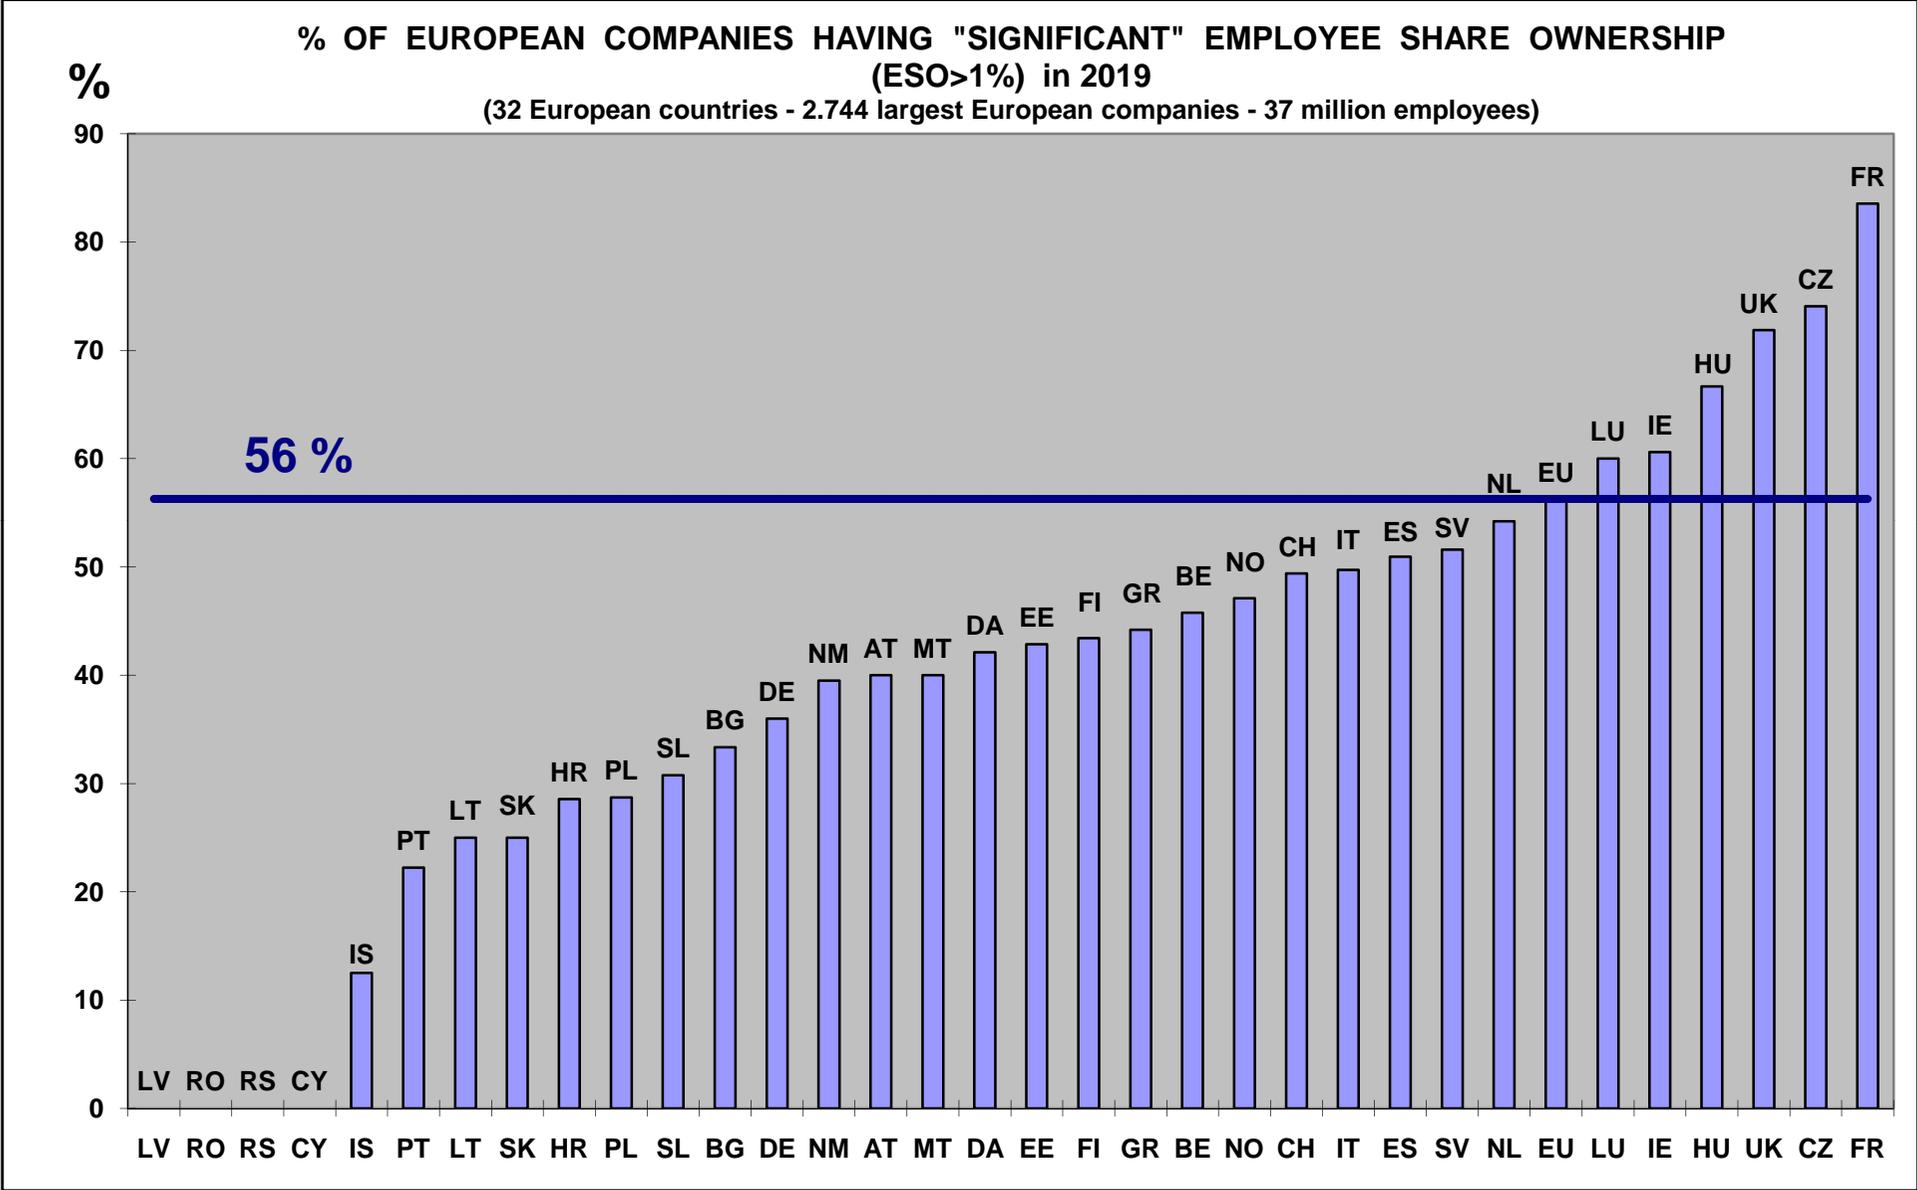

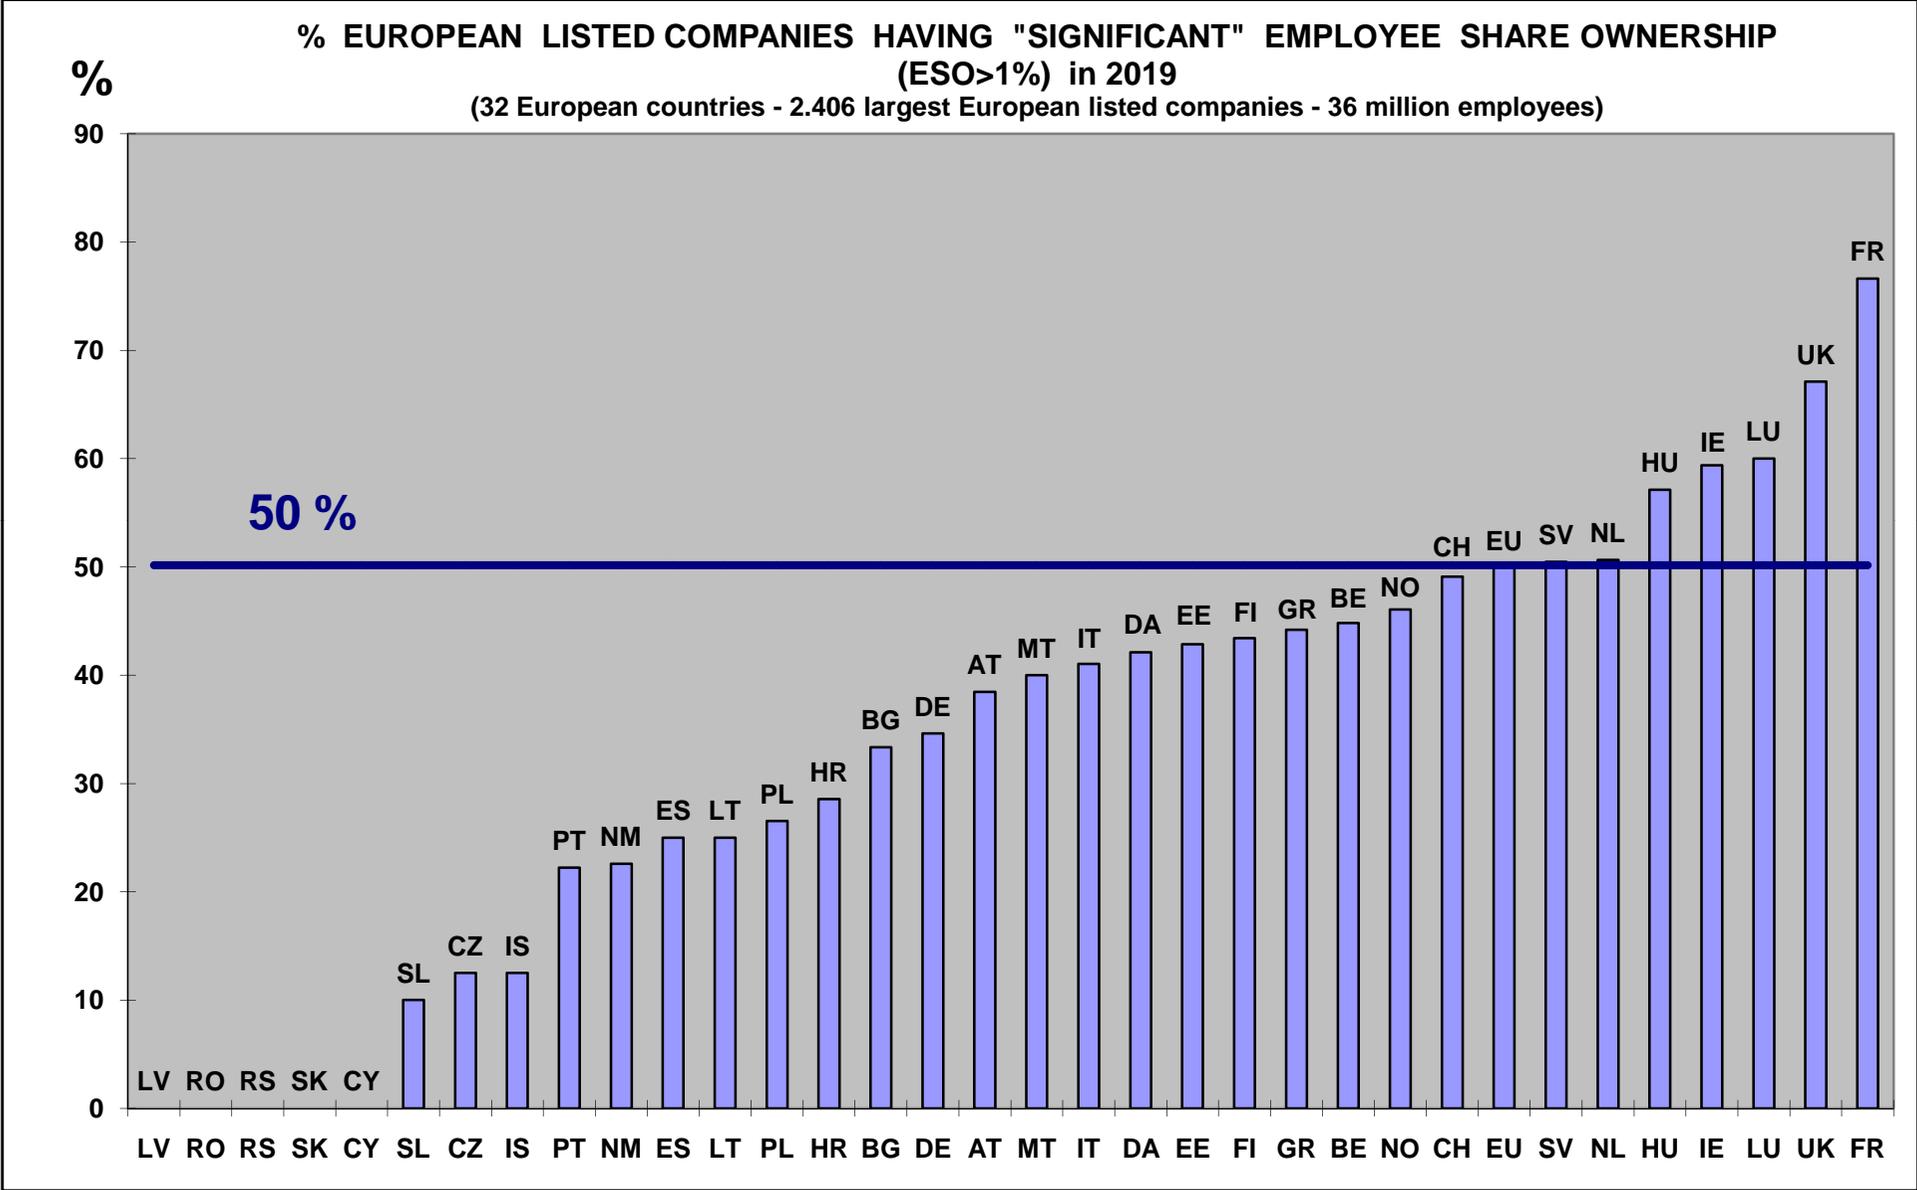

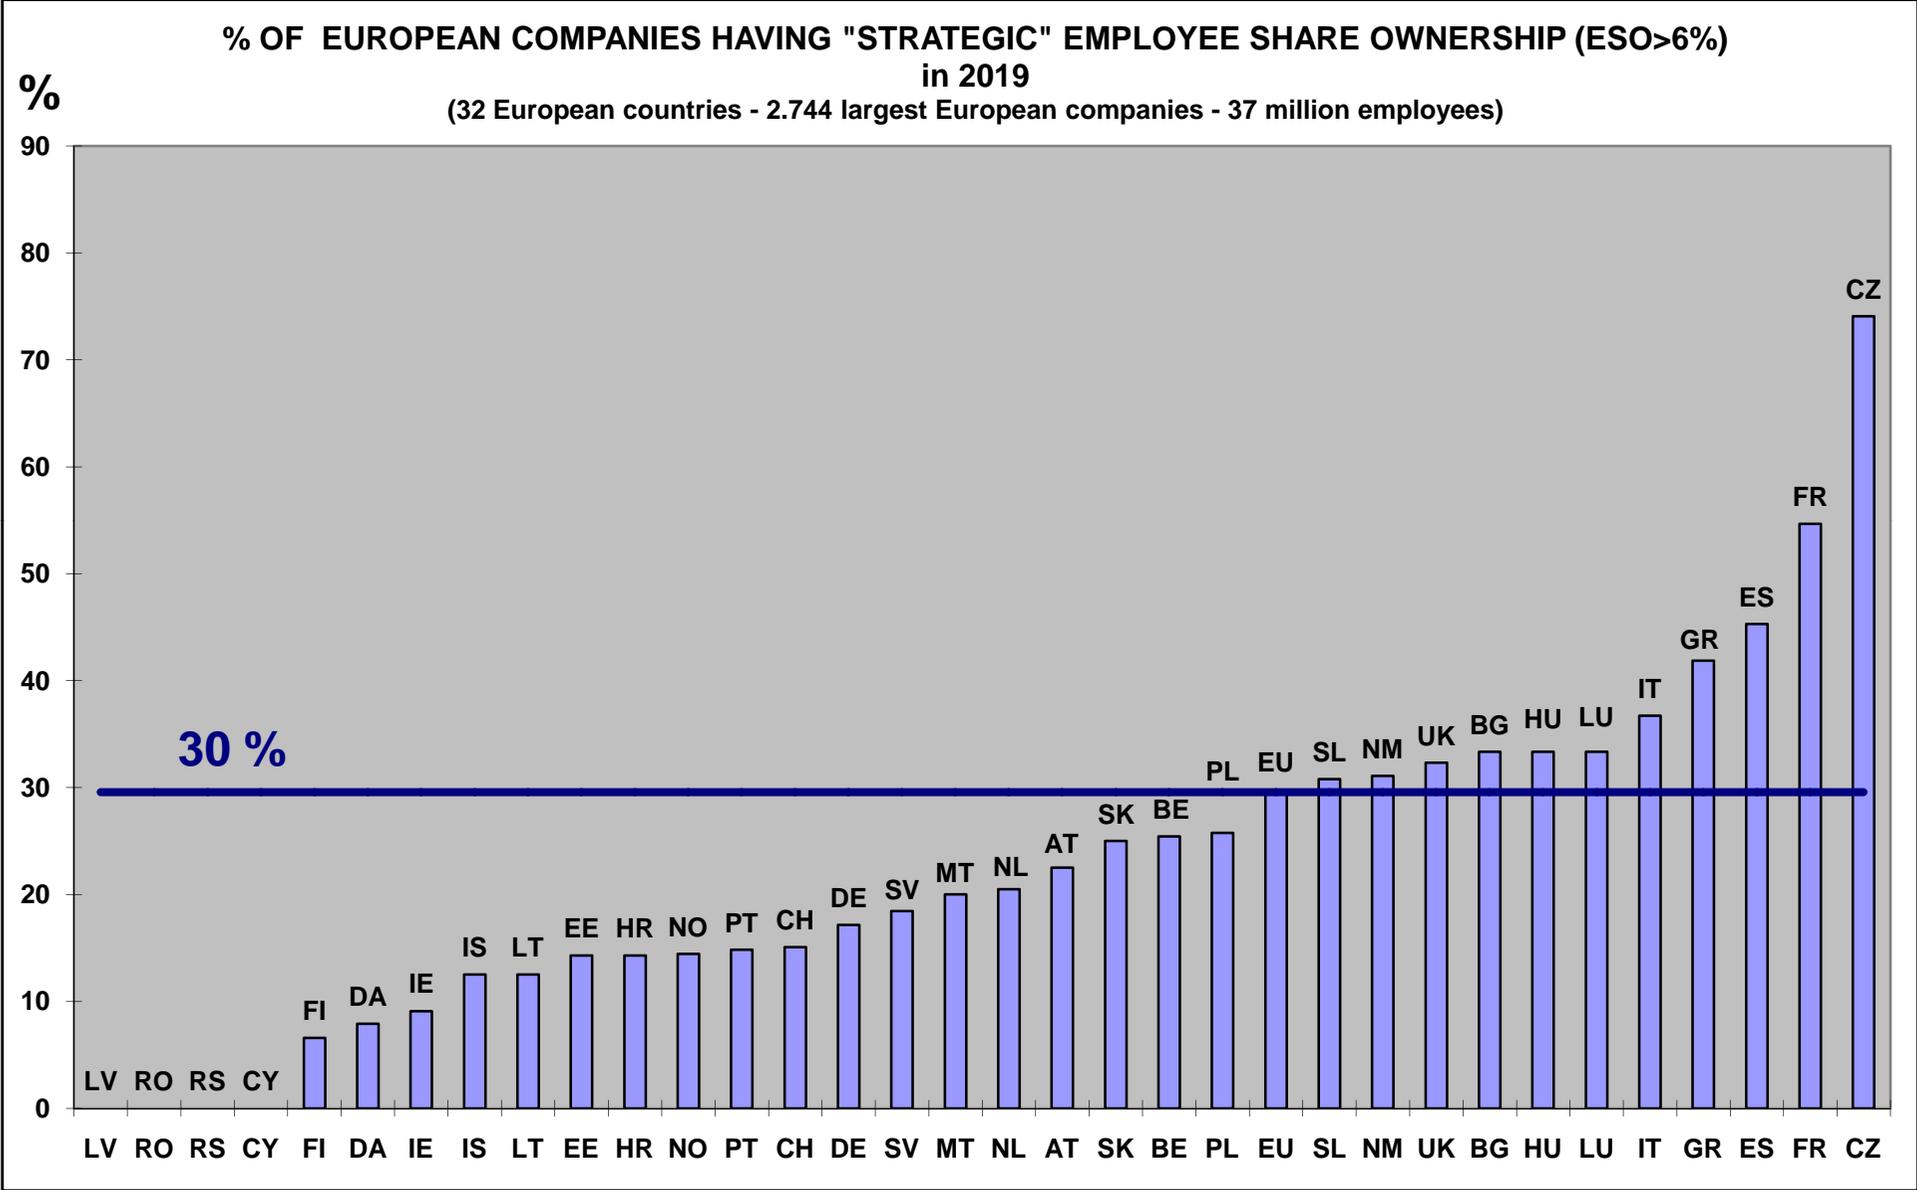

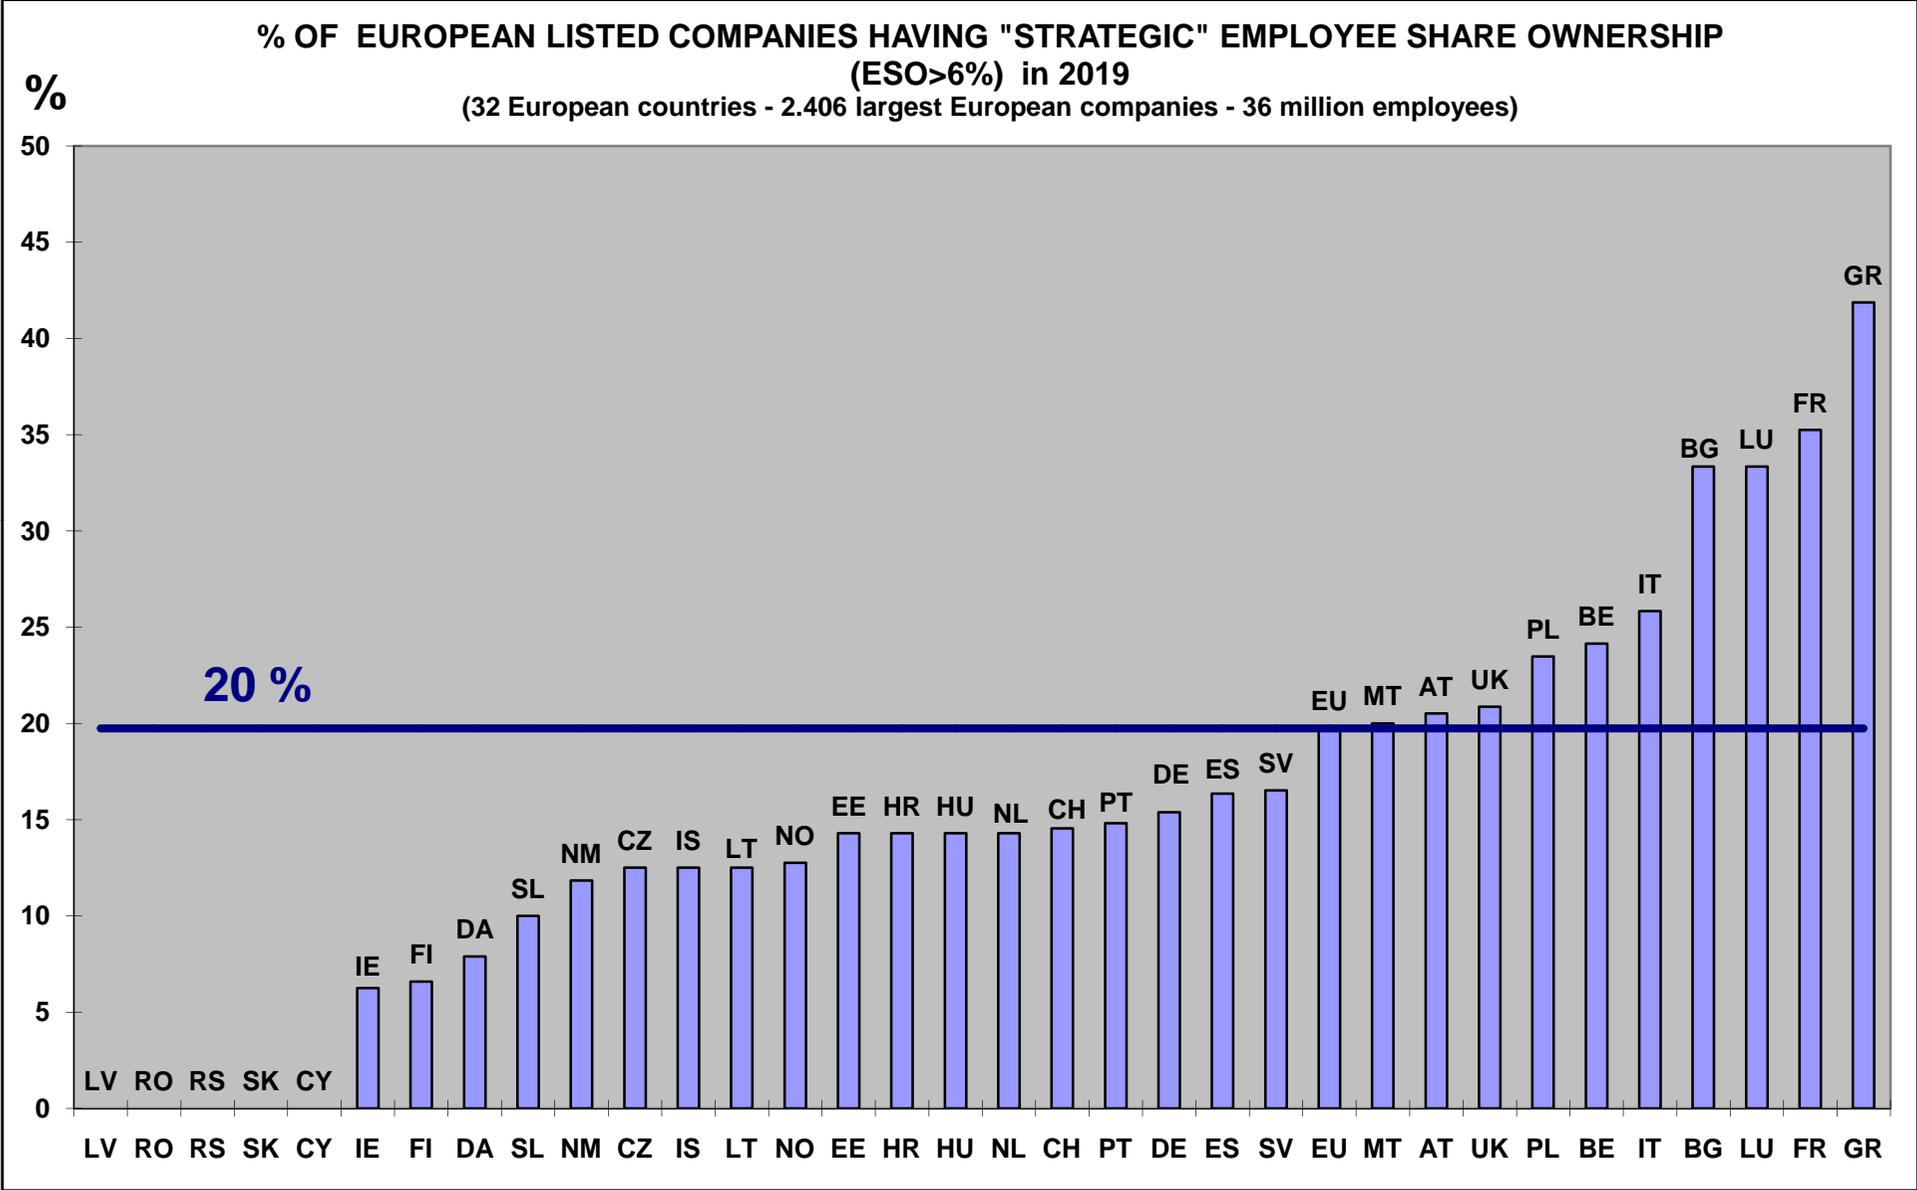

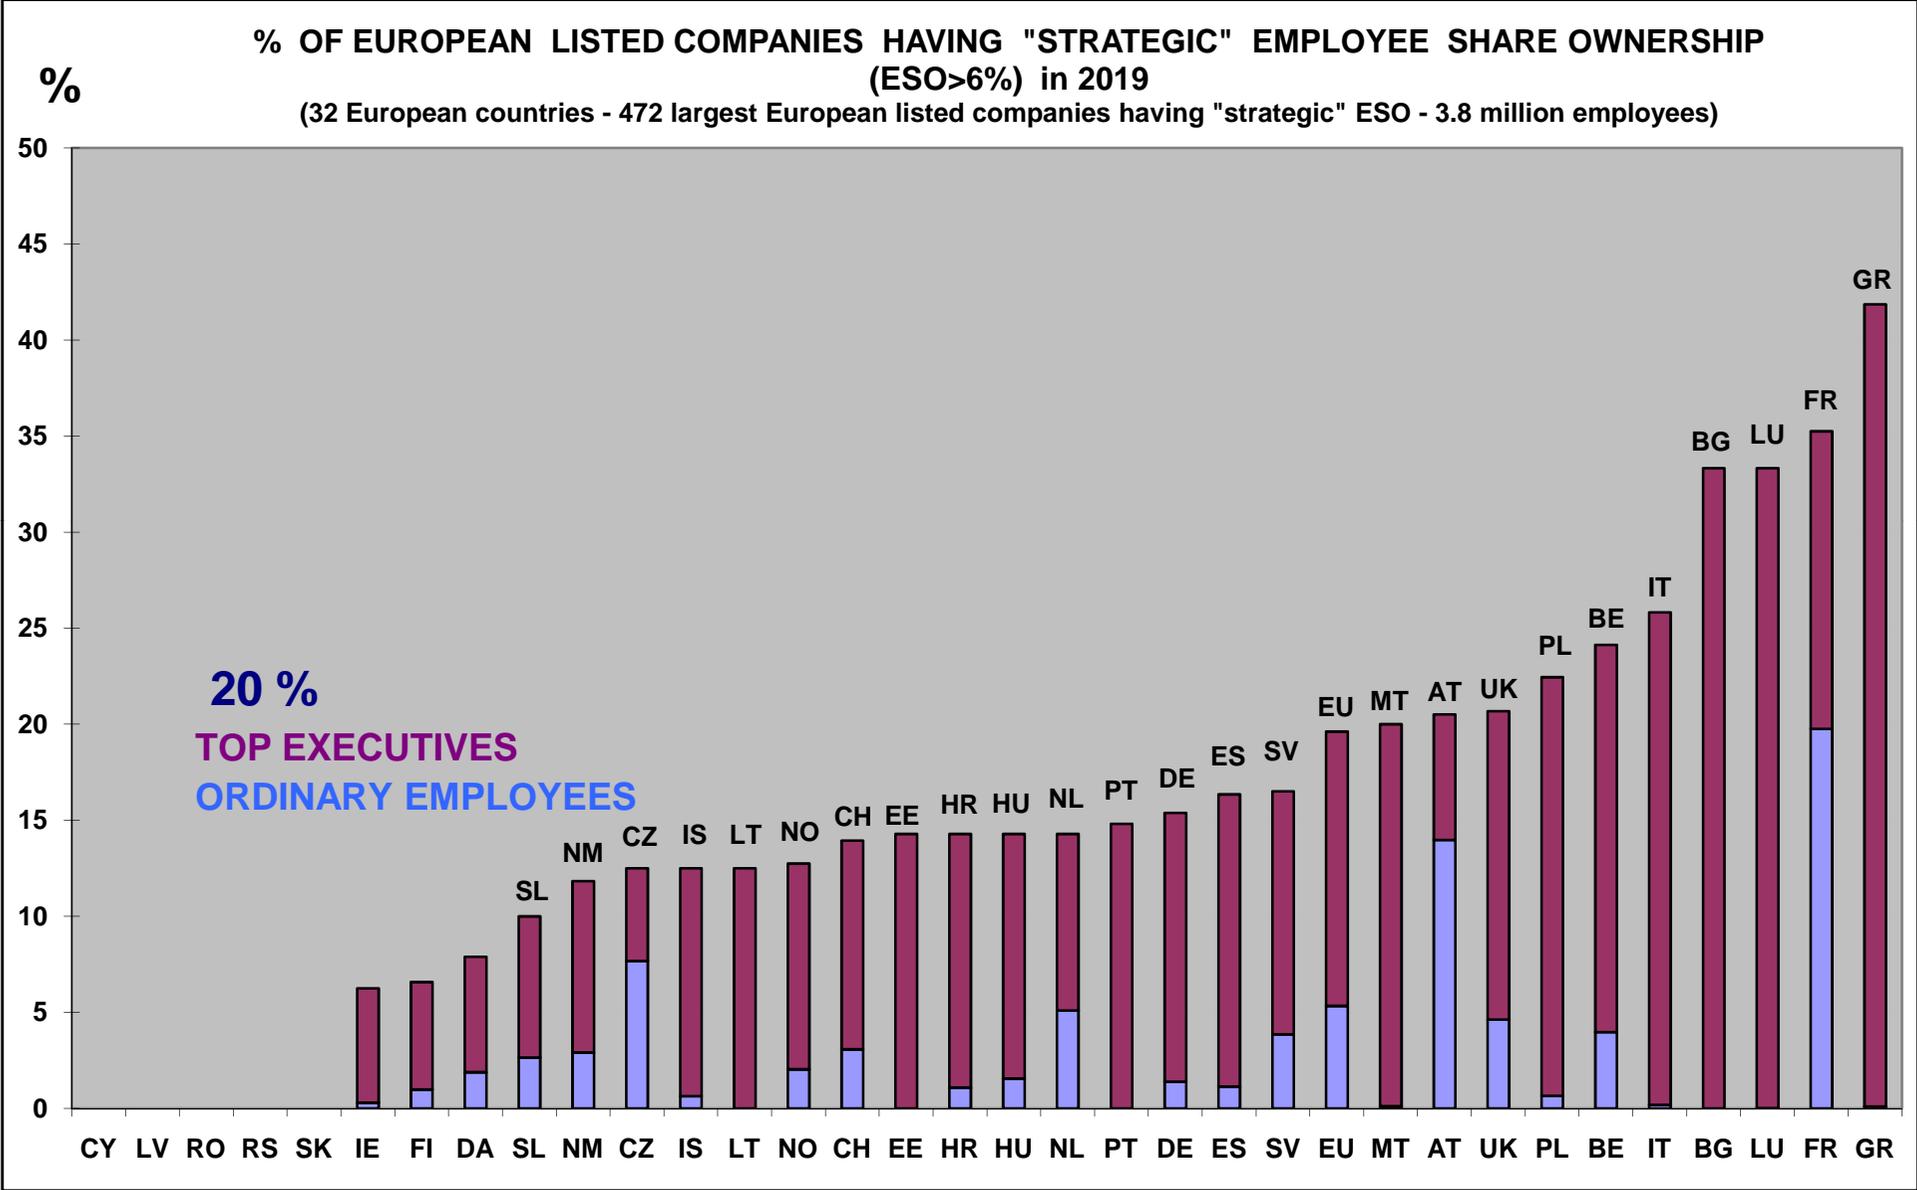

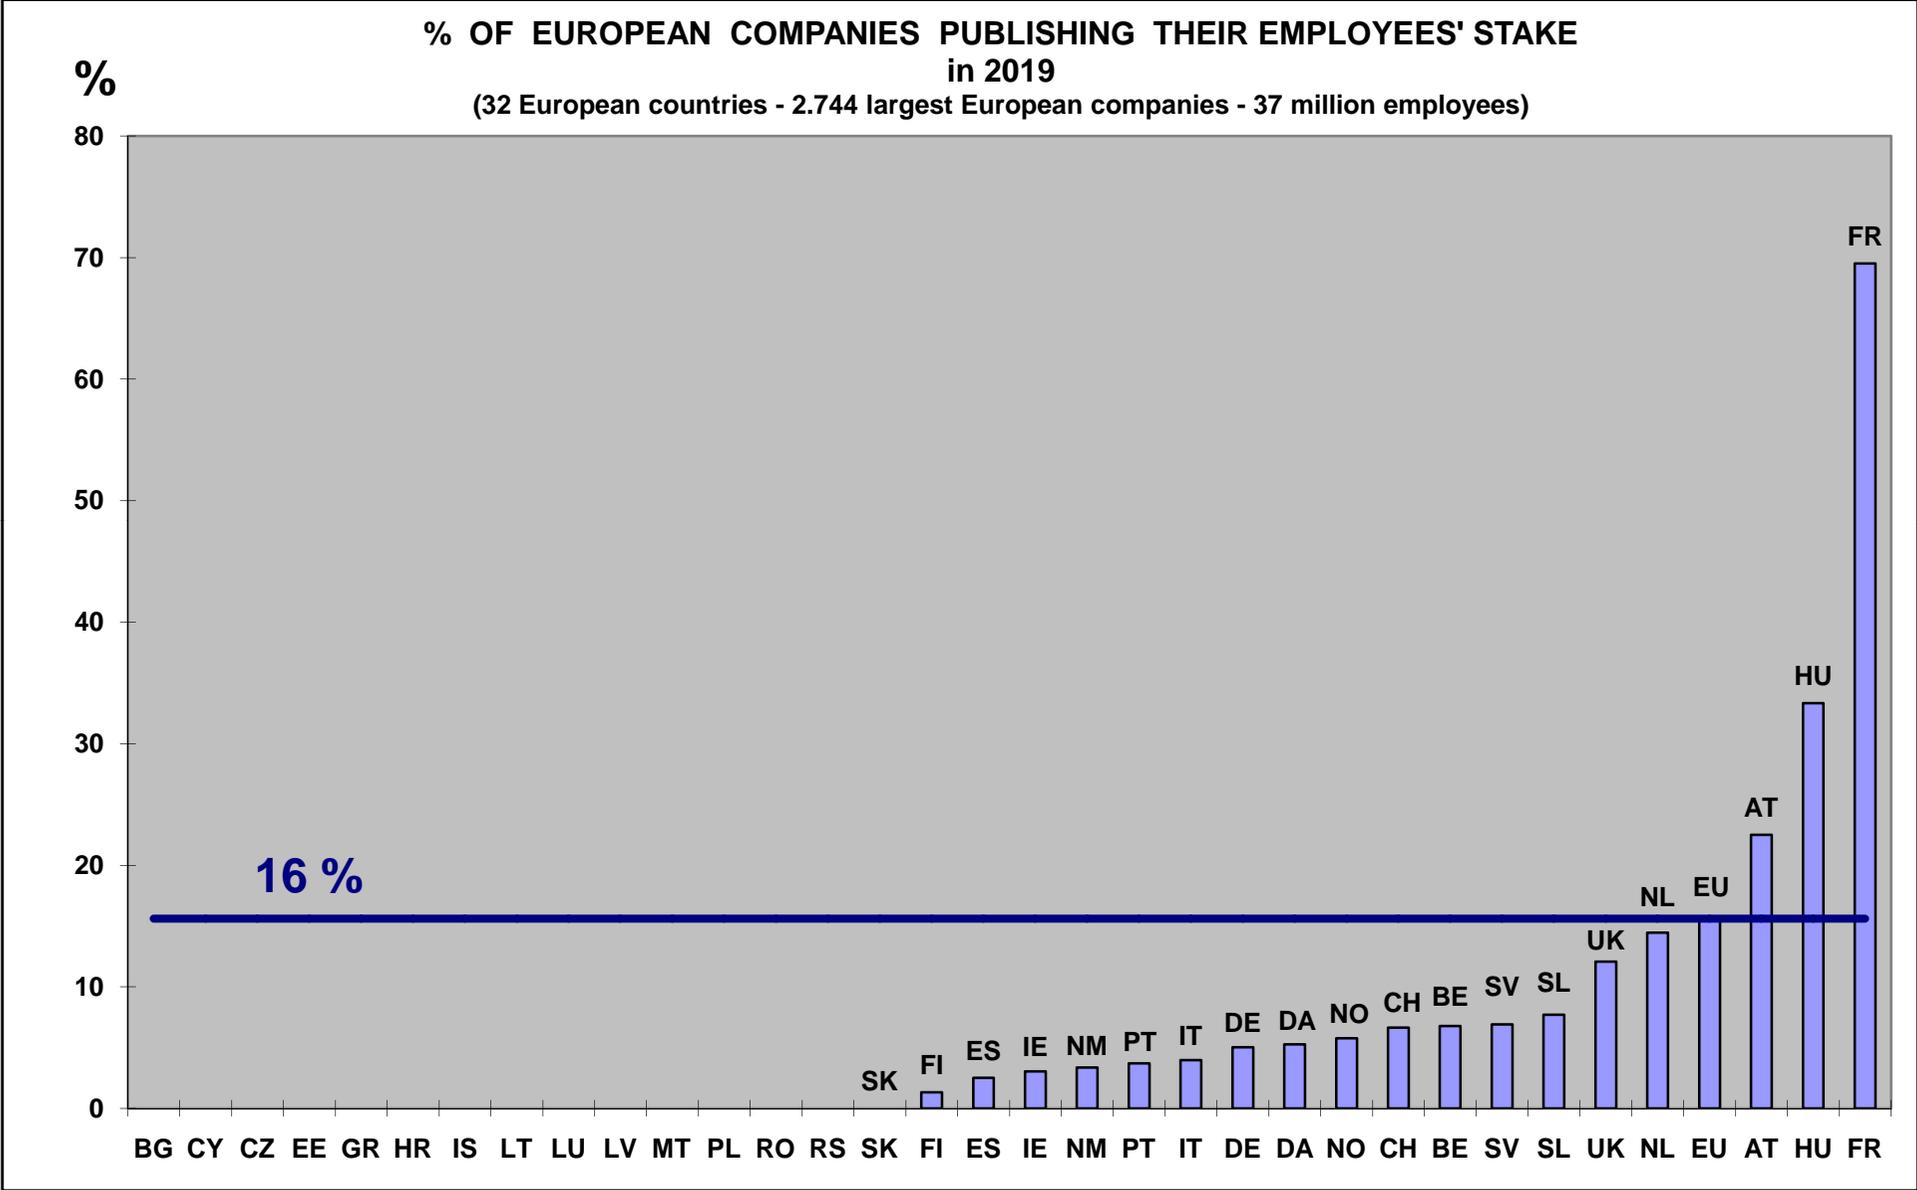

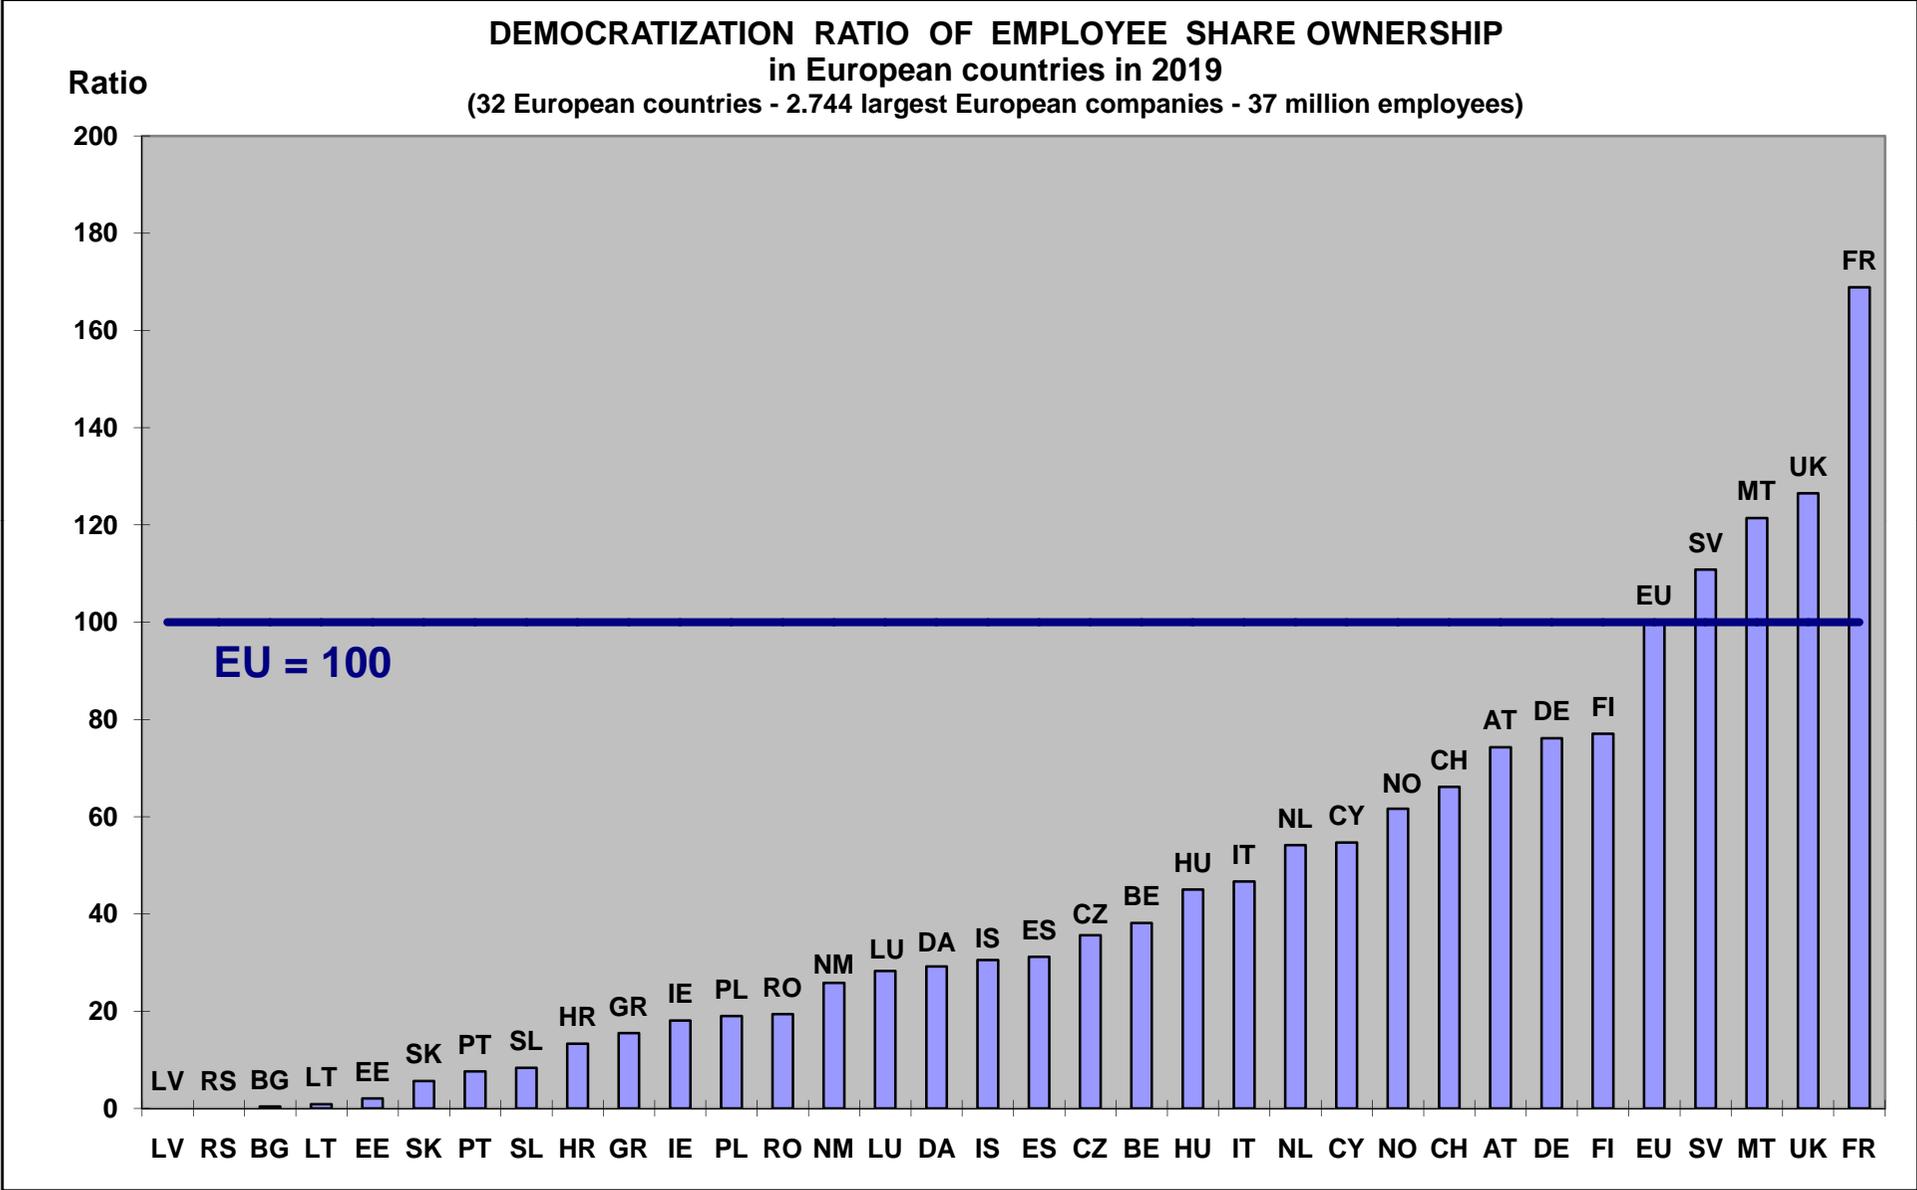

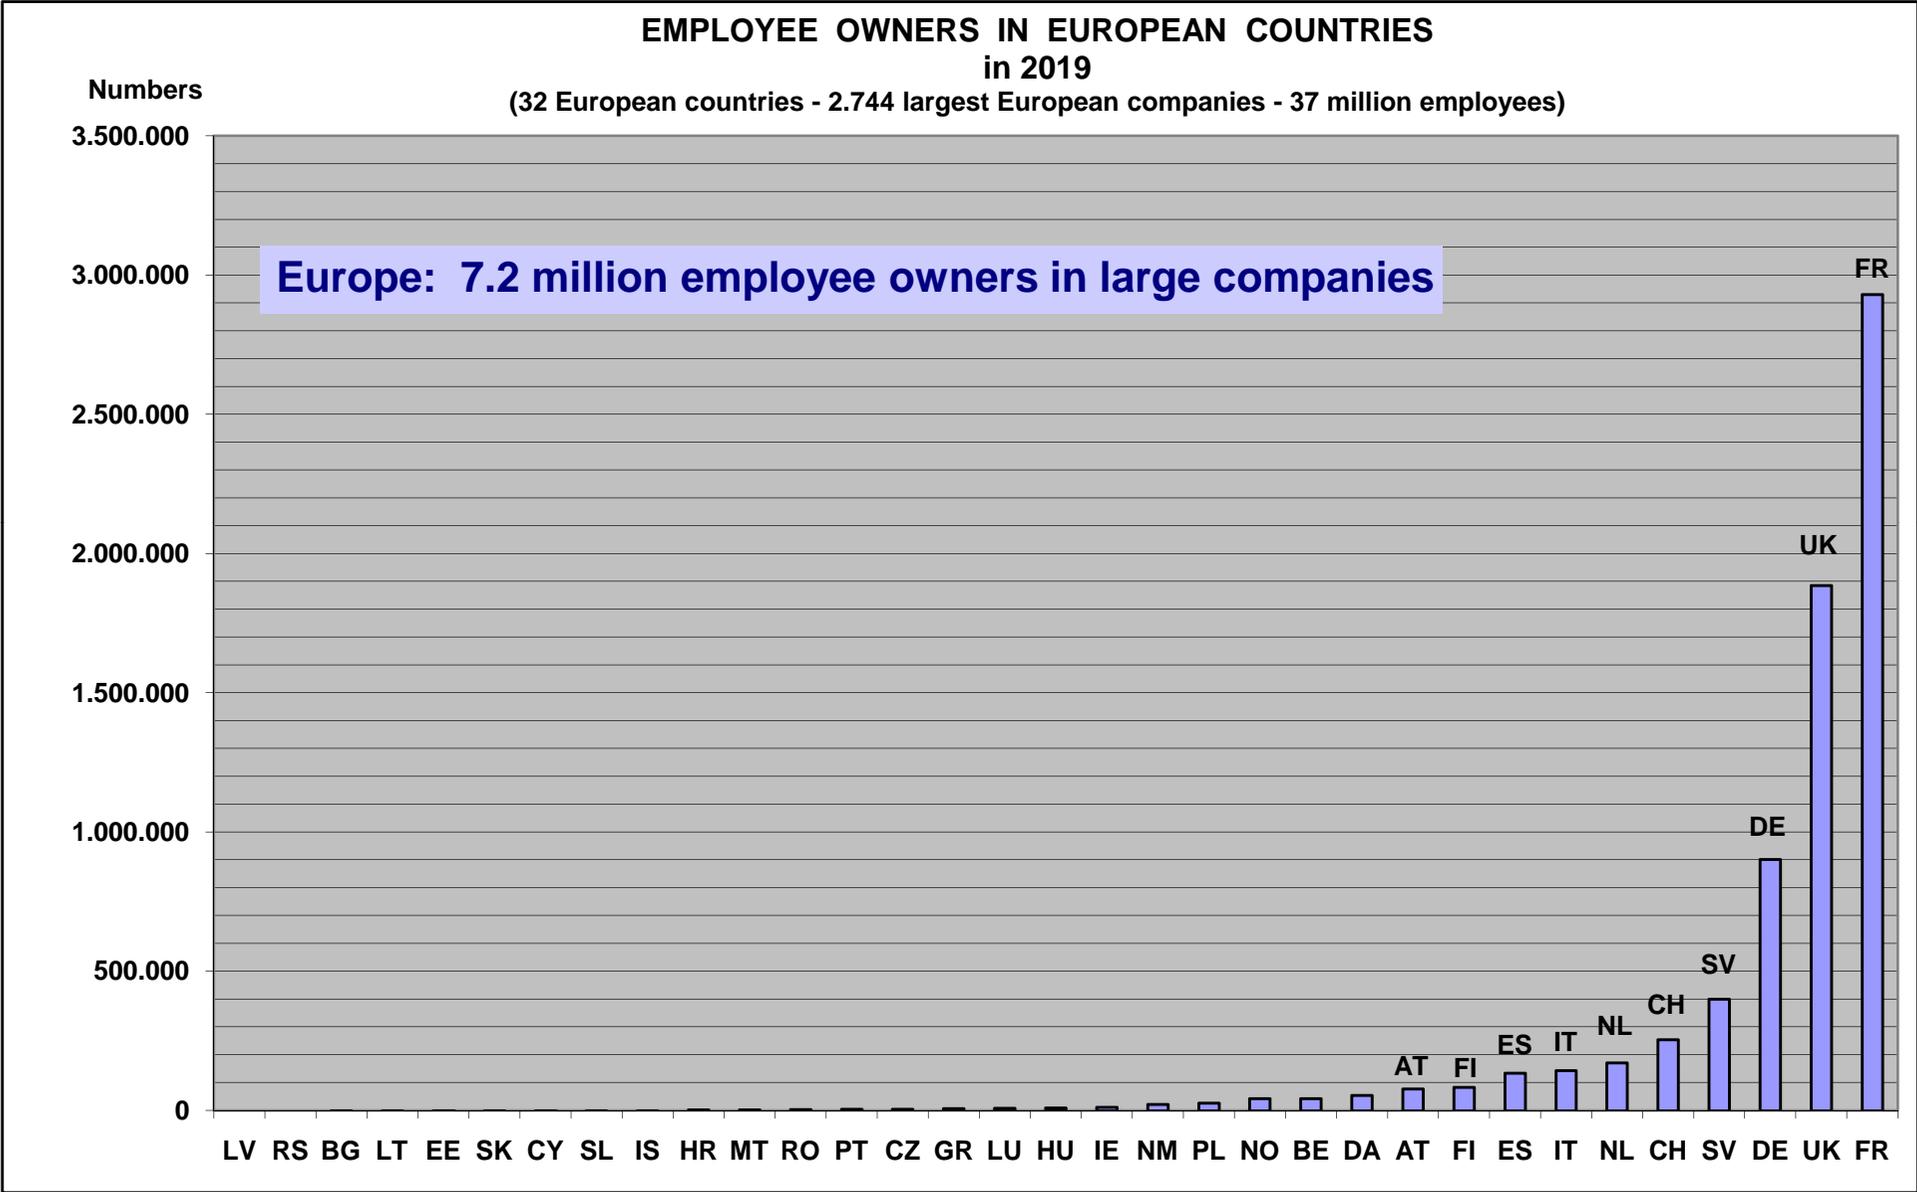

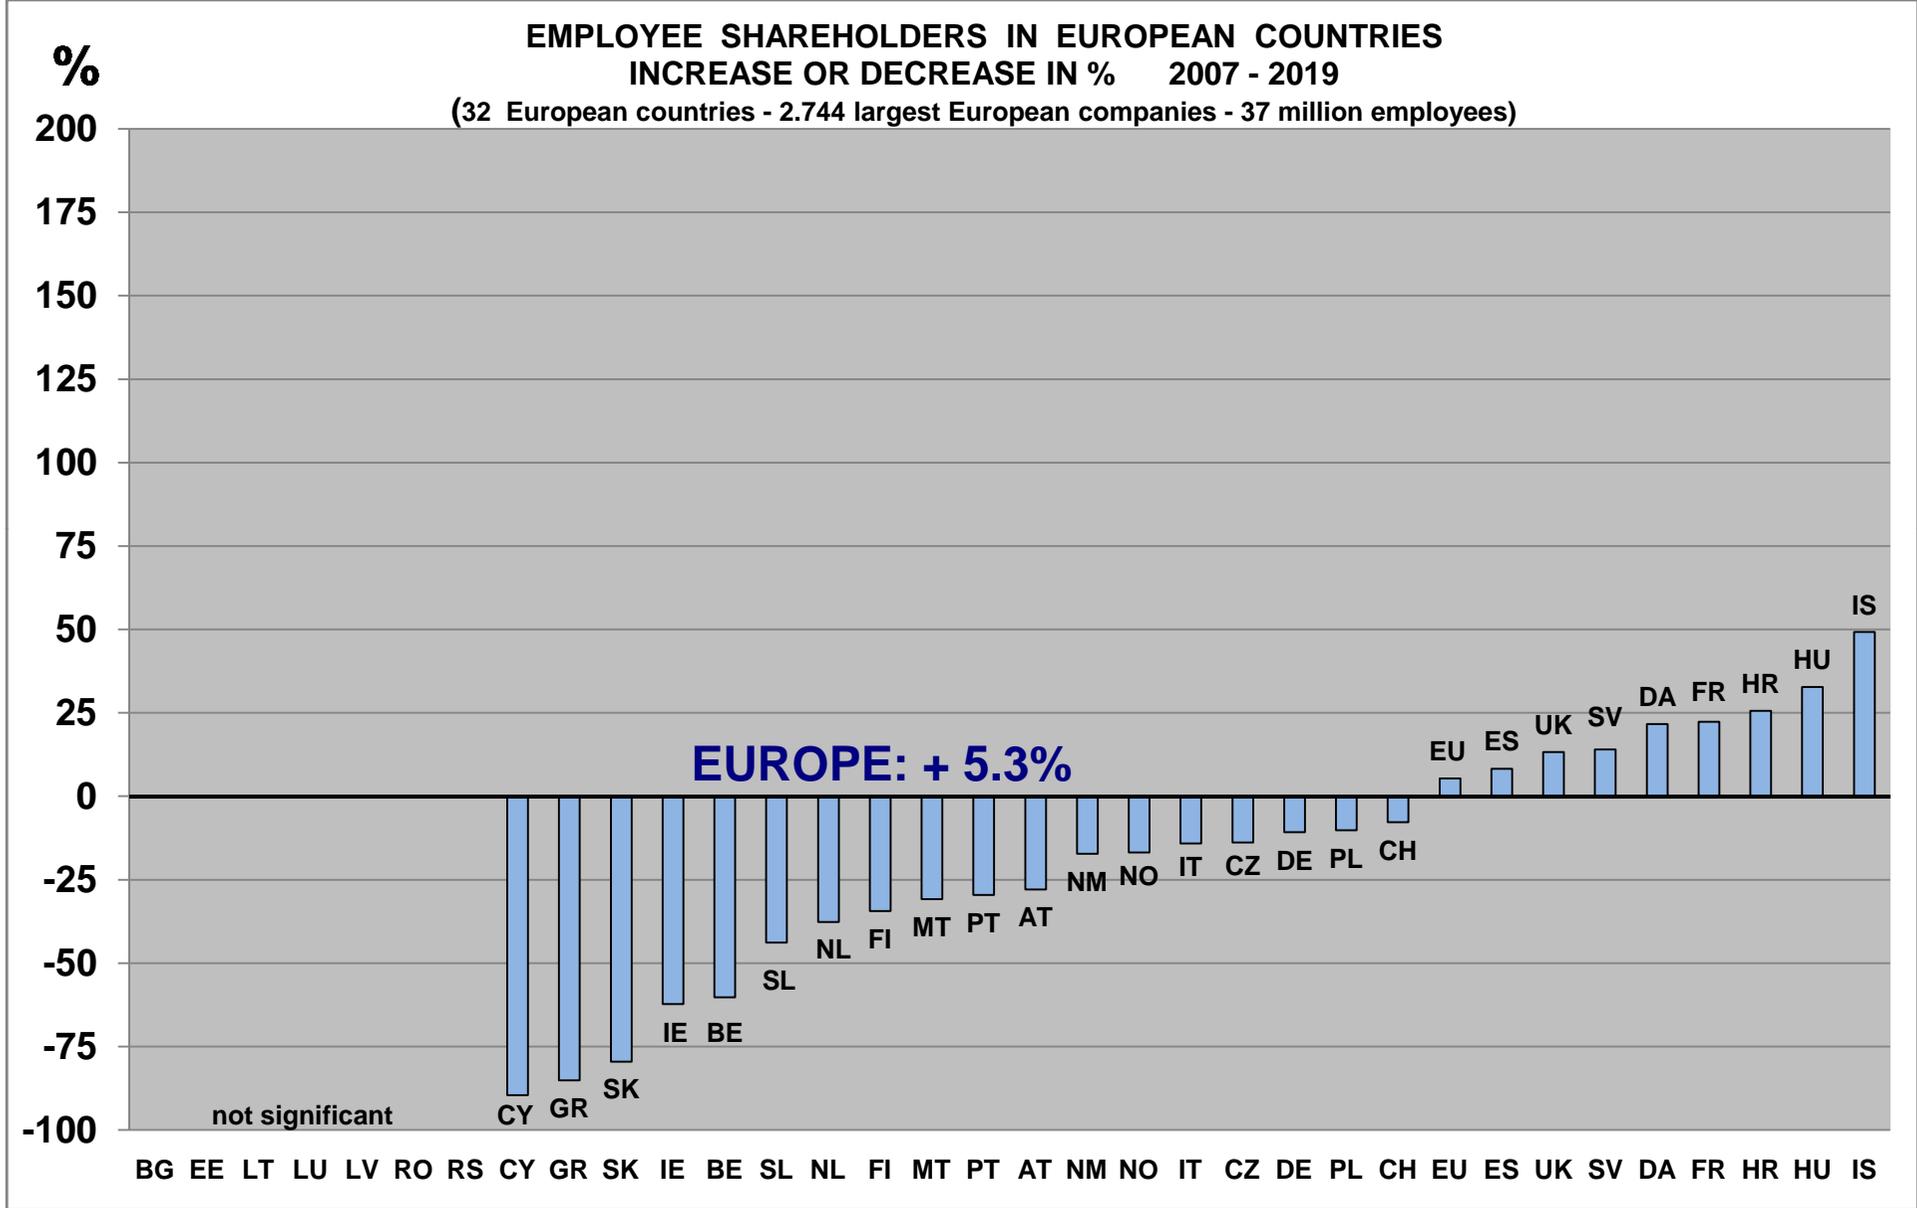

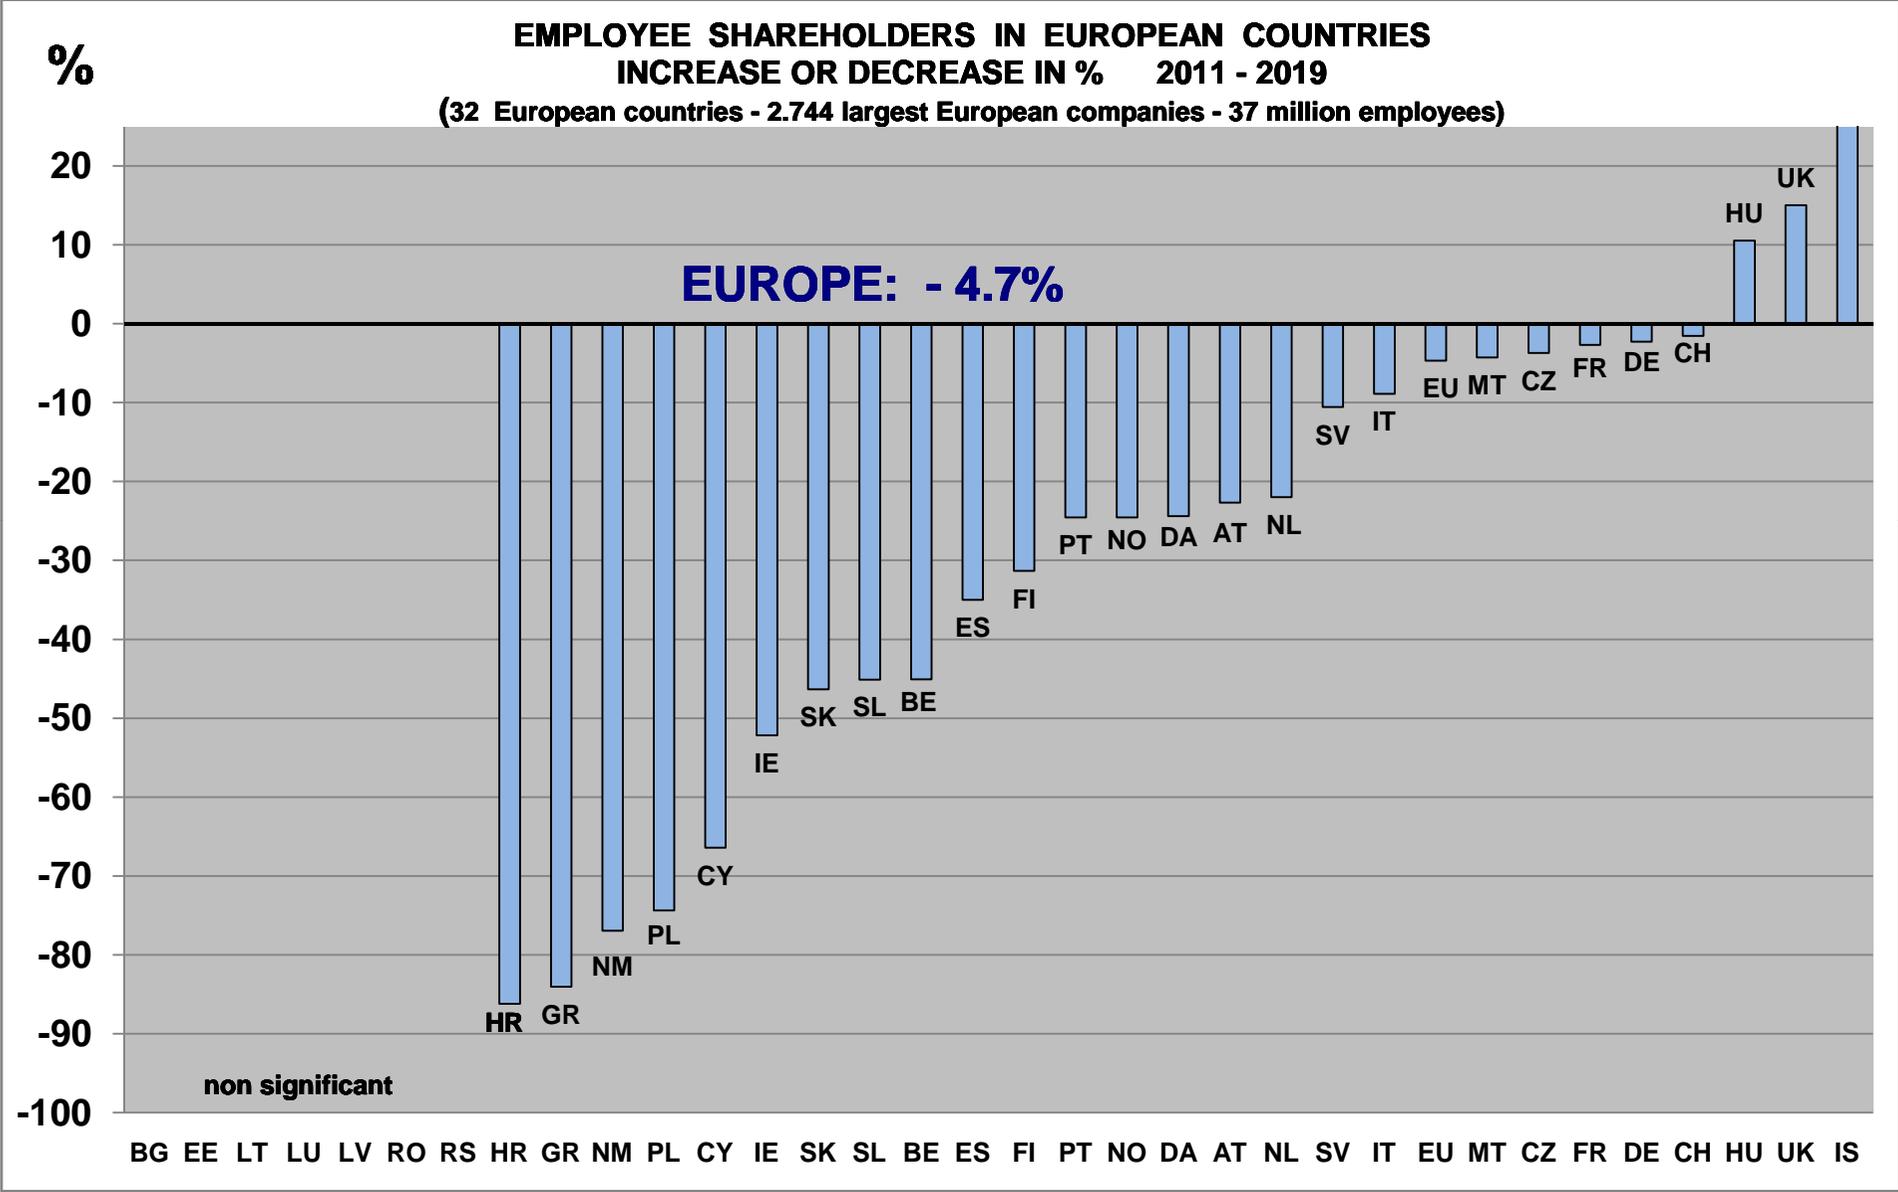

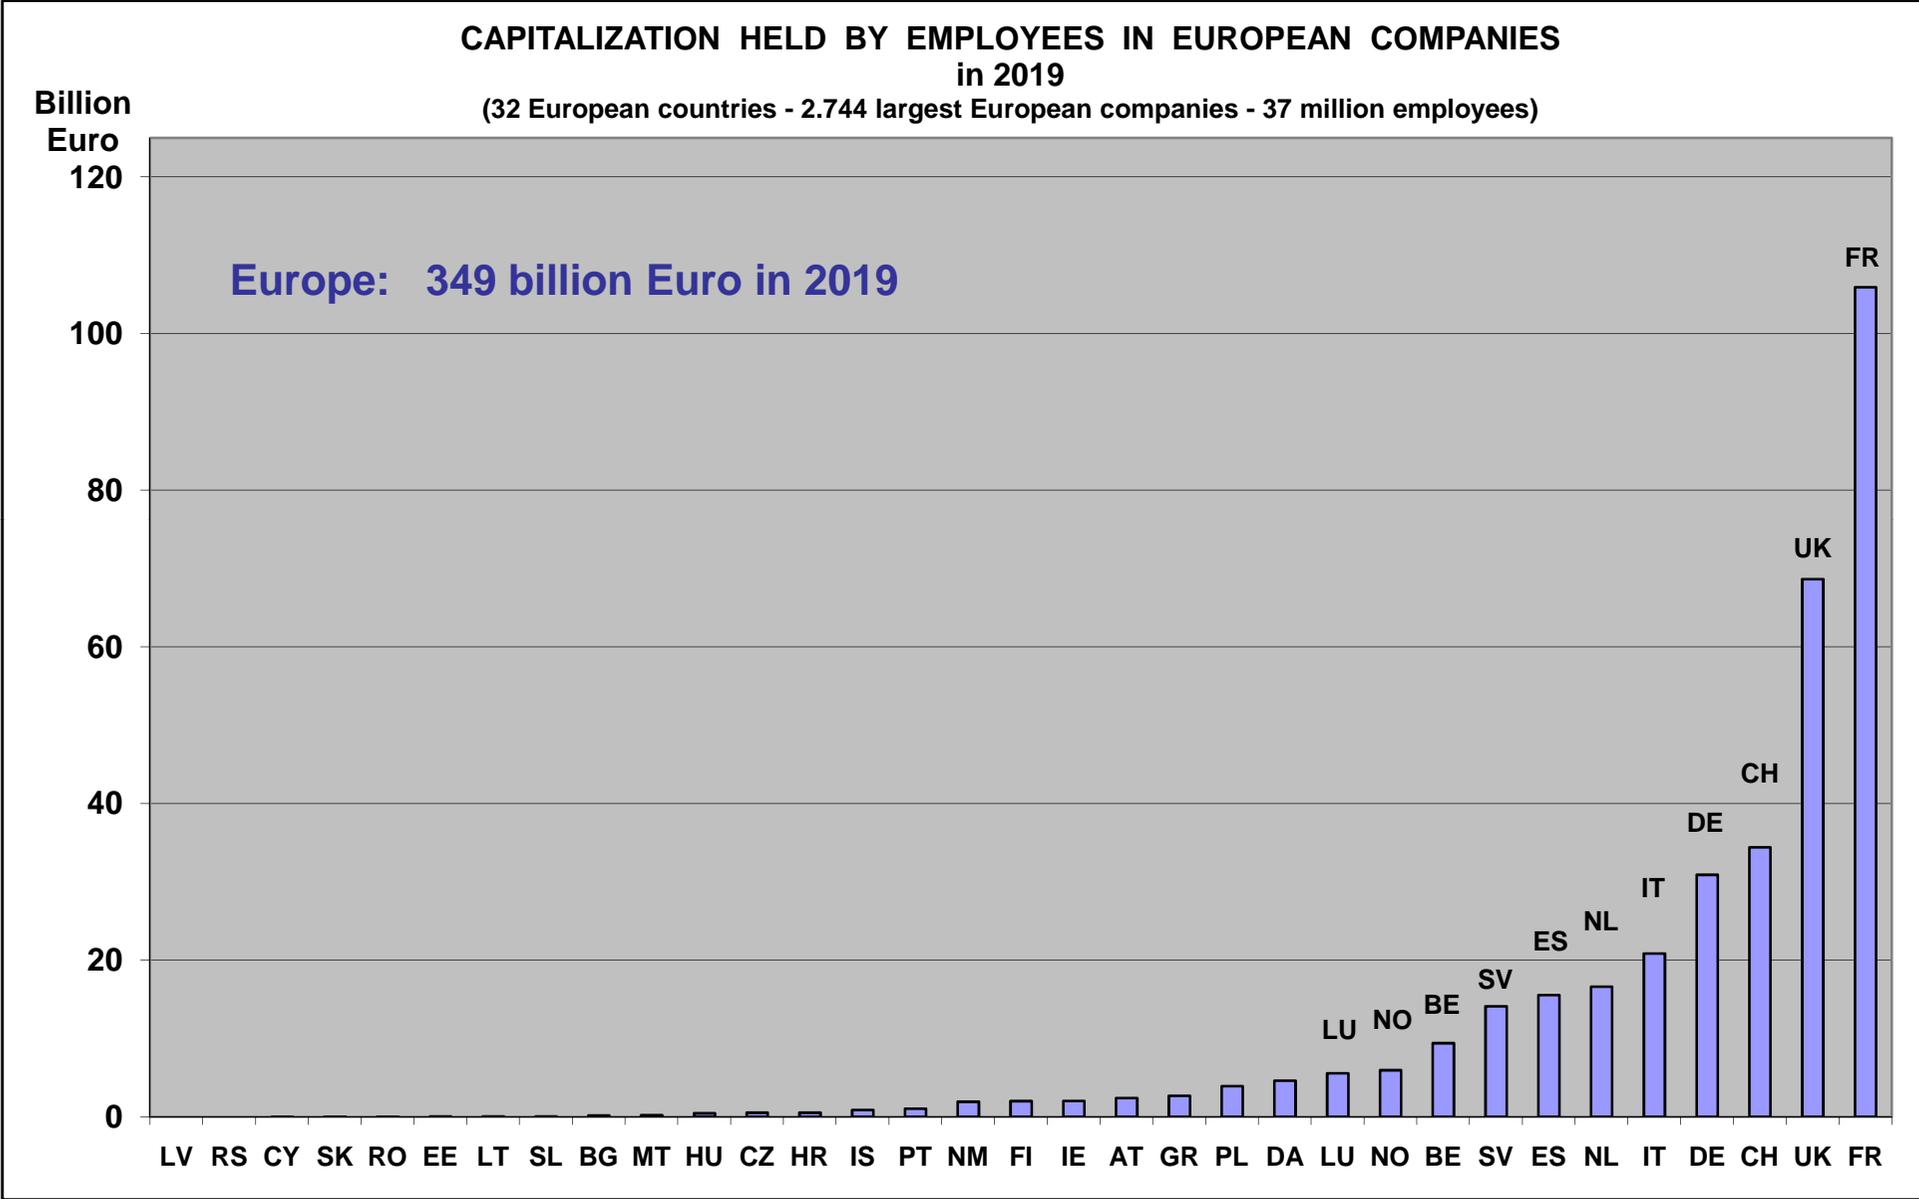

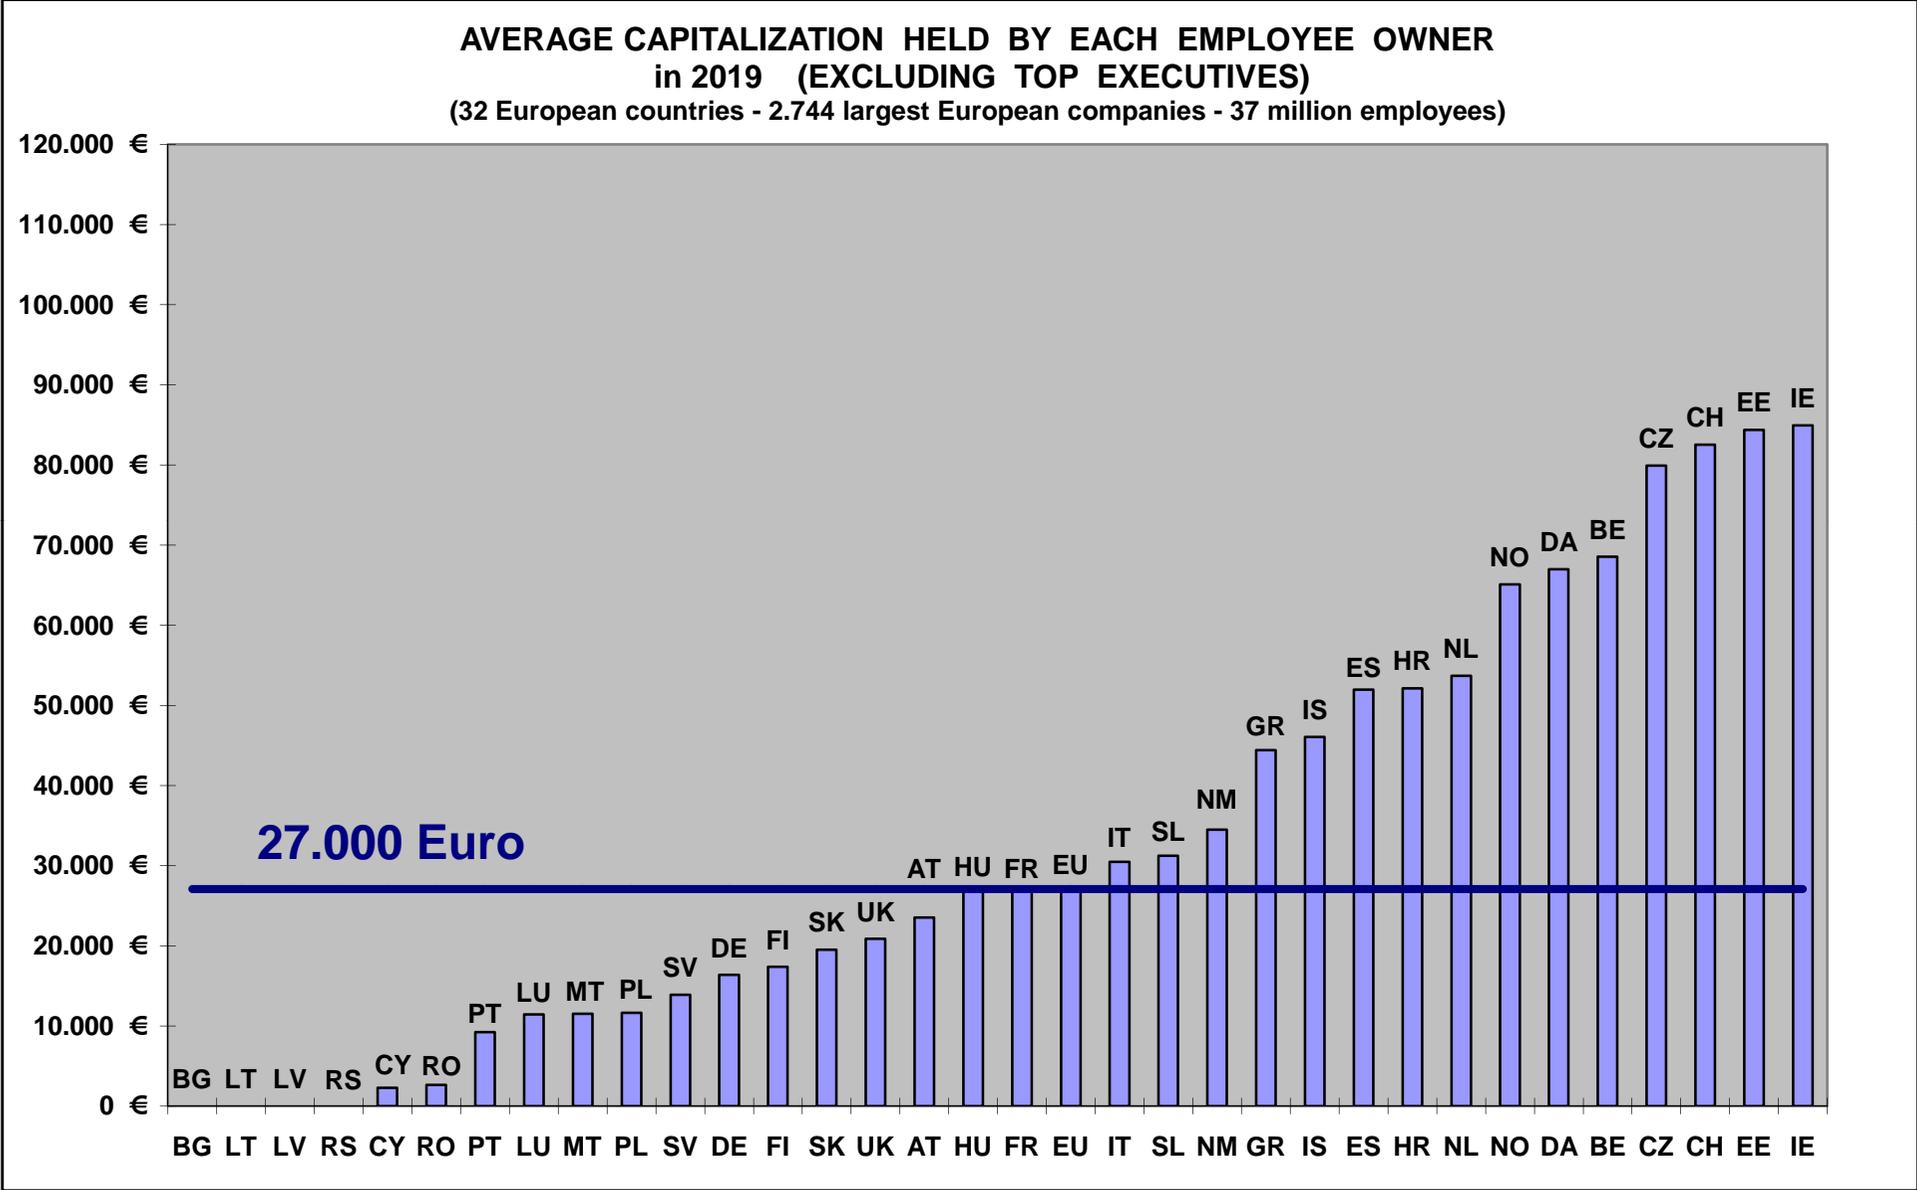

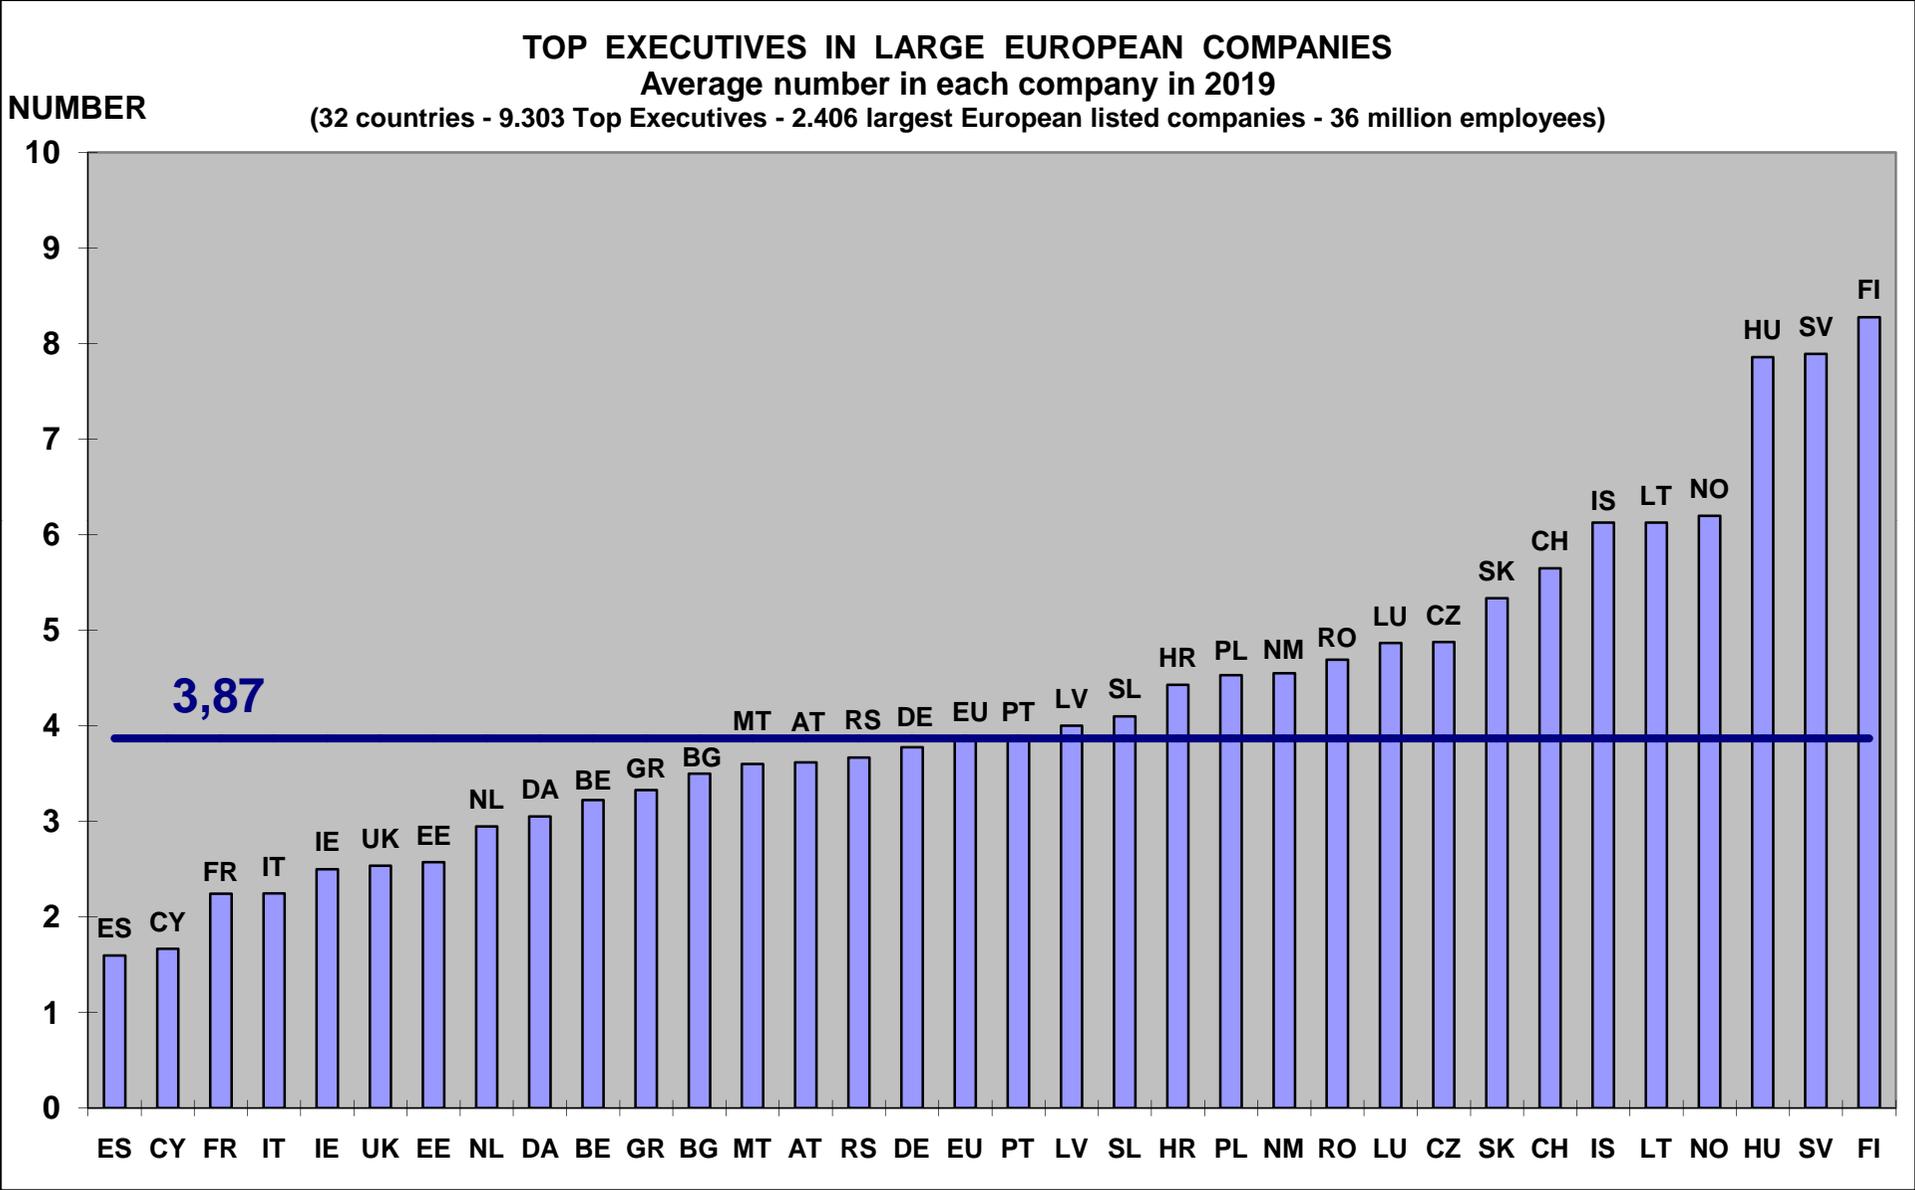

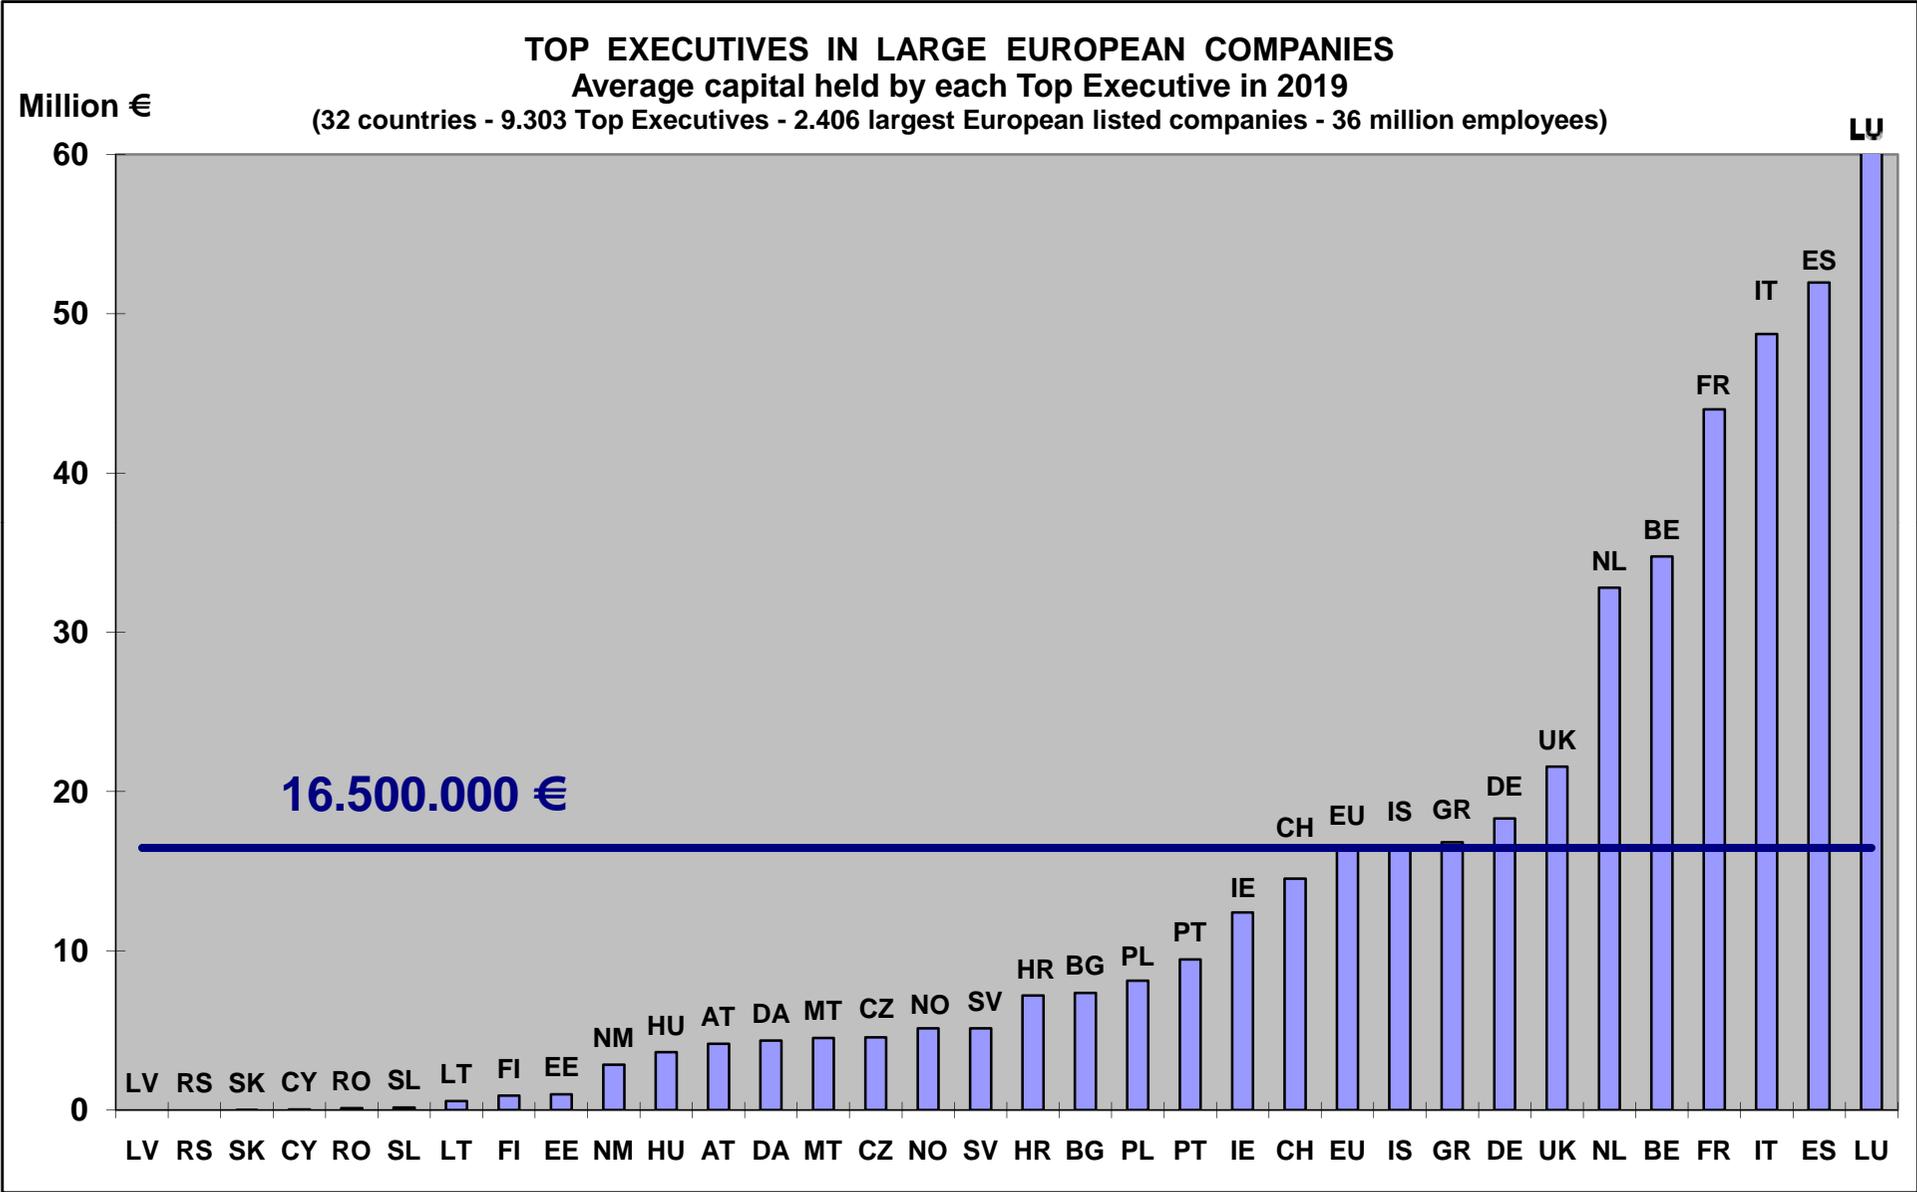

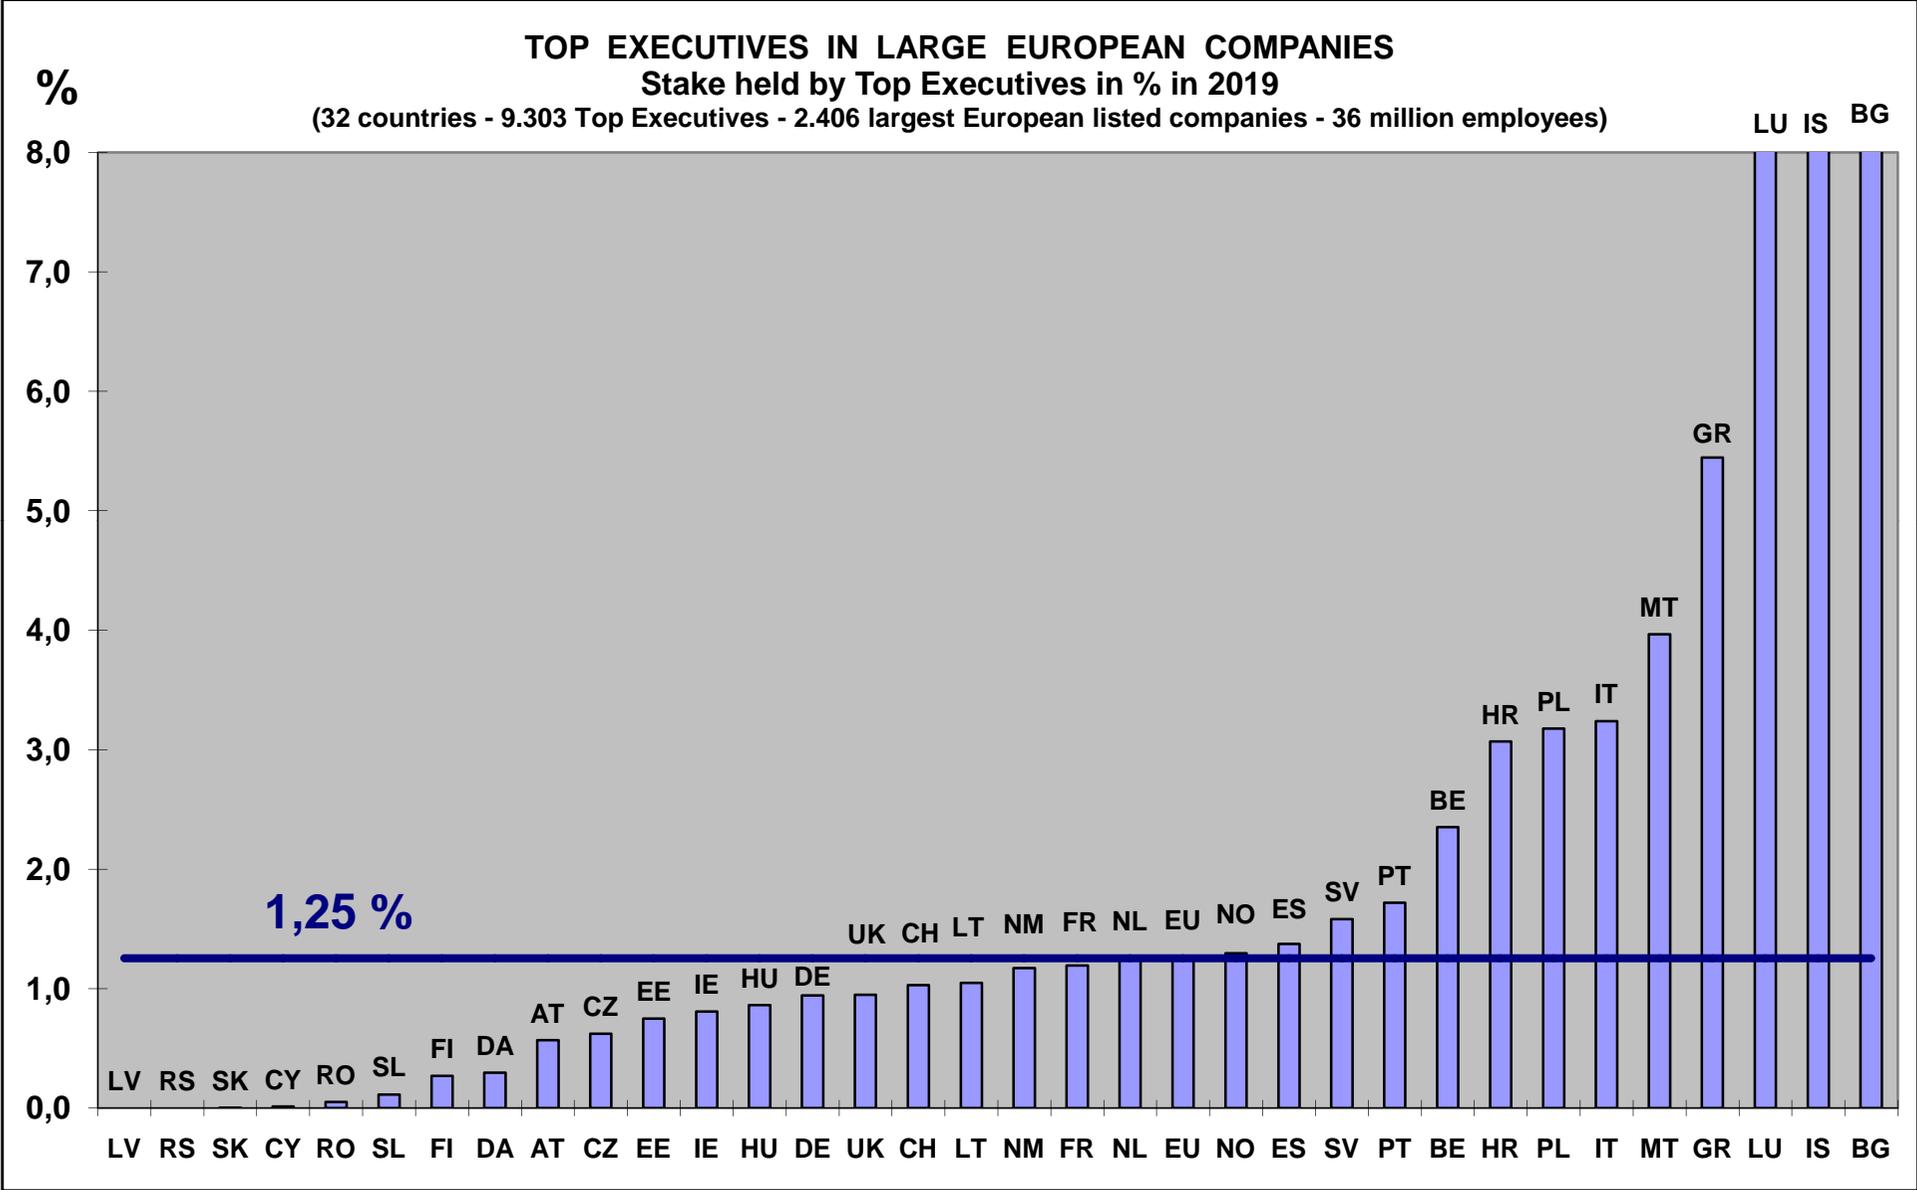

LES DIRIGEANTS EXÉCUTIFS

LES DIRIGEANTS EXECUTIFS

- Des différences sensibles apparaissent entre les différents pays européens pour ce qui est du nombre moyen de dirigeants exécutifs dans chaque entreprise, autour de la moyenne de 3,87 dirigeants exécutifs par entreprise cotée, de 2 en Espagne à 8 en Suède ou en Finlande (Graphique 42).
- Différences très marquées entre les pays européens pour le capital moyen détenu par chaque dirigeant exécutif, aussi bien pour les montants absolus, avec une moyenne de 16,5 millions d'Euro par personne (Graphique 43), que pour la part détenue en % (Graphique 44). Il faut noter que le nombre plus réduit de dirigeants exécutifs identifiés en Espagne, France, Italie ou au Royaume Uni conduit mécaniquement à des montants individuels plus élevés en moyenne. Le fait est que les définitions des dirigeants exécutifs soumis à transparence diffèrent d'un pays à l'autre.
- Enfin, 78% de toutes les grandes entreprises cotées européennes publient l'information complète sur la détention d'actions par leurs dirigeants exécutifs. Seuls quelques pays se distinguent des autres par leur information peu transparente, en particulier l'Allemagne, la Belgique, le Luxembourg, l'Autriche et la Grèce (Graphique 45).
- La transparence sur la détention d'actions par les dirigeants exécutifs a augmenté dans la plupart des pays européens, de 68% de toutes les entreprises cotées en 2013 à 78% en 2019. Cependant, elle a diminué dans trois pays où le manque de transparence continue à s'imposer: Belgique, Allemagne et Islande (Table 23).

GOVERNANCE D'ENTREPRISE ET PROFIT-SHARING

En plus de toute l'information sur l'actionnariat salarié et les plans d'actionnariat salarié, ce Recensement comporte des chapitres sur la gouvernance d'entreprise et le profit-sharing dans les grandes entreprises européennes (notamment la représentation des salariés dans les conseils et les discriminations de droits de vote pour ou contre l'actionnariat salarié). Les données sur la structure des conseils, la représentation des salariés dans les conseils et les droits de votes en 2019 apparaissent au Tableau 24, et les évolutions de 2013 à 2019 au Tableau 25. D'autre part, les données par pays sont détaillées aux Tableaux 26-27.

• Représentation des salariés dans les conseils

La représentation des salariés dans les conseils d'administration ou de surveillance est usuelle dans beaucoup de grandes entreprises européennes (Graphiques 46-48).

Les actionnaires salariés sont représentés dans les conseils dans 13% des grandes entreprises françaises, qui représentent 34% en termes d'emplois (Graphiques 49-50). En France, la représentation des actionnaires salariés dans les conseils est donc plus typique des très grandes entreprises. Cependant, cette représentation est beaucoup moins fréquente dans les autres pays européens.

Quant à la représentation des salariés dans les conseils, elle est de règle pour 44% des salariés dans les grandes entreprises européennes (Graphique 48). C'est le cas pour 90% des salariés dans les grandes entreprises en Autriche, Danemark, Allemagne, Hongrie ou Slovaquie. En France, c'est le cas pour 78% des salariés des grandes entreprises (donc nettement au-dessus de la moyenne européenne), alors que c'est seulement le cas pour 1,3% des salariés en Grande Bretagne et... 0% en Italie.

La représentation des salariés dans les conseils est particulièrement raffinée en France. Toutes formes confondues, la représentation dans les conseils y concerne 79% des salariés dans les grandes entreprises. Cette représentation est organisée soit par le canal des représentants syndicaux ou des comités d'entreprises pour 78% des cas, soit par le canal des représentants de l'actionnariat salarié pour 34% (tandis que dans 33% des cas, on a à la fois une représentation des salariés et de l'actionnariat salarié).

• Profit-sharing

Sauf en France (où la loi le rend obligatoire), le profit-sharing n'est le fait que d'un très petit nombre d'entreprises, - 7% de toutes les entreprises cotées (Tables 28-29 et Graphique 58).

• Droits de vote de l'actionnariat salarié

Dans la plupart des pays européens, aucune discrimination n'est faite à l'avantage ou au désavantage des droits de vote de l'actionnariat salarié. Par contre, des discriminations significatives sont à relever dans six pays (Graphique 59).

Les droits de vote de l'actionnariat salarié sont généralement démultipliés en France, où les actions nominatives détenues depuis plus de deux ans bénéficient de droits de vote doubles. Au contraire, les droits de vote de l'actionnariat salarié souffrent de discriminations négatives dans six autres pays: Danemark, Suède, Finlande, Suisse, Pays-Bas, Allemagne (Graphiques 59-60 et Table 30). Cas-type dans ces pays, celui des entreprises émettrices de deux classes d'actions, actions-A à 10 voix et actions-B à 1 voix. Les actionnaires de contrôle sont détenteurs des actions à voix multiples, tandis que les plans d'actionnariat salarié sont basés sur les actions à faible pouvoir de vote. De cette manière, les droits de vote de l'actionnariat salarié sont sévèrement discriminés, cela touche jusqu'à 37% des grandes entreprises en Suède (Graphique 59). Les droits de vote de l'actionnariat salarié sont généralement réduits de 38% en Suède et au Danemark, de 27% en Finlande et 8% aux Pays-Bas, par rapport à ce qu'ils seraient sur base de la règle "une action, une voix" (Graphique 60).

LES ENTREPRISES COTÉES
ET
LES ENTREPRISES NON-COTÉES
DÉTENUES MAJORITAIREMENT
PAR LES SALARIÉS

ENTREPRISES COTEES ET ENTREPRISES NON-COTEES CONTROLEES PAR LES SALARIES

- Il a parfois été affirmé que les entreprises non-cotées contrôlées par leurs salariés auraient mieux résisté à la crise européenne que les entreprises cotées en bourse.

Grâce à la base de données EFES, on dispose d'une information pratiquement exhaustive sur toutes les entreprises cotées européennes et sur presque toutes les grandes entreprises non-cotées contrôlées majoritairement par leurs salariés en Europe.

La comparaison systématique des deux groupes apporte une information plus complète sur la résilience supposée des unes et des autres.

- Une forte dynamique de l'actionnariat salarié peut être observée dans les grandes entreprises cotées européennes depuis le début des années 1980 (Graphique 61).
- Le groupe des entreprises majoritairement contrôlées par leurs salariés est minuscule en Europe, comparé au groupe des entreprises cotées en bourse (Graphique 62).
- Seul un petit nombre de pays a un nombre significatif de grandes entreprises contrôlées majoritairement par leurs salariés,- par grandes entreprises on entend ici celles qui occupent 100 personnes ou plus (Graphique 63). La même remarque vaut pour l'emploi dans ces entreprises (Graphique 64) et pour leur capitalisation (Graphique 65).
- L'évolution comparée des deux groupes d'entreprises de 2006 à 2019 est décrite dans les Graphiques 66-69.
- La Grande Bretagne et la France sont les seuls pays où apparaît depuis peu une dynamique positive du secteur des grandes entreprises majoritairement contrôlées par les salariés.
Le nombre des grandes entreprises de ce type est passé en Grande Bretagne de 36 en 2014 à 90 en 2019 (Table 32). Cela résulte principalement de l'introduction en 2014 de la législation visant à promouvoir la formule du "Employee Ownership Trust".
En France, cette dynamique est plutôt due à la multiplication d'opérations de reprises combinées d'entreprises par les dirigeants et les salariés (Management et Employee Buy-Outs).
- Le nombre de grandes coopératives de salariés est en déclin partout en Europe, tandis qu'au contraire, les autres formules d'actionnariat salarié sont en expansion (Table 32).

LE CONTRÔLE ACTIONNARIAL

LE CONTROLE ACTIONNARIAL DES ENTREPRISES COTEES EUROPEENNES

- L'information contenue dans la base de données EFES est pratiquement exhaustive pour les entreprises cotées européennes, sachant que les 2.406 entreprises dans la base de données représentent 25% de toutes les sociétés cotées européennes en 2019 (en excluant la gestion d'actifs financiers, les fonds d'investissement et les fonds de placements immobiliers), mais elles comptent pour 99% de la capitalisation boursière totale et pour 96% en termes d'emploi. La base de données contient l'information sur l'existence ou non d'un actionnaire de contrôle et la part qu'il détient dans chaque entreprise. L'actionnaire de contrôle s'entend comme la personne qui détient 25% ou plus, en termes de capital ou de votes. Un actionnaire de contrôle est présent dans 56% de toutes les grandes entreprises cotées européennes en 2019. Ces entreprises représentent 42% de toute la capitalisation boursière, ce qui signifie que la présence d'un actionnaire de contrôle est plus fréquente dans les entreprises de plus petite taille (Table 33).

Huit catégories d'actionnaire de contrôle sont identifiées: dirigeant exécutif, investisseur financier privé, famille, fondation, investisseur industriel, fondateurs, état, salariés.
- Le développement de l'actionnariat salarié est fortement influencé par l'existence ou non d'un actionnaire de contrôle (Graphique 70). Le graphique mesure le développement de l'actionnariat salarié par le taux de démocratisation de celui-ci (la proportion d'actionnaires salariés dans l'ensemble des salariés), celui-ci étant de 20% en moyenne en 2019.
- Au cours des dernières années, le poids des familles et des investisseurs financiers privés a eu tendance à décliner en tant qu'actionnaires de contrôle, tandis que les investisseurs industriels ont gagné en importance, de même que les entreprises sans actionnaire de contrôle (de 41% en 2015 à 44% en 2019) (Graphique 71). Ces changements reflètent le fait que l'âge moyen de la population des grandes entreprises cotées européennes a tendance à augmenter. En effet, au long de la vie d'une entreprise, la part détenue par les fondateurs et les dirigeants-proprétaires est plus importante au début, avant de céder la place aux familles et aux investisseurs financiers, et finalement aux investisseurs industriels.
- De manière générale, l'existence d'un actionnaire de contrôle est un facteur négatif pour le développement de l'actionnariat salarié. Trois exceptions: l'actionnariat salarié est plus développé dans les entreprises sous contrôle public ou sous contrôle des fondateurs, et le taux de démocratisation de l'actionnariat salarié est le plus élevé (avec 65,1%) dans les entreprises où les salariés sont l'actionnaire de contrôle. Quand l'actionnaire de contrôle est un dirigeant exécutif, le taux de démocratisation de l'actionnariat salarié n'est que de 3,8% en moyenne. Il est relativement faible (10-11%) quand l'actionnaire de contrôle est un investisseur privé, une fondation ou une famille (Table 33).

Dans ce sens, un contrôle "négatif" pour l'actionnariat salarié peut être observé lorsque l'actionnaire de contrôle est un dirigeant exécutif, un investisseur financier privé, une fondation ou une famille. Par contre, le contrôle est "positif" pour l'actionnariat salarié en absence d'actionnaire de contrôle ou lorsqu'il s'agit de l'Etat, des fondateurs ou des salariés eux-mêmes.
- Tous les pays européens peuvent être comparés aux autres en fonction du poids relatif du contrôle "positif" (Graphique 72) ou "négatif" (Graphique 73) de leurs entreprises. L'Italie, par exemple, n'est pas loin du sommet pour le contrôle négatif, et elle n'est pas loin du fond pour le contrôle positif. Dans les deux cas, les obstacles sont donc particulièrement forts en Italie, contre le développement de l'actionnariat salarié.
- Le poids relatif de l'actionnariat de contrôle familial dans chaque pays européen, celui du contrôle public et celui des entreprises sans actionnaire de contrôle sont décrits aux Graphiques 74-76. Le contrôle familial des grandes entreprises cotées est particulièrement important en Belgique, Italie, France et Portugal. Le contrôle d'Etat reste très prégnant dans beaucoup des "nouveaux" Etats membres de l'Union européenne. Enfin, l'absence d'actionnaire de contrôle est typique au Royaume Uni et dans les pays nordiques, alors que cela reste exceptionnel dans les "nouveaux" Etats membres.

METHODOLOGIE

Ce Recensement offre une information pratiquement exhaustive. Il est fondé sur la base de données EFES des entreprises européennes. Celle-ci rassemble toute l'information détaillée sur l'actionnariat salarié et les plans d'actionnariat salarié dans chaque entreprise cotée européenne de taille significative, et dans chaque grande entreprise non-cotée contrôlée majoritairement par ses salariés. En outre elle collationne aussi l'information sur la gouvernance ainsi que sur la structure de contrôle des grandes entreprises européennes.

L'ébauche de cette base de données a été testée dès 2005. Une base de données complète a été constituée en 2006, avec le soutien de la Commission Européenne - DG Emploi et Affaires Sociales. Ensuite celle-ci a été complétée et mise à jour annuellement depuis 2007.

De loin en loin au cours des trente dernières années, quelques rapports européens avaient livré des informations éparses sur l'actionnariat salarié et son développement à travers l'Europe. Parmi ceux-ci sont à signaler le Rapport Pepper I en 1991, le Rapport Pepper II en 1996 et un Rapport intitulé "Recent trends in employee financial participation in the European Union" dû au Professeur Erik Poutsma en 2001. A cette époque, ces rapports ont été pratiquement la seule source d'information sur le développement de l'actionnariat salarié dans l'Union Européenne.

Cependant ils étaient fondés sur des informations partielles (recueillies principalement par sondages téléphoniques) qui n'étaient disponibles que très tardivement. Le Rapport de 2001 par exemple était basé sur les résultats de l'Enquête EPOC de 1996 (Employee Direct Participation in Organisational Change), conduite par la Fondation de Dublin. En outre aucune de ces informations ne couvrait l'ensemble des pays de l'Union Européenne (par exemple le Rapport de 2001 ne concernait que dix pays).

Il paraissait crucial de disposer d'informations plus récentes et complètes. D'un côté on savait que l'actionnariat salarié était en fort développement. De l'autre on ne disposait que d'informations tardives. Un hiatus se creusait entre les entreprises et les praticiens d'une part, et les acteurs sociaux et politiques de l'autre, ceux-ci ne disposant pas d'information correcte sur ce qui se passait. C'est pourquoi la Fédération Européenne de l'Actionnariat Salarié a mis en place cette base de données et son "Recensement Economique Annuel de l'Actionnariat Salarié dans les Pays Européens".

La base de données recueille l'information sur chaque entreprise européenne de taille significative, d'où une information rigoureusement comparable pour chaque pays européen (présentement les 28 pays de l'Union Européenne plus Islande, Norvège, Serbie et Suisse).

Cette information est tirée de ce que les entreprises publient elles-mêmes dans leurs Rapports Annuels - d'où une information de qualité, et sans guère de retard.

Pour le Recensement Economique de 2019, 2.744 entreprises ont été compilées. La plupart de ces entreprises ou "groupes" comprennent une société mère et des dizaines voire des milliers de filiales dans de nombreux pays. Ces 2.744 entreprises comprennent:

- Toutes les entreprises cotées dont la capitalisation boursière a atteint 200 millions d'Euro ou plus aux mois de mai des années 2006 à 2019. Le Recensement inclut ainsi toutes les entreprises cotées européennes de taille significative, sans exception (en excluant la gestion d'actifs financiers, les fonds d'investissement et les fonds de placements immobiliers).
- Les entreprises non-cotées dont les salariés détiennent 50% ou plus et qui emploient au moins 100 personnes. La plupart des entreprises européennes de ce type sont enregistrées dans la base de données; néanmoins cette liste ne peut pas être considérée comme exhaustive. De fait, l'information dont on dispose pour les entreprises cotées est bien plus disponible et fiable que pour les non-cotées. Pour une bonne part, les entreprises non-cotées détenues majoritairement par les salariés sont des coopératives de salariés.

En 2019, 2.406 entreprises cotées sont incluses dans le Recensement, ainsi que 338 entreprises non-cotées (parmi lesquelles les 168 plus grandes coopératives de salariés en Europe). Ensemble, elles emploient 37 millions de personnes, près de 30% des salariés en Europe.

En nombre, les 2.406 plus grandes entreprises cotées représentent 25% de toutes les sociétés cotées européennes en 2018 (en excluant la gestion d'actifs financiers, les fonds d'investissement et les fonds de placements immobiliers), mais elles comptent pour 99% de la capitalisation boursière totale et pour 95% en termes d'emploi. Ainsi la base de données EFES et ce Recensement donnent une image pratiquement exhaustive de l'actionnariat salarié et de la participation dans les entreprises cotées européennes.

Les Rapports Annuels sont une excellente source d'information sur l'actionnariat salarié dans les grandes entreprises européennes, particulièrement les entreprises cotées. Les normes internationales d'information financière (International Financial Reporting Standards) sont de plus en plus efficace et la qualité de l'information va en s'améliorant.

La plupart des grandes entreprises européennes offrent une information fiable ou tout à fait complète concernant leurs dirigeants exécutifs: rémunération individuelle, actions détenues, actions reçues, stock options reçues et exercées, etc.

Presque toutes les grandes entreprises européennes donnent une masse d'information concernant leurs salariés et leurs plans d'actionnariat salarié. Quand elles ont lancé leur premier plan? Quels plans elles ont lancés, arrêtés ou révisés, année après année. Quels salariés ont bénéficié de ces plans: catégories, nombres. Combien d'actions ont été données ou vendues aux salariés, combien de stock options ont été offertes ou exercées... Enfin, beaucoup de grandes entreprises européennes offrent une information sur le nombre d'actionnaires salariés (ou de membres dans les coopératives de salariés).

En plus de l'information sur l'actionnariat salarié et les plans d'actionnariat salarié, les dirigeants exécutifs et les salariés ordinaires, la base de données EFES a été étendue depuis 2013 aux données de gouvernance d'entreprise (en particulier la représentation des salariés dans les conseils d'administration ou de surveillance et les discriminations dans les droits de votes) et au profit-sharing.

Enfin, depuis 2015 la base de données enregistre aussi l'information sur l'existence ou non d'un actionnaire de contrôle, son poids et son type (dirigeant exécutif, investisseur privé, famille, fondation, entreprise, fondateur, état, salariés), dans chaque entreprise cotée européenne de taille significative.
