

JOBS & FAIRNESS

The Logic & Experience of Employee Ownership

Robert Oakeshott

"In 1985 it would have been invaluable for the board of Tullis Russell to have such a work." David Erdal, Executive Director, Baxi Partnership Trust.

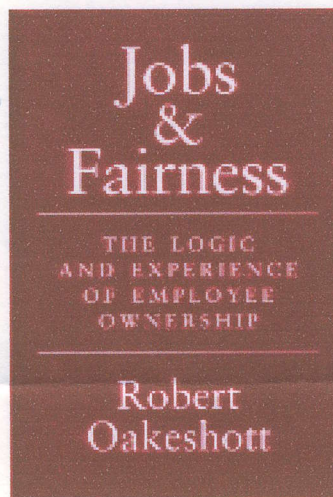

"No other volume provides such detail about employee owned businesses." Robert Taylor, Financial Times.

"Illuminating and strongly argued book." Geoffrey Owen, Spectator.

"By far the best summary of the range of arguments as well as the wide variety of cases and examples is Robert Oakeshott's magisterial book." Dr. David Ellerman, Oakeshott believes "that an extension of employee ownership is necessary to counter what he sees as the unfairness and increasing unpopularity of the capitalist system. One of its worst features in his view is the gross inequality of wealth which flows from it."

Geoffrey Owen, Spectator.

"He combines narrative with philosophy ... to argue that there is a rich British tradition of seeing ownership in larger, more generous and rewarding terms." Denis MacShane MP, Independent.

"Robert Oakeshott is Britain's leading expert on Employee Ownership." Denis MacShane, Independent.

"It deserves a wide reading." Robert Taylor, Financial times.

"His enthusiasm for employee ownership is attractive. Perhaps the time for such innovation in companies has come." Robert Taylor, Financial times.

"Robert Oakeshott has worked in the world of employee-owned companies for well over 20 years. This carefully researched book gathers the fruits of that rich experience and long reflection." David Erdal, Baxi Partnership Trust
